WHOLE NUMBER 3017 — FIFTY-SEVENTH YEAR

VOL. LVIII. NO. 10. — WEYMOUTH, MASSACHUSETTS, FRIDAY, MARCH 7, 1924 — PRICE SIX CENTS

Tax Rate of $25 Is Possible This Year

Although the Appropriation Committee estimated that the tax rate of Weymouth would be about $30 in 1924 under their recommendations which were substantially adopted, a tax rate of $25 is possible, because of the large increase in valuation in 1923-1924, which includes the new station of the Edison Company at North Weymouth, the addition to the Clapp shoe factory at East Weymouth, the addition to the Stetson shoe factory at South Weymouth, the completion of the new Savings Bank building at South Weymouth; the completion of the Weymouth Savings Bank building at Weymouth, the new Garey block, the improvements at the Hunt news store, improvements at Broad street car barn, addition to Telephone office, addition at Weymouth Art Leather Co., Preston block, several new houses, new autos, new garages, etc., in different parts of the town. An increase in valuation of houses built before the war would also be justifiable.

It is now up to the Board of Assessors.

The total appropriations at the Annual Town Meeting of Monday evening were about $715,000, but from this sum is to be deducted $60,260, the water revenue; $45,000 by loan for Monatiquot bridge, $50,000 by bonds for water extensions, and perhaps $100,000 from credits, a total of over $250,000, which would reduce the total to less than $500,000 to raise by taxation, plus maturing debt.

On the first page of the second section is a list of the appropriations as voted under the different articles in the warrant. With very few exceptions the recommendations of the Appropriation Committee prevailed. One increase was $4000 for rebuilding Broad street near the Clapp Memorial field, a rather generous sum; another increase of $750 for the Fire Department; an increase of $300 for the chairman of the Selectmen; $50,000 for replacing water mains; $1000 for Johnson road; $300 for Shaw road, and $100 increase for Memorial Day, less than $7000 in all.

Only Three Hours Required

Moderator George L. Barnes called the meeting to order promptly at 7.45 at the Odd Fellows Opera House, and an adjournment was reached about 11 P. M., all the business having been transacted. There was a large attendance of ladies and gentlemen not voters under the limited town meeting. Members not previously sworn were sworn in.

Under Art. 1 a committee of six was appointed to nominate a list for public weighers; surveyors of wood, lumber and bark; field drivers, fence viewers and pound keeper and their nominees were elected.

Under Article 2 the reports of town officers and committees as printed in the Town Report were adopted. The Town Forest Committee was continued one year.

Town Counsel W. J. Holbrook offered a resolution thanking Chief Justice Taft, Gov. Cox, Justice Rugg and others for participation in the Weymouth Tercentenary, and suggesting that copies of the new Weymouth History be sent them. Voted.

The Committee on Building Laws said they would be ready to report under Art. 85.

Under Art. 8 ex-Selectman Frederick Humphrey favored better pay for town officers.

The salary of the Tax Collector was fixed at 8 mills on the dollar.

The appropriation for interest was about $5000 more than in 1923.

The increase of about $19,000 for School Department includes more for the teachers, raising the maximum of grade teachers to $1500, and also increases for other teachers, the janitor at High school, for resuming evening school and for State aided vocations.

T. J. Kelly, George Cunniff and Prince H. Tirrell spoke relative to school salaries.

The Appropriation Committee recommended no action relative to a playground in East Weymouth, but Prince H. Tirrell favored a committee and on his motion $200 was voted for use of committee.

More for Firemen

Chief Engineer Collyer made a plea for more money for the chauffeurs of the Fire Department and for firemen generally. Mr. Tobin also favored. J. L. Bicknell said they were getting one day off in 5, two weeks vacation with pay and other things. Stanley Torrey secured a division of the question and pay of chauffeurs was increased to $35 per week.

Ex-Selectman Humphrey secured an increase of $300 for the chairman of the Selectmen. Some other increases were made in the appropriations recommended for town officers.

Mr. Tobin asked how the $1000 for dental clinic was used, and Supt. Pearson said it was in connection with the schools and one of the best things in town.

The printed report recommended no action relative to renewing water mains,, but Secretary Barker moved $50,000 to be paid in 15 instalments.

John F. Robinson wanted more light, as did Prince H. Tirrell. Water Commissioner Torrey said many of the mains were too small and larger ones would be necessary from time to time, saying $15,000 would be enough for 1924.

Voted 114 to 2.

A debate came under Art. 46. Mr. McDonald, Mr. Sheehy and others wanting Broad street near Clapp Memorial field included with an extra appropriation, but this was finally voted under Art. 48, the sum of $4000.

The amount for Iron Hill street was reduced from $700 to $400.

Some objection was made to reimbursing certain abutters for one-half the cost of permanent sidewalks, but $1423 was voted.

New Streets

Frank Torrey was surprised that May terrace was singled out for acceptance, while all the other streets were turned down. Mr. Bicknell explained and $500 was voted.

Art. 90 was here taken up and the by-laws amended as to the acceptance of streets, there being certain requirements. The amendments were adopted unanimously.

There was one remonstrant to the adverse report on Beals street, but action was indefinitely postponed.

Johnson road was more successful. H. A. Day objected to the adverse report, prevented indefinite postponement, and secured $1000.

Supt. Johnson explained that D. Arthur Brown had already paid the Pine circle, and Great Pond road and these new streets were also accepted

TOO MUCH NEWS

Several columns of news, already in type, is unavoidably crowded out of the Gazette-Transcript this week, and other news articles abridged, because of the space given to the Annual Town Meeting and advertisements in connection with the Annual Town Election of next Monday. Some of these articles will appear next week. Every issue of the Gazette-Transcript seems to be crowded these days.

SHOE MEN GET TOGETHER

The semi-annual banquet and get-together meeting of the superintendents, foremen, and salesmen of the Stetson Shoe Co., and the managers of the Stetson Stores, was held Monday evening in the new addition to the factory. A caterer's banquet was served from 6 to 8 followed by speech-making by the store managers and others; vocal and instrumental selections by members of the office force and foremen of the factory and selections by the American Legion band.

—Miss Sadie Hannigan of Pilgrim road has been confined to her home during the past two weeks by illness.

CANDIDATE WAITE

Fred E. Waite, the republican nominee for selectman from Ward 5, is making a whirlwind campaign the last few days prior to the election.

Mr. Waite was at first considered solely the young men's candidate, probably because he is still a comparatively young man and also because so much has been made of his record as an athlete. Since forsaking professional baseball he has spent sixteen years on the road as a commercial traveller covering New England and parts of the Middle West as his territory. He is considered by his business associates to be a wide awake, aggressive business man and his friends in all parts of the town believe that if elected that the citizens of Weymouth will find him a credit to the office of the Selectmen.

DIVORCE GRANTED

In the Norfolk Superior court on Tuesday, Irma E. Staples of Weymouth was granted a decree of divorce nisi from Ortheuse F. Staples of Readsboro, Vt., on the ground of cruel and abusive treatment and was given the custody of a minor child, a girl.

ANONYMOUS LETTER

A letter relative to police pensions has been received, but from some person unknown, and therefore will not be published.

NOT A CANDIDATE

John F. Reardon desires it to be known that he is not a candidate for School Committee.

ELABORATE BANQUET

The Old Colony Driving club has planned its banquet to be the greatest ever. Elaborate preparations have been made for Boston vaudeville and an 8-piece string orchestra. After dinner speaking will feature the evening and it is reported that two or three very eminent men will be present.

A THOUGHT

Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged.—Col. 3:21.

Correction does much, but encouragement does more. Encouragement after censure is as the sun after a shower.—Goethe.

STATE FEDERATION NOTES

It has generally been the custom for the delegates to the meetings held by the Federation to endorse the various legislative measures that had been approved by the executive board.

This year the delegates evidently did not intend to be influenced by the action of the board, for at the midwinter meeting held Feb. 29 in Boston, they declined to endorse House bill 223, an act regulating the practice of midwifery in the state. The vote stood 268 against and only 198 in favor.

Perhaps the change in the custom was the result of the remarks of the president, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, who told the delegates to consider the arguments for and against the bill and vote according to their connections and not because the executive board had endorsed it.

The vote was a great surprise to the 1700 women present, of whom 579 were regularly accredited delegates.

Dr. Evangeline Young spoke in favor of the bill and Dr. J. L. Huntington against it.

The meeting was held in the M. E. church (formerly the Peoples' Temple) corner Berkeley street and Columbus avenue and was in charge of the Women's Charity Club, Mrs. Joseph C. Otis, president and was admirably carried out in every particular. Mrs. Otis made a short but comprehensive address of welcome; Mrs. Poole presided and Mrs. Joseph W. Atwill of Lynn presented the various legislative bills that had been endorsed by the board.

A solemn and touching memorial service for Mrs. George Minot Baker was held before the afternoon session, sung by Ethel Walcott Ross, soprano with an appropriate group of songs and a memorial poem read by Mrs. Clara E. Webber.

Features of the afternoon were addresses by Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, director of immigration for Massachusetts, and Senator David I. Walsh, who came from Washington especially for the occasion.

The Senator's talk was frequently applauded. Among other telling points was his warning to the club women, "leaders of thought" as he called them, against the evils of being "worked" in behalf of selfish propaganda. He spoke in favor of the bonus bill, explained the Teapot Dome scandal, touched on the Mellon tax bill and the tariff.

New clubs presented were: Garden club, New Bedford; Council Jewish Women, Springfield Section; Williamsburg Woman's club; Braintree Point club, Quincy; Charlestown Home Makers club; Woman's Auxiliary to Morgan Memorial and South Yarmouth club.

The Memorial fund in honor of Mrs. Baker is now $588.50 of the $2000 necessary. It is hoped to receive $1000 in all before the annual meeting in May at Swampscott.

The special New England train for the biennial will leave Boston May 27. Already 125 club women are booked for the trip. The sessions are to be held in the Philharmonic Auditorium, Los Angeles, California, June 3—13. Headquarters will be main- at the Biltmore hotel.

FATHER GUEST OF SON

Div. 9, A. O. H., of East Weymouth, is conducting an intensive membership drive. Teams from the division are combing East Weymouth for every eligible candidate. Several speakers were present at a large meeting in Hibernian hall, Jackson Square, on Sunday, Feb. 24. They explained to non-members the principles of Hibernianism. Many candidates were secured.

An unusual and rare coincidence in fraternal circles was the presence of Dennis J. Slattery in his official capacity as State president of Massachusetts Hibernians. He was introduced by his son, Thomas Slattery, president of local Division 9. The State president is also a member of Division 9. He has a pleasing personality and is highly respected in Weymouth and throughout the State. He has been prominent in American-Irish affairs for more than twenty years, and is a credit to the order. His speech showed that he is well versed in things pertaining to the work done in America by men of Irish blood.

Other speakers were: Leo J. Bresnahan, president Div. 14, Brighton; Thomas J. Buckley, Plymouth County president, of North Abington; Daniel F. Slattery, State historian of the order, of Norwood; Peter C. Morrissey of Dedham.

Refreshments were served. Songs were rendered by Daniel F. Slattery of Norwood. George Preston presided at the piano.

You Can Do Wonders With a Little Paint

Maybe there is just one room in your home that seems to strike a discordant note. Maybe you feel that you would like to redecorate every room. But whether it is one room or your entire home, you'll be agreeably surprised at the wonders you can accomplish with a little paint.

A Beautiful, Practical Finish for Living Room, Dining Room, Bedroom Walls

For your living room, dining room or bedroom walls we'd suggest that you use Mellotone. This modern finish produces a soft, neutral background that allows unlimited possibilities for room arrangement and artistic draping. Then, too, it is easy to apply, covers and hides well and dries quickly to a beautiful finish that can be washed with soap and water. Mellotone is economical as well as beautiful.

An Easy-to-Keep-Clean Finish for Bathroom and Kitchen Walls

For your bathroom and kitchen walls we know that you'll like Mello-Gloss. It provides a smooth, semi-gloss finish that glistens when wiped with a damp cloth. It is unaffected by hot or cold water or steam—and keeps its first-day newness and cheerfulness for years.

Beautiful Woodwork in Every Room

Of course with such attractive walls you'll want equally attractive woodwork. And for that purpose Linduro Enamel has been made. This enamel can be applied on your woodwork regardless of the present finish. It will transform dark, stained woodwork into satiny smooth, white bands. And this finish can be washed with soap and water or wiped with a damp cloth without dulling its beauty.

TRAVEL LETTER NO. 3

From South Weymouth, Massachusetts, U. S. A., to Puerto Castilla, Honduras, C. A.

Honduras, Dec. 21, 1923

Dear folks at home:

We have been here, in Puerto Castilla, just one week today. I know it is not customary for one to begin to tell about their trip dating backward but then women have the reputation of being inconsistent anyway, so why not get in line?

Not only did we arrive Thursday last but we had to move in also—my husband changing his bachelor quarters for a larger domicile, and it has taken me all the week to get adjusted, acclimated and in fair running order. Unfortunately I am one of the kind to whom it is very upsetting if the household is askew. But our house is ideal for this part of the country, being concrete throughout, floors, walls, etc. Fact is, one may take out the furniture if they wish, attach the hose and the work is all done. I know stone floors will make you shiver but I haven't the least compunction in the world to paddling across them barefooted, so you may guage the temperature here by that remark.

The house has just been furnished (natural mahogany which is a product of these parts) and has in it what was available at the company commissary at the time, which means we are short this, that, the other thing, particularly dishes. But we are a family of New Englanders and "make shifting" comes natural. The baking powder biscuits were cooked in the frying pan and the cake in an enamel bowl. Curtains are not customary—they shut out the air—but I was not quite content until I had made out of gauze half curtains at least and thanked my stars that I was short of stature.

Puerto Castilla is a new concession and has made remarkable progress, I should say, comparing the present outlay with the pictures I had seen of it in the earlier stages. It is all made land—sand—and is virtually a small island. Behind us is a canal from which may or may not emerge alligators and other foreign reptiles. Along the other bank the blue herons and longlegged white storks sit and fish. The ugly black buzzard is ever hovering overhead to see whom he may "beat to it" and get a meal—the big fish chase and "gollop" down the baby shiners.

Never have I seen a better illustration of "might is right" than goes on by my back door. Within a few minutes walk is the ocean front and truly the bathing is delightful. At home one has the habit of dangling along the beach and going in by inch pieces, at least I do, but here one may plunge right in without the least suspicion of a shiver. The water is particularly buoyant. Sunday I saw down at the beach two little shavers, probably ages three and five, each attached to a pair of water wings bobbing up and down on the waves like bits of cork, little caring whether their feet touched the bottom or not. Perhaps even I shall learn to swim.

The porch is, of course, the living room. Everything is minutely screened but even the finest of mesh cannot keep out a creature they call here a sand fly. I believe he is even a greater pest than the mosquito—infinitesimal—but oh my! We are absolutely obliged to sleep in beds canopied with nets or we should be eaten alive. Seems like sleeping in a tent and I have not quite gotten over wondering yet where I am when I wake up.

Across the street is the park which will be eventually a sort of botanical garden. It has been grassed down and has a fountain in the center. Each pathway is bordered with the hibiscus, both double and single, which is a beautiful deep pink blossom resembling, as far as I can compare it with another, an enormous fuchsia. While they irrigate this choice spot to keep it in condition, there seems to be little need of such treatment at the present time.

Every day since I have been here, the heavens have at intervals suddenly opened up and spilled down buckets of rain. Never have I seen it rain harder or more unexpectedly. One minute the sun is shining and the next we are deluged. Fortunately this is supposed to be the end of the rainy season. When I exclaimed to someone who had lived here the past nine months, "Aren't these showers beastly!" She said, "No, I do not think so. It has been so dry and hot and dirty that I like nothing better than to stay right out in it and let it pelt down." But a different view point is what makes life interesting, isn't it? And perhaps more difficult. But I must not spend my time soliliquizing when I know you want to hear about the place.

And getting meat, vegetables and groceries is just as difficult as obtaining dishes and furniture. In my kitchen "things are not always what they seem". For reasons both personal and private I still prefer to be my own cook. I had always flattered myself that I honestly could cook but I am beginning to doubt my capabilities in that line after all. We are allotted a native servant, it is true, but it takes all her time to wash and iron—the word hurry is, I think, omitted entirely from the Spanish dictionary.

Fresh vegetables are a gamble. They will send you a box "from up the line", but this box may contain anything—not what you wish or ask for—and you pay for it just the same and try and use what is there. I have not yet tackled the native vegetables. We did have a strange bit of fruit given us for dinner the other day called the "Papia". It belongs probably to the melon family but tastes like pepsin gum. I think I shall get to like it as I am partial to all kinds of fruit.

A New Orleans boat is due in once a week bringing butter, eggs and some fresh vegetables. Otherwise you buy in tins from the Commissary. And I have learned even so early that it is well to hang around as soon as you hear that the goods from the boat have been released from customs—first come, first serve. I have been waiting eternally, so it seems, for creamery butter and go every day to ask about it and am placated with a little tin of "Mantequilla" which is butter a la something else.

About everything is subject to duty as the Honduranians depend on taxation of this kind for revenue. I paid 75 cents for a bottle of vanilla flavoring and 40 cents for a little tin of raisins. I am about to go after confectionary sugar that we may have frosting on our cake and I expect this too, will be in the luxury class as it is "Domino" and comes from the States. Granulated sugar is only 10 cents, but it is a coarse yellow product so I am really not getting my money's worth even in that.

Bananas, oranges, grapefruit and pineapples can be had and reasonable, but it is "feast and famine". As yet I have seen only the bananas being loaded—none to buy. Beef is native, and like the Honduranian chickens, has run its legs off and is down to bone and muscle, so one has to stew up most things and make them over into delectables. I have not yet conquered the bread problem. I made my first batch with magic yeast. It looked nice—but I must confess it wasn't—between the strange brand of yeast and a compound lard, what it did to the mixture was truly marvelous.

Now you will know what I have been doing with all my time. And in between experiments, I am teaching school. I am not at all sure that the teachers of the Shaw school will approve of my methods, but I am expecting to return in season for them to put on the final touches and do a little polishing up. Meanwhile Katherine and Newcomb think it is one grand lark.

If I am to get mail off in the boat that is now in from New Orleans I can stop to write no more, but will sketch along my trip from New York in some future letter.

As always,

TRIP TO FLORIDA

Wednesday morning after breakfast still having good weather, we left Washington, going to Petersburg, Va., passing through Richmond and seeing the capitol. We would have liked to have stopped in Richmond as a cousin of Mr. Hanscom's first wife gave the city some land for a park, which is now called Libby park, and also owned the land and had a tobacco warehouse which was afterward Libby prison. It is said he was offered gold or paper money in payment for the warehouse and land, but so great was his faith in the South, that he took the paper money; some of which is in the family now; of course being worthless as far as value goes.

Petersburg seemed to be a large and busy place; had a good hotel. Usually after dinner we would take a walk, write some letters, and then we were glad to go to bed.

Leaving Petersburg Thursday after breakfast, went through Raleigh, N. C., seeing the capitol; then to Apex, N. C.; a small, not over attractive town, stopping at the only hotel in the place. As it rained that night and the next forenoon, we stayed there that day and another night. Mr. Carpenter did not wish to drive while it was so wet. The roads when wet are very slippery and soft. However, on Saturday after breakfast the roads having dried some we started. Found it very poor going for a while; they are building some good roads. It will make it better in time, but some of the detours are pretty rough now.

We began to see many tourists all headed for Florida; many with camp outfit. We saw many so called "tin can camps". Then there were many like us who stopped at hotels nights, but all with their autos loaded with luggage. There were some house cars. We arrived at Columbus, S. C., Saturday afternoon. The stores being open in the evening we saw that it was a busy place, with many good stores; had a good hotel.

Sunday leaving Columbia we went to Macon, Ga., staying there that night and Monday going on to Waycross, Ga.. Somewhere along here we had our first and only tire trouble; we picked up a nail and had to change tires. We had seen cotton growing and although it was late for picking we did see some pickers at work.

I think it was in Virginia that we saw field after field of corn, mostly white but some yellow which they were harvesting. We saw a man and woman, colored, in front of a shanty, husking corn, with the husks so high we could hardly see the people. The houses we passed did not look much like our homes; that is in the country, and suppose many of them were homes of the Colored people. We went through miles and miles of peach orchards in Georgia. It must be a beautiful sight when they are in bloom. Also saw some fine pecan groves which we were told are worth a lot of money. I do not think I ever saw so many pecans in all my life as I saw here every day. Everyone eats them here. They range in price from 35 cents to a dollar a pound. The cheaper ones are not very good, of course. They are all the paper shelled pecans.

We also saw sugar cane growing and saw them grinding it and Mrs. Carpenter stopped and bought some for us to eat. It was very sweet and I thought rather sickish. Think I like mine better in the form of sugar.

We saw them taking the cotton to the gin to have the seed removed; looked like loads of snow. We also saw the baled cotton and loads of cotton seed. We saw large tobacco plantations, but the tobacco was all gathered. We saw the tobacco barns where they cure the tobacco.

Left Waycross Ga., Tuesday morning for Jacksonville, Fla., arriving there at noon. Another thing we saw that interested us was the men gathering the sap, or pitch, from the pine trees to make turpentine. They make a cut near the bottom of the tree, peel off the bark part way around, and put a pan to catch it. The next year they go a little higher up the tree and the next, as high as they can reach; then they cut the tree or leave them to die, which they will do before many years if not cut.

As we arrived at Jacksonville about noon we saw quite a lot of the city in the afternoon. Another thing I nearly forgot to mention was the lack of fences; they just turned the cows and pigs loose to roam where they wished and sometimes we had to wait for them to cross the road before we could go by.

Wednesday morning, Mrs. Carpenter left us to stay with her sister in Jacksonville for a while; we with Mr. Carpenter going on to Daytona, a beautiful place. On our way we went through St. Augustine. Such a quaint place with its arched entrance and depot carriages of light colored wood drawn by horses, having Colored drivers, which looked like some old-time picture of the South.

As we drove along the beautiful Halfax river into Daytona, it was a lovely sight. We were tempted to stay there for the winter, but thought we had better not as we had planned to go further South. We now parted with Mr. Carpenter, whose guests we had been as he was to stay in Daytona for a while. We went on the bus to Orlando, a very pretty ride, and finished our trip by train which arrived in St. Petersburg about 9 o'clock Thanksgiving evening. The taxi drivers gathered around us like flies around a pot of honey. Seemed as if there were dozens of them, and people with hotel cards, which they held up in front of us. We selected a driver and went to a hotel; the best one up to that time. After two days weary hunt, when it seemed as if we looked at a hundred places, if not more, we found a place we liked and became located as they say here, with a fine view of Tampa bay.

As we think of our trip we feel that we hope some day to do it all over, only hoping to have time to stop longer in some places. Will say that if you wish to see your country, by auto is the ideal way. We found the roads good most of the way and with the exception of picking up the nail and having to change a tire once, we had no trouble at all with the auto.

BACKACHE IS DISCOURAGING

But Not So Bad If You Know How to Reach the Cause.

Nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. Lame when you awaken, pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to work or to rest. Backache often indicates bad kidneys. Weymouth people recommend Doan's Pills. Ask your neighbor!

Peter Fowler, 10 Eliot St., Weymouth, says: "I suffered from a lame back and my kidneys acted irregularly. Doan's Pills made my back well and since using Doan's, my kidneys have acted regularly."

Nearly three years later, Mr. Fowler said: "I always keep Doan's Pills handy because they never fail to relieve any attacks of backache I have."

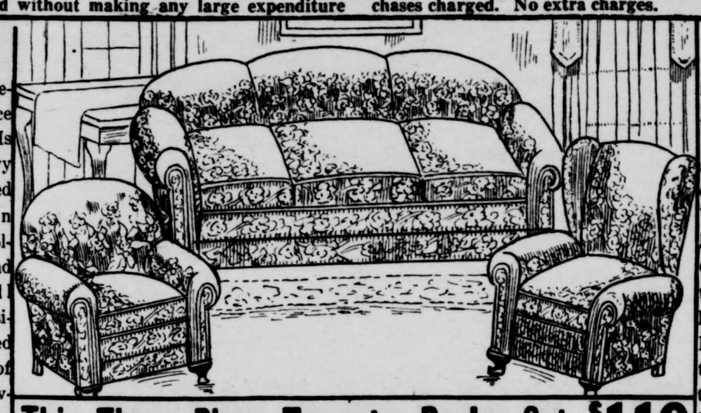

Price 60¢, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mr. Fowler had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

SACRED HEART REUNION

The annual reunion of the members of the Church of the Sacred Heart was held at Bates Opera House Monday evening and was a most successful affair. William T. Wall was chairman of the entertainment committee and the talent was Miss Elisabeth Donovan, soprano, soloist; Miss Marion Husbands, reader; the Misses Anna Garrity and Catherine Gloster, fancy dances; and it was without doubt one of the best entertainments given in this town for years. All the artists were exceptionally fine. Able's orchestra also gave selections, being accompanied by Miss Donovan. A dance followed till midnight.

The general committee was: John W. Ahearn, William H. Wall, Laurence Corridon, Charles O'Connor, Leonard Riley, Daniel Clancy,Timothy McCarthy, George Walsh, Thomas Connelly, Edward Maloney, Thomas Hayes, James P. Reilly, J. McCormack, John Shea, John Hart, Joseph De Cora, Edmund P. White, Joseph Brown, Frank Branley, Thomas J. Dalton, Louis Garrity.

BRAINTREE POINT

—The Braintree Point Welfare club held a meeting of the executive board in the club rooms on the evening of March 6. There will be some important announcements to make in connection with this meeting. The next regular meeting of the club will be held on March 12, in the club rooms.

—The club was represented at a meeting of the recreation and playground association Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. R. B. Woodsum in Braintree.

—There was an open meeting of the Braintree Point Women's club on the evening of March 4. W. J. Coggswell introduced Mr. Fisher, superintendent of the Braintree schools, who spoke on the school situation and problems in Braintree. The ladies of the entertainment committee served a delightful collation after the meeting.

GAS COMPANY DINNER

On Saturday, March 1, the Old Colony Gas Co. of East Braintree held their annual dinner and banquet in the dining room of Union church. Practically all of the employees were present, except those few who had to stand by at the works. There were 75 who sat down to a delicious turkey supper.

Among those present were: Mr. Farnsworth Sr., president, and Mrs. Farnsworth; P. M. Farnsworth Jr., vice-president and treasurer, and Mrs. Farnsworth; Howard B. Hall, office and sales manager, and Mrs. Hall; W. Webb, engineer and foreman at works and Mrs. Webb; W. Sullivan, foreman electricity department and Mrs. Sullivan.

During the supper which was very much enjoyed by all. Mr. Farnsworth Sr. led the community singing in his usual spirited fashion with Miss Margaret Hartrey at the piano. Mr. Farnsworth Jr. delivered a rousing address on the past success of the firm, giving the employees practically all the credit, and hoped to see them gaining greater results in 1924.

Mr. Farnsworth Sr. and Mr. Webb also gave humorous speeches during the supper.

Immediately after supper a group of songs, sketches, readings, and blind fold boxing was enjoyed by those present.

Much credit is due to Miss Hartrey, who coached the men in their different songs and choruses. Also to Miss Diak, who drilled the girls in the "Toy Soldiers March".

Throughout the entire evening P. M. Farnsworth Jr. was the life and soul of the entire party.

CLAPP COMPANY GETAWAY

The new auditorium at the factory of Edwin Clapp & Son, Inc., East Weymouth, was the scene of a brilliant gathering last week when the salesmen, executives, and heads of departments met for the semi-annual "getaway" dinner given in honor of the salesmen. The speakers Thursday evening were: Treasurer Horace R. Drinkwaer, Arthur C. Davenport of the Shoe & Leather Reporter, Henry Malloy of the Shoe Retailer, Arthur D. Anderson of the Boot & Shoe Recorder, J. Charles Hauser and Hon. Charles J. Fox. About fifty were present.

SOCIAL CLUB SUPPER

The social club of the Union church held their regular monthly supper on Wednesday evening. A very delicious roast pork supper was served by a special committee of the Men's Club. The largest group of the season attended; 130 having sat down to supper. The evening's entertainment was also in charge of a special committee of the Men's Club and was a most unusual and interesting affair. It took the form of a series of contests to see if the ladies or the men were superior in all things. Mrs. George D. Bullock, president of the Social Club, was captain of the ladies' teams and Chet Howe, president of the Men's Club, was captain of the men's teams.

The first contest was a vocal one; a quartet of the ladies, Mrs. P. R. Cook, Mrs. Francis A. Partridge, Mrs. South and Miss Ella Johnson, singing for the ladies. A quartet of the men, Harold South, David Rankin, Francis A. Partridge and Mr. Cox singing for the men. Both teams sang, "My Old Kentucky Home" and the ladies won.

An old fashioned spelling bee came next between two teams of four ladies and four men. Mrs. Crane, Mrs. Cassidy, Miss Roger Loud, and Miss Lillian Gross made up the ladies team. Deacon Crane, Ray Palmer, Rowland Reilly and Mr. Maud made up the men's team. The ladies again won this contest by quite a large margin.

The next contest was one of art. Two cartoons of P. R. Cook were drawn, one by Mrs. Walsh and one by Mr. Gross. Mr. Gross won this handily and it was the first one to be taken by the men.

The second art selection was a memory sketch of the front of Union church as viewed from the front steps. Mrs. E. R. Elliot drew one sketch and Mr. Justice drew the other. This contest came out rather closely, but Mr. Justice was judged the winner.

Another contest was a debate, "Resolved, that the Social Club wash all the dishes and table linen used by both clubs at their suppers". Mrs. Bullock on the affirmative and Chet Howe spoke on the negative. Mrs. Bullock scored another win for the ladies.

Another debate, "Resolved, that a man is more capable of doing a woman's work or a lady more capable of doing a man's work". Mrs. Chessman nailed a box together from a knocked down box, while Mr. Maud darned a pair of sox. Mrs. Chessman gave up the task to Mrs. Bullock, who completed the work about the same time that Mr. Maud finished the sox. The ladies managed to take this contest by quite a large margin.

The last contest was one of general knowledge between Mrs. Justice and Mr. Elliot. Mrs. Justic scored heavily here and won the last event for the ladies.

The ladies won for the evening with a grand total of 220 points, against 180 points for the men.

Much credit is due for the splendid program to Philip R. Cook who planned the details of all contests.

Jeremiah Doran, a resident of this town for many years, passed away at the Bridgewater State Hospital on Monday where he had been ill for several months. Funeral services were in charge of undertaker McDonald and the interment was in the Village cemetery at Weymouth.

—The engagement has been announced of Miss Edith Baldes of Cambridge to Alfred R. Thomas, son of Mrs. Anna Thomas of Central street. The wedding will take place next month.

WEYMOUTH

—Tree Warden Charles L. Merritt and his men, with gangs from the Electric Light, Telephone, and Street Railway companies, are taking down the two large elms on the west side of Washington Square. These trees are the last of what was at one time rows of elms on either side of the square. The oldest residents think that the trees are more than one hundred years old. It is a slow, tedious job as great care has to be taken that there are no slipups, which would mean perhaps a great deal of damage. The trees are being taken down with very little inconvenience to the store keepers or the public.

—The five children of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Longuemaire of Franklin street have all been ill with the mumps.

—William T. Fields, 59, of 59 Granite street, died at the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital Sunday. He is survived by his widow, a son and two daughters. The funeral took place from the Church of the Sacred Heart Tuesday morning. Interment was at St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

—Miss Helen Caulfield, soloist at the Church of the Sacred Heart, and an operator of the Weymouth telephone exchange, is home from the Weymouth hospital where she has been under treatment for the past three weeks following an operation for appendicitis.

—A daughter was born at the Weymouth hospital Feb. 29 to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Curry of Baker avenue.

—The parish of Trinity Episcopal church held a Leap Year party at Pythian hall Friday evening. Supper was served at 6.30, Mrs. Charles Beltring and Mrs. Thomas Paine on the committee, followed by the comedy, "A Business Meeting", with Mrs. A. Green, Mrs. Alice Northup, Mrs. Daisy Oakley, Mrs. Edith Forsythe, Mrs. Samuel Woods, Mrs. John Pflaumer, Mrs. Marguerite Wolfe, Mrs. Alice Sewall, Mrs. Eva Ells and Miss Elisabeth Hyde in the cast. Dancing till midnight.

—The Old Colony Gas Co. is enlarging their office building on the front to double the present floor space.

—The funeral of Thomas E. McCaffrey took place last Friday morning from the Church of the Sacred Heart. Rev. Fr. John B. Holland celebrated mass. The music was the church choir under the direction of the organist, Mrs. John Hanley. The bearers were: James Perrow, Henry Burke Charles White, George Smith, Dennis Cleary and Frank McGee. The interment was at St. Francis Xavier cemetery.

—Div. No. 6, A. O. H., Thomas Hayes president, is making extensive arrangements for its annual celebration of St. Patrick's night.

A Compliment

A Weymouth professional man, riding past the Rhines Lumber Company's yards on the 8 o'clock train, remarked:

"I always like to look out at those big, neat, clean piles of boards and timbers. Those fellows know how to handle lumber, don't they?" Thank you

CLUB and SOCIAL

—A mock wedding was a feature on Monday evening at the shower given to Miss Agnes Butler of Pleasant street, who will soon become the bride of John Keehan of Utica, N. Y. The cast included Miss Louise McDonald as the bride and Miss Elizabeth Connors as the bridegroom. Other parts were taken by Miss Helen Wendell, Miss Agnes Sullivan, Miss Helen Condrick and Miss Ruth McDonald. There were vocal selections by Miss Louise Cavanaugh and Miss Mary Ashton. Refreshments were served.

—The next regular meeting of the Old Colony club will be held at the Second Universalist church Thursday, March 13. Mr. Edwin M. Whitney will read, "Adam and Eva".

—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Saye MacNeil and daughter, Miss Arline, attended the dress rehearsal of "Adam and Eva", a sparkling three-act comedy, given at Music hall on Sunday afternoon. The play was given under the auspices of the dramatic and legislative committees of the Quincy Woman's club for the benefit of the building fund. Mrs. Beatrice Walker Nichols, legislative chairman, coached the play and extended a special invitation to several friends, connected with the club to attend the dress rehearsal.

—Miss Viola Gertrude Brown of Pond street, who is wintering in St. Petersburg, Fla., has given a number of concerts at the leading hotels, including the Suwannee, Gothan, Deermont, Alexander and Park, to a large and appreciative audience, Miss Brown is assisted by Miss Marie Hogan of St. Petersburg, a young pianist of much promise, both as soloist and accompanist.

—The D. G. Whist club was entertained Monday evening by Miss Loretta Looney of Raymond street. The souvenirs went to Miss Alice Ashton, Miss Looney, Miss Elizabeth Cullen and Mrs. Annie Slattery.

—The monthly meeting of Mayflower chapter, O. E. S., was held in Masonic templ. Tuesday evening. Supper was served by Mrs. Margaret Higgins and a corps of assistants. After the business meeting a snipping party was held in the banquet hall under the direction of the Star Points.

—The Betty Alden club enjoyed a dinner and theatre party in Boston on Tuesday evening.

—Sixteen comrades attended the semi-monthly meeting of Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R. Tuesday afternoon. Commander Bicknell presided at the business meeting, favorable reports were received from Comrade William H. Moran, who is ill at the Soldiers Home. Comrade Turner entertained with two poems "All" and "Little Graffin of Tennessee" and Comrade Hawes recited "A Winter Buffalo Hunt". The ladies of the allied orders served refreshments.

—Mrs. Eva Benson of Leominster has been the guest of Miss Hannah Barnes of Columbian street.

—Weymouth Circle, Daughters of Isabella, held a well attended meeting in K. of C. hall Tuesday evening, the regent, Miss Elizabeth Fahie, presided at the business session. Plans were made by the entertainment committee for a mystery whist at the next social March 18.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nash of Thomas Corner entertained a party of relatives and friends at dinner on Saturday evening. The affair was in honor of the birthday anniversary of their daughter, Mrs. Agnes Abbott of East Weymouth. After dinner, whist, dancing and music was enjoyed till a late hour.

MONDAY CLUB

The regular meeting of the Monday club was held this week, President Mrs. Jewell presiding. A number of very important matters were considered and reports received. Among these was the report on the Federation legislative meeting. The club voted to endorse the resolution to be presented to Congressmen urging the increase in the remuneration of postal employees.

The nominating committee was selected as follows: Mrs. Leon Dideon chairman, Mrs. J. D. Bosworth, Mrs. James Ford, Miss Rolfe, Mrs. Leighton. Also it was decided that the proceeds from the annual dramatics be used for the benefit of the scholarship fund.

For the music lovers of the club, which means practically every member, another treat was in store in the program given by Mrs. Julia Ritter McCormick of Taunton. This "lecture song recital" was most instructive for Mrs. McCormick gave interesting information about her groups of songs, which includes songs from Latin America, frontier ballads, plantation melodies and Indian melodies. The artist was accompanied by her husband and the entire program was delightful indeed.

An interesting feature also of the afternoon was a carefully prepared current events paper by Miss Orely Melville.

On account of school vacation the meeting scheduled for April 7 will be postponed to April 14, this being children's afternoon. It will be held in Masonic Temple.

Birthdays of Weymouth People and Persons Notable in History — Anniversaries of Great Events Recalled.

Prepared especially for the Gazette Transcript

Life is a constant readjustment. It requires a daily renewal of one's faith and then a return to the tasks, the struggles, which at times well-nigh weigh us down. It means repeated failure. It means a thorough test of all that is in us.—Horatio W. Dresser.

The "Birthday" department is continued today, and will be a regular weekly feature. It includes the birthdays of Weymouth people and persons noted in State and National affairs; also dates of great disasters, conflagrations and other events in history for the coming week:

March 9, 1862—Monitor and Merrimac engagement
March 9, ———Mrs. W. D. Carr born
March 10, 1839—Morallus Lane, G. A. R., born
March 10, 1898—William R. Brown, W. W., born
March 10, 1810—Sir Samuel Ferguson, lawyer and poet, born in Belfast
March 11, 1837—Howard M. Dow born
March 11, 1914—Judge A. Cook elected representative to Weymouth, England
March 12, 1850—R. Wallace Hunt born
March 12, 1806—June Appleton (Pierce) born
March 12—1898—The battleship Oregon sailed from San Francisco to join Atlantic Squadron, S. W.
March 12, 1828—Edward Avery born at Marblehead
March 13, 1798—Abigail Power (Filmore) born
March 13, 1840—Rev. William C. Gannett, religious writer, born in Boston

March 15, 1767—President Andrew Jackson born
March 15, ———Rufus Bates born

In the list above where only a person's name appears it is a birth day. The following abbreviations are used: G. A. R. for member Grand Army; W. W. for World War Veteran; S. W., for Spanish War Veteran; C. W. for Civil War; P. W. for President's Wife; R. W. for Revolutionary War.

The SECURITY BROTHERS are working for me

Mr. W. S. SECURITY
(Windstorm)

You may say "Now let the winds blow!"
You might as well say it, for they will blow any way and if any of your buildings are in their path there may be heavy destruction. However, if you are wise, you already have engaged this useful brother and now you will merely turn to him and say: "Get busy, W. S., and make good my damage." Thereupon, he will act swiftly and well. Your improvident neighbors will wish that they, too, had the assistance of W. S. SECURITY.

"Made to Walk on"

Johnson's Floor Varnish is unexcelled for soft and hardwood floors, linoleum and oilcloth. It gives a beautiful, high lustre—is very easy to apply and has good body. Dries dust free in two hours and hard overnight. Has great elasticity—is absolutely waterproof and very pale in color. Will stand all reasonable tests.

JOHNSON'S FLOOR VARNISH

Johnson's Floor Varnish is tough and durable. It gives a beautiful, high gloss which will not chip, check, mar, blister or scratch white. Johnson's Floor Varnish is splendid for use on tables, chairs, wood-work, trim, etc. It will rejuvenate the whole interior of your home. Johnson's Floor Varnish is of the same high quality as Johnson's Floor Wax.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

—Miss Bernice Baldwin, '26, who is recuperating after a long illness, was visiting school Monday.

—Miss Elizabeth Bowdin, '26, is confined to her home with illness.

—Miss Alice Shields, '26, has returned to school after a week's absence.

—Miss Mae Guertin, '26, is confined to her home with illness.

—Cards have been received from Miss Marjorie Belcher, '26, who is now in St. Petersburg, Florida.

—The last home basketball game was played Friday. The last game of the season will be played Friday night at Revere.

—Everett Price of '27 is confined to his home with the mumps.

—The following attended the game at Somerville Tuesday afternoon: Ellen Danielson, Louise Hawes, Dorothy Blackwell, Mabel Henley and Harvey Belcher.

—The Weymouth High basketball team defeated the North Easton freshman five 28—27 in a thrilling game at the Clapp Memorial gym last Friday night. At the end of the first half North Easton led 10—8. The outlook at the beginning of the last quarter was indeed dark for the local boys. With the score 27—12 against them it looked like a sure defeat. Almost running their opponents off their feet by their fine passwork and shooting our boys shot basket after basket until 30 seconds before the end of the game. Madigan dropped in a neat double counter making the score 28—27. Referee, Clarke. Timekeeper, Lyons.

WEYMOUTH HEIGHTS

—The Christian Endeavorers of Weymouth Heights held a Leap Year party in the First Church chapel last Saturday evening. A jolly program of games was indulged in. Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening spent by all.

—The Woman's Missionary Society held a meeting with Mrs. Charles M. Taylor Wednesday.

—The Weymouth Heights Girls club will meet to sew with Miss Isabel Jones next Monday evening.

—Vote for H. Franklin Perry for Selectman and Overseer of the Poor from Ward 3, Republican and Non-Partisan nominee. Election Monday, March 10, 1924. A. Parker Bates, 15 Phillips St., Weymouth.—Advertisement.

—Mrs. Roy Bickford was hostess to the H. G. L. club Monday evening. Whist was the feature of the evening, the first prize being taken by Mrs. William Dacy, the second by Mrs. Clarence Pratt, the third by Mrs. Hager and the consolation by Mrs. Mullen. Refreshments were served and a jolly evening spent.

—Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hanscom, formerly of this place, have left Baltimore, Md., where they have been for a month and are now in Washington, D. C.

—Miss Dorothy Mudgett, who has been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lunt of Church street, has now taken up her residence with Mrs. Florence Mayo of Church street.

Norfolk, ss.

At a Probate Court holden at Brookline in and for said Norfolk, on the twenty-seventh day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

On the petition of Herbert P. Knecht, of Weymouth, in said County, praying that his name may be changed to that of Herbert P. Crooker, public notice having been given, according to the order of Court, that all persons might appear and show cause, if any they had, why the same should not be granted, and it appearing that the reasons given therefor are sufficient, and consistent with the public interest, and being satisfactory to the Court, and no objection being made.

It is decreed that his name be changed, as prayed for, to that of Herbert P. Crooker, which name he shall hereafter bear, and which shall be his legal name, that he give public notice of said change by publishing this decree once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Weymouth Gazette and Transcript, a newspaper published in said Weymouth, and make return to this Court under oath that such notice has been given.

JOSEPH R. McCOOLE,
Judge of Probate Court.

It's hard on the walls when boys "wash up"

Walls and woodwork painted witl Barreled Sunlight can be washed like tile

GETTING clean is a strange and violent process with boys—and even with many grown-ups. And how that bathroom is apt to look when the "washing up" is completed! Smudgy fingermarks, soapy water, lather everywhere!

Ordinary paints have a surface that is not really mooth but is actually rough and porous—full of tiny holes and crevices in which dirt is bound to cling Barreled Sunlight is made by a special proces which produces a smooth, lustrous surface that can be washed like tile. Costs less than enamel, requires fewer coats and is much easier to apply. It is the whitest white imaginable—and guaranteed to remain white longest.

For every interior where light and cleanliness are desired—use Barreled Sunlight. Comes ready mixed. Is easily tinted where color is wante

SPECIAL LENTEN PROGRAM

The Lenten season will be observed at the Second Universalist church of South Weymouth with special inspirational addresses given every Sunday evening at 7.30 o'clock throughout the forty days.

Men prominent in the Christian church are to give these addresses and on Sunday evening, March 9, the opening Lenten service will be observed. Rev. Lee Sullivan McCollister, D. D., dean of Crane Theological school, Tufts college, will be the speaker upon this occasion. Dr. McCollister has won great renown during his enviable period of service as a man of great capabilities as a preacher, pastor, educator and church administrator. The public is cordially invited to attend these meetings.

A special musical program is being arranged for each evening service. On Sunday evening, March 9, the soloist will be Miss Barbara Cole, soprano,

BASKET BALL AND OTHER SPORTS

VICTORY FOR COLLEGIANS

In a Mayflower league contest played under Marquis of Queensbury rules the Weymouth Collegians defeated the West Bridgewater town team Friday in Bates Opera House. Both teams played a hard, rough game. Slattery as usual led the home players in scoring with 9 points. Dugan and Coffey were close behind with 8 and 7 apiece. Gunville netted three nice baskets. Coyle put in a tough evening against Barker, the visitors' star performer.

HOME GAME TONIGHT

The Collegians play Carver Legion tonight on the home floor. Weymouth fans will have an opportunity to see the fast travelling league leaders in action. The local Mayflower league representatives gave the cranberry growers a hard tussle last week on their home floor. This game should be as good an attraction as the main attraction with Bill Sheilds' outfit favored to win by a small margin.

The league schedule for the remainder of the year has been completed, Weymouth is slated to play on the following dates:

March 7—Carver at Weymouth
March 12—Okos at Brockton
March 21—E. Bridgewater at Wey'th
March 28—W. Bridgewater at Wey'th
April 4—Battery E at Brockton

WEYMOUTH 27, ST. MARY'S 13

Weymouth decisively trimmed St. Mary's in a South Shore league game played at Bates Opera House on Friday evening. The result materially lessened the Cambridge lads' chances of winning the championship in the second half.

There was nothing to the first half but Weymouth, they scoring twelve points while the visitors were held to a couple of fouls. "Fiddle" Morley played in Barrett's position and did well in this period.

The Saints gathered a few more points in the second period, but were again outscored 15—11. Sullivan was hurt and retired from the floor in this frame, Budreau taking his place.

Gannon excelled for the winners, hooping four twin counters and a couple of fouls for his share of the score. Fitts outjumped Connors all the way. Curtin and Sheilds both played well. Kelley and Kiley did best for the visitors.

SOUTH SHORE LEAGUE

Gannon and Reardon lead in individual scoring as will be seen by the league standing:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
Okos	6	2	.750
St. Mary's	5	3	.625
Y. M. H. A.	3	4	.429
Rockland	3	4	.429
Weymouth	3	5	.375
Randolph	2	4	.333

Weymouth still remains in next to last position in the South Shore league race with a good opportunity to advance their standing this week at Rockland's expense. The local team has two league games scheduled for the week, entertaining Rockland at Bates Opera House this evening and playing the Y. M. H. A. of Brockton at Music hall in that city tomorrow night. Both games should be hummers, with the Friday game with Rockland the big attraction with local court fans. According to Manager McGrory, Joe Mahoney is expected to appear in the lineup tonight, Weymouth's chances to cop both contests of the week are much improved by the return of this sterling player.

Gannon of Weymouth is tied with Reardon of the Okos for the lead in individual scoring. After a slow start Gannon has slowly, but surely gained in point getting; he now leads the field with baskets from the floor with 26. Roscoe Fitts stands sixth on the list with 41 points, Bill Barrett is close on his heels with 40.

Kiley of St. Mary's leads the foul shooters with 17. Reardon is second with 14, Hurtwitz, Barrett and Heal follow in the order named with 12, 10 and 10 respectively.

AMERICAN LEGION

The regular March meeting of the Post was held Tuesday evening, at the factory of the Stetson Shoe Company, South Weymouth. It was one of the very best meetings the post has ever had. Over fifty members were present, a large number of whom were new Legionnaires. Commander Johnson was in the chair, and delivered an address of welcome that was in a class by itself. He told how glad the Post was to welcome the new faces and that with its increased membership the Post would be in a position to do considerable good work.

There was much business transacted but the most important of all was the progress of the Membership Drive.

This drive is still on, and it will stay on until every possible new member has been secured. The chairman of the committee, Stanley Heald, read a report that showed the success of the drive. It also showed us that Weymouth Post has a fighting chance of becoming the first Post in the State in percentage, that is the Post will have the largest membership in relation to the possibilities.

Now, all you fellows who are reading this and who are Legionnaires, can buckle down and secure new members, either bring in those who are in arrears in their dues, or sign up a new one. And you fellows who are not Legionnaires yet, just think the thing over in your mind, and when you are approached by a Legionnaire, say Yes, and make us all happy.

It was certainly surprising to the membership committee to find out how easily most men came into the Post. In almost every instance the man had never joined the Legion because he hadn't thought about it, he did not know just what it meant, but when it was explained to him, he came over with a bang,- with his dues,- so that the captains of the teams all had mighty good progress to report.

Remember this, all you good people who are reading this,- the Post is going to put this drive over big, bigger than has ever been done before, and it is going to make Weymouth Post No. 79, the Best Post n the State. Let's go!

Now that that has been taken care of, and we have secured the coveted position as the best Post in the State, lets go a little further and talk over our plans for making the Post meetings interesting to the new members.

The next meetng will be a social one, the date is not set yet because the committee is working up something big and wants plenty of time.

The Legion, like all other big organizations, has a new ritual. You know a ritual is one of those things that tells you how, why, and when to do certain things. Now this ritual contains a mighty interesting initiation ceremony, which we are going to try out at the next social meeting.

The official title of the next meeting is, "Weymouth Post No. 79, American Legion, initiation ceremonies and father's night".

A former member of our Post and an old Weymouth boy, Comrade Lawrence (Pat) Nugent, has risen to the commandership of Somerville Post. Pat has a mighty snappy initiation team in his Post, and he has offered to come to Weymouth and initiate our new members. So we will have real honest-to-goodness services, and it will be well worth the time of every member to be present.

Now about father's night, which will be in combination with the initiation. We can't say much about this end of the meeting yet, the committee has that in hand, but we know that it will be good, and urge each and every member to come and bring the dad. The date will be announced later.

Well, we've got another new officer. Feeling the need of having two assistants, Commander Johnson has been given a second vice-commander, to which office Comrade Albert Humphrey of East Weymouth was elected last Tuesday night. Second Vice Commander Humphrey's duties will be assist First Vice Commander Henry Cote in his work, and also to carry out a certain part of the initiation ceremony.

Before quitting there's one other thing that should be mentioned in this column. That is the Citizen's Military Training Camp at Camp Devens next summer. The Legion has been given the job of furnishing the personnel,—that is the boys who participate in this training are selected by the Legion. Weymouth Post wants to send as many young fellows to Devens as is possible and if any of the readers of this column are interested, Comrade Bryan Leonard, chairman of the Norfolk County council of the American Legion, will gladly give such information as is needed.

This military training camp is a mighty good thing, and is one that should receive the full support of every red-blooded American citizen. More of this will be published later.

As a last word,—This Post is going to be the best in the State! Don't forget that!

GEM THEATRE

Gloria Swanson in "The Humming Bird" at the Gem Saturday is a saucy, breezy French girl raised as a thief and leader of a gang of Apache cut throats in the slums of Paris, who is regenerated through her love for a young American millionaire. The Apache quarters of Paris, Gloria's daring Apache dance, French dives and underworld characters make this a most thrilling and interesting picture.

The five-gallon sombrero that Holbrook Blinn wears in "The Bad Man" at the Gem Sunday is the only real, pure unadulterated Mexican sombrero in all of California.

"The Meanest Man in the World" playing Wednesday at the Gem is a picture very true to life. He was the meanest man, until a girl came along and then all things different.

Few, if any, pictures which have been shown at the Gem theatre have been more enthusiastically received by the public than "Scaramouche". The patrons showed much enthusiasm not only for the picture, but the music which was beautifully rendered by the pianist and a young violinist.

Don't Pay $1,000 or More for a car, without knowing what the leader offers in the fine-car field

WE made a canvass of many who bought rivals of Studebakers. We said, "Tell us why you liked your car the better."

The majority said, "We did not even look at the Studebaker." Most of them bought new models of the car they owned before.

Yet Studebaker is a leader in the fine-car field today. Studebaker builds more quality cars than any other plant in the world.

Studebaker is the sensation of modern Motordom. Its amazing growth signifies a new situation in this field.

Last year, 145,167 fine-car buyers paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars. Nearly three times as many as in 1920.

Is it fair to yourself—or fair to us—not to learn the reasons for this trend?

Facts to consider

Studebaker assets are $90,000,000 — all staked on satisfying, better than others, buyers of high-grade cars.

Over 23,000 men have their future at stake on giving you maximum values.

$50,000,000 in modern plants and equipment, of which $32,000,000 has been added during the past five years.

$10,000,000 in body plants to give you superlative beauty. To give that final touch for which Studebakers have been famous for decades.

125 experts who devote their whole time to studying betterments. Who make 500,000 tests per year to maintain our supremacy.

Consider Studebaker history. For 72 years this concern has stood for high principles and policies.

For two generations, against all the world, it held first place in horse-drawn vehicles.

Now for years its name and fame have been committed to like attainments in fine motor cars.

If you only knew

There is no room here for details and comparisons. You will find them all in Studebaker showrooms. But let us cite some significant facts.

That lack of vibration, so conspicuous in Studebakers, costs us $600,000 yearly in extra machining of crank shafts.

That matchless strength in vital parts comes from the costliest steels. For some we add 15% to the quoted price to get exactness in them.

That Chase Mohair, used in our closed cars, is made from the soft fleece of Angora goats. Cotton or ordinary wool, or a combination of both, could reduce our price $100 to $150 per car, but it would sacrifice Studebaker quality.

Note the bumpers, the steel trunk, the extra cord tires, the motometer, the courtesy light on some models. Figure what they would cost as extras.

The infinite care

We use 35 formulas for steel, each worked out to exactness for supreme service in its place.

We employ 1,200 inspectors to make 30,000 inspections of the material and workmanship in each Studebaker car — before it leaves the factory.

Consider how Studebaker has always led in the building of high-grade cars. We were first to use cord tires as standard equipment. We were the first quantity manufacturers to build bodies of the highest grade.

If you want beauty, fine upholstery, rich finish and equipment, consider that Studebaker has had more experience in fine coach building than any other motor car maker.

Our place no accident

The pedestal place which Studebaker holds in the fine-car field is not the result of accident. It comes from principles as old as this business—the ceaseless and determined ambition to excel.

Learn the result of these efforts. Compare detail by detail, part by part, with any car you wish. When you foot the advantages, you will find that they number scores.

These are facts you should know. They are inducing 150,000 per year to choose Studebaker cars.

Some sell at $1,045. Some meet with every requirement in size and power and luxury. But the chassis are all alike, save in size. The same steels, the same standards throughout. Every important Studebaker part represents the best we know.

People have learned these facts—hundreds of thousands of them. The demand for Studebakers has almost trebled in three years. It has become overwhelming, even for our facilities.

Investigate the reasons. You will find them by the scores. Then, if you choose a rival car, we shall have nothing more to say.

See the Studebakers

Studebaker builds more fine cars than any other plant in the world.

Last year 145,167 wise motor car buyers paid $201,000,000 for Studebakers.

The demand has almost trebled in the past three years. Studebaker now holds a leading place in the high-grade field.

Our modern plants and their equipment cost $50,000,000. All to give you the maximum value at the minimum of cost.

TAX RATE OF $25

town for work done on Suwanee road, under the betterment act, as was also Taylor street to be known as Shaw road, sum of $300 being voted for the last named.

Commander Irving H. Johnson of the American Legion secured an increase of $100 for Memorial Day for the Post and the Legion.

No action was recommended relative to the collection of garbage under Act. 78, but the subject was referred to a committee to be appointed by the Moderator.

There was not a yip under Art. 80 relative to licensing Sunday movies and no action was taken.

Under Art. 81 a committee of five was voted to investigate gas and electricity rates in Weymouth.

No Valuation Book

Under Art. 82 the committee recommended no action relative to printing a Valuation Book, saying the amount mentioned in the Article, $1000, was far too small to accomplish the result.

John H. Tobin, who petitioned to have the Article put in the Warrant, argued in favor of the appropriation. He knew the printing could be done for $1000. At the hearing by the Appropriation Committee there was no opposition. It was 21 years since a Valuation Book was printed in Weymouth, but some towns included such a report every year. He knew property which is assessed for about $2500 that is mortgaged for $8000.

J. Leonard Bicknell of the committee said no secret meetings had been held; that anyone could appear at any meeting held. He claimed the publication would benefit only the real estate men.

Chairman John F. Dwyer of the Board of Assessors said he was born in Weymouth, and always tried to keep down town expenses. Publication would benefit only a few. No member of the Assessors objected.

The valuation as printed by any printer, he said, cannot be printed accurately and fairly. This was attempted by the editor of the Gazette —the man sitting in the second seat there; misleading to you and every citizen in this town. Could cite you cases all night which are clear cases of misrepresentation. For instance in Washington Square the F. L. Hobart property; building covers entire lot; the editor of the Gazette in printing that in the paper endeavored from the valuation of that lot assessed say fifty cents per foot, to make it appear to the people unfair in connection with the bank property on the opposite corner. The bank lot contains only a small portion which can be used for any purpose; there is a stream running through; editor took that whole piece and divided the area and figured per foot and published. These are the ways that such a book would actually give misinformation to the taxpayers of this town. I don't know whether it is generally known that the Assessors are not subject to the people of the town; that after election they become State officers; but they are willing to do whatever is suggested or needed. As regards the cost of printing, we have had some experience; we have a poll tax book; the printing of that book, which is a small one, costs some $1000. I want to say right here the proposed book cannot be done for $2500. If the town wants to spend that, I don't object.

The editor of the Gazette and Transcript claims no attempt at misrepresentation was made in the publication of the assessed valuations; that the areas and valuations were taken from the Assessors' Books; that some comparisons were made, BUT NO COMMENTS, allowing readers to draw their own conclusions from the Assessors' figures. The editor of the Gazette and Transcript accepts the challenge and will make further answer to Mr. Dwyer next week, claiming the town would save money, or increase its revenue, if a Valuation Book was printed; that is, if the Assessors were guided by the information which they would receive following publication.

Mr. Tobin, who is not a town meeting member, attempted to answer Mr. Dwyer, but was ruled out by the Moderator.

George Cunniff thought it a deplorable spectacle that taxpayers could not be heard. Before the Limited Town Meeting Act was adopted voters were told that they would have the privileges of the floor at all town meetings but without the right to vote. He moved that all voters be allowed to debate articles under consideration. (Applause.

Allan C. Emery thought it would be a mistake to allow everybody to talk, when they had delegated that duty to Town Meeting Members.

Representative Tirrell, who was prominent in putting through the Act for Limited Town Meetings, said it was contemplated that all citizens could address the town meetngs.

Town Counsel Holbrook quoted from the Act, and said citizens could debate but not vote, subject to rules of the Limited Town Meeting.

Mr. Cunniff's motion to grant freedom of the floor prevailed.

Mr. Tobin did not attempt to debate the Article further.

No action was taken under the Article.

Blanket Insurance

A new departure was made by the town under Art. 83, when $8000 was voted for insurance of all town buildings by a so-called blanket policy.

Mr. Sheehy hoped it would not be done haphazard.

The committee replied that it would not be done haphazard: that the step was well considered and meant a saving to the town.

No action was taken under Art. 84 relative to revenue from sale of Town Histories.

Building Laws

Mr. Robinson reported a draft of building laws which he moved be adopted.

Mr. Cate asked if it was not necessary first to publish in detail in the Town Warrant.

Town Counsel Holbrook ruled that it was.

Mr. Robinson said that was not the case when an amendment to by-laws was adopted a few years ago.

Moderator ruled illegal because not published.

F. A. Pray thought as drawn the Building Laws would be very desirable; no inspection was contemplated.

Motion to adopt lost.

J. E. Mulligan opposed indefinite postponement and another member said insurance rates were affected by absence of building laws.

Mr. Robinson said only simple rules were wanted.

Frank Loud moved to recommit to same committee. Voted.

Under Art. 87 voted to waive provisions in will of Helen M. Rhines, and accept proposals of Mrs. Laura F. Knapp and Mrs. Mary L. Nelson, heirs at law.

Under Art. 88, Alfred Sheehy moved that report of committee relative to memorials to veterans of all wars, as printed in the Town Report be adopted, and the committee continued.

Mr. Reed thought this too sweeping and might commit the town to certain projects; was a large order.

Herbert Rockwood explained section two.

Section one was adopted and committee continued.

Under Art. 89, on motion of Mr. Rea a committee was appointed to consider bathing at Whitman's pond.

New Committees

The Moderator appointed the following members of the Electric Light Committee: J. Herbert Libby, Joseph A. Fern, Joseph Kelley, Alfred S. Tirrell and Matthew O'Dowd.

The Moderator appointed the following members of the Appropriation Committee for 3 years: C. Edgar Stiles, William A. Earle, Joseph Kelley, Jacob Wichert and Daniel Ashley.

The following were appointed on the Planning Board for 3 years—Sidney G. Dunbar, George M. Keene, Wallace H. Bicknell, John Reidy and Matthew R. Loud.

Adjourned sine die at 11.05, all the 90 articles in the warrant having received attention in two hours and 20 minutes.

Selectman Dasha Gets a Surprise

From High Man in 1923 to Low Man in 1924--Good Run by Whelan

The surprises of the Annual Town Election of Monday were the large votes for H. Franklin Perry and John B. Whelan, both of Precinct 3 and the low vote for William B. Dasha of Precinct 1, for Selectmen.

Last year Mr. Dasha was high man, but this year he was the lowest of the quintette elected. The total vote of Weymouth was 2906 and Mr. Dasha's vote of 1148 was less than a majority.

The totals for all candidates for Selectmen out of a total of 2906 were:

W. M. TIRRELL	1506
T. L. TIRRELL	1482
H. F. PERRY	1458
F. E. WAITE	1456
W. B. DASHA	1148
J. B. WHELAN	1119
E. P. McNAMARA	644
R. S. MILLS	570
Blanks	5147

The vote by precincts for each candidate will be found on page nine, second section.

In 1923-24, Precinct 3 was without a representative on the Board of Selectmen, but this week it came very near electing TWO. Mr. Perry was a good third and Mr. Whelan came within 30 of defeating Mr. Dasha. It was really Precinct 3 that defeated Mr. Whelan and elected Mr. Dasha, as the latter received 162 more votes in this precinct than last year.

There certainly was freak voting in Precinct 3. On an average the voters there voted for only three candidates out of possible five. Of course many voted for five, while hundreds voted for only one or two as there were 1903 blanks. The only candidate to receive a majority of the votes in Precinct 3 was Mr. Perry with 519 out of a total of 813. Mr. Whelan was sec-

SELECTMEN ORGANIZE

The newly elected Board of Selectmen met Tuesday morning and organized as last year with Theron L. Tirrell as chairman and Winslow M. Tirrell as secretary. The only business was the approval of notes to the amount of $100,000 in anticipation of revenue.

Gazette Replies to Assessor Dwyer

Why so personal, Assessor Dwyer?

Why reference to the Editor of the Gazette at Town Meeting instead of to the Gazette-Transcript as a paper? How do you refer to articles in the Herald and Globe?

Would you like to be held responsible personally for coal alleged to be inferior sold by the firm for which you work?

Why tell the voters just what seat the editor of the Gazette-Transcript occupies at Town Meeting?

But the editor does not shirk the responsibility of what appears in the paper, although he writes but a small part of it.

Assessor Dwyer overlooked a very important paragraph which appeared in the introductory story. Concerning assessed valuations of land as printed; it read as follows, and was reprinted several times:

"By taking lots as located on the street, in regular rotation, an opportunity is given for comparison, BUT ONE SHOULD BE FAMILIAR WITH THE LOCATION AND THE CHARACTER OF THE LAND BEFORE PASSING JUDGMENT."

That is to say, whether it is a large lot or a small lot; whether it is high and dry, or low and swampy; whether it is built upon or developed; whether it is in the business section or on a residential street, etc., etc.

Here is a reprint from the Weymouth Gazette-Transcript of March 23, 1923:

"A comparison of assessed land values is always of interest, but all attempts in recent years to have a "Valuation Book" printed have been defeated.

"This week the Gazette-Transcript begins the publication of land values in the business centers of the town, PRESENTING THE FACTS WITHOUT COMMENT.

"First—Broad street, East Weymouth
"Second—Washington Square
"Third—Columbian Square, South Weymouth
"Fourth—Thomas Corner
"Fifth—Central Square
"Sixth—Front street near Washngton Square
"Seventh—Independence Square
"Eighth—Weymouth Heights

"By taking lots as located on the street in regular rotation an excellent opportunity is given for comparison, BUT ONE SHOULD BE FAMILIAR WITH THE LOCATION AND THE CHARACTER OF THE LAND BEFORE PASSING JUDGMENT."

THE STREETS AFTER THE STORM

Superintendent of streets Johnson had the street promptly opened for travel after the severe storm, and yesterday the surplus snow was removed from the public squares and business streets, like Jackson Square, Broad street, Washington Square, Lincoln Square, Columbian Square, and Thomas' Corner.

ELECTION RETURNS

Again Precinct Three was the last precinct to report the election returns, about 2 A. M., but then the vote of Precinct Three was unusually large.

AUTOISTS PAID $1775

The District court records at Quincy show that 24 autoists arrested in Weymouth in 1923 contributed $1775 in fines to the court.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank the Voters of the town for the magnificent vote received at the Town Election. I fully appreciate the honor of carrying my home ward, 519 to 374 over my opponent, and also the fact that I carried every ward in the town, and intend to perform the duties of the office to the best of my ability, without fear of favor. Having made no promises, I am in a position to do, in every case, what I think to be for the best interests of all the people of the town.

Very respectfully,
H. FRANKLIN PERRY

BLUE MONDAY?
One Dollar Will Change The Color!

Like the youngster hesitating on the springboard because the water's c-o-o-o-ld, so you've been stuttering along trying to dig up courage enough to save just a bit of each week's pay check.

Monday Morning--blue Monday again--and most of Saturday's dollars gone the way of last week's and the many many weeks before that.

Just a single dollar bill would have pried open the lid and started you on the road to a real future.

This Bank is glad to help you. It accepts accounts as little as one dollar simply to help you "get the habit".

STATE FEDERATION NOTES

Mrs. Edward MacDowell, the widow of the great composer, is so deeply in the memorial to Mrs. George Minot Baker, which is called the "Marion Chase Baker Fellowship" and is for the MacDowell colony in Peterborough N. H., that she has offered her services for benefit recitals to increase the fund, later in the season anywhere in Massachusetts.

By invitation of the Newton Centre Woman's club the spring presidents' conference will be held in the clubhouse corner of Centre street and Institution avenue, Newton Centre, on Wednesday at 10.30 A. M., April 9.

A prize of $50 will be offered by the General Federation press and publicity department for the best advance story of a club event written by a club woman and published in a newspaper, contest to close May 1 and the winner to be announced at the Los Angeles biennial.

The story must be from 300 to 700 words long; the event must occur within the state; a clipping must be sent with name and date of publication, name and address of the author, these to be endorsed by the club of which the writer is a member. These must be sent to Mrs. McCord Roberts, 75 Montgomery Ferry drive, Atlanta, Ga., before May 1.

No one contends that two lots side by side should be taxed the same price per foot unless the conditions are the same; same area, same frontage, same kind of land, etc. It was for this reason that the Gazette-Transcript printed the area as well as the valuation and cautioned readers that they "should be familiar with the location and the character of the land before passing judgment."

Not once, during the publication of assessed valuations, did the Gazette-Transcript say, that any lot of land was assessed too high or too low. The paper very carefully presented the facts—the owner, the area, the assessed valuation and the price per foot, and allowed readers to pass judgment. THERE WAS NO ATTEMPT OR DESIRE TO MISREPRESENT.

Assessor Dwyer takes exception to what was printed about two corner lots in his ward, in Washington Square. Let us reprint the figures for 1922 and comparisons relative to the west side of Washington street and a portion of Front street:

WASHINGTON STREET

	Square Feet	Value	Buildings
Louis F. Bates (half lot)	4,000	$1,800	$4,200
Annie E. Richards	10,600	4,500	6,500
G. R. Kempl	2,318	1,500	3,300
J. H. Pierce	2,714	1,400	1,950
F. S. Hobart	2,200	1,300	4,200
Weymouth Savings Bank	27,288	4,100	5,050
Weymouth Savings Bank	2,570	1,150	7,350
Clara F. Smith	5,100	1,200	3,700
W. H. Cowing	2,800	500	2,500
FRONT STREET
Estate James H. Flint	21,300	2,000	—
Estate James H. Flint	23,931	2,500	6,500
Susan R. Worthen	26,000	2,200	8,100
Emma P. Clapp	26,000	2,100	6,400
Emma P. Clapp	18,000	1,300	2,500

This is what the Gazette-Transcript said relative to the above valuations; just a plain statement of facts without comment or misrepresentation:

"Beginning again at the Braintree line on the west side of Washington street, that part of the Bates lot with stores which is in Weymouth, is valued at 45 cents per foot; and the Richards lot with stores at 43 cents.

"Then the Kempl drug store lot at 65 cents; the Pierce lot since sold to the Weymouth Savings Bank, at 52 cents.

"The Weymouth Savings Bank lot taxed at the corner of Front street included the old drug store and the house on Front street and was assessed at 15 cents.

"Across Front street the Hobart store lot is valued at 60 cents; the bank lot at 44 cents; the Smith store lot at 23 cents; the Cowing store lot at 18 cents.

"The vacant Flint lot on Front street is assessed at 9 cents, the Flint homestead lot at less than 10, the Worthen homestead lot at less than 9, both lots of Emma P. Clapp at 8 cents, and the Charles A. Clapp at less than 7.

The Weymouth Savings Bank regarded the corner opposite the Hobart corner so favorably that they have since erected a handsome $75,000 bank building thereon, making the front part of said lot more valuable per square foot than the Hobart lot.

The lot on Front street immediately adjoining the Hobart lot, has been recently sold to Trinity Parish Church for about $2500 or more, which was in excess of the assessed valuation. Mr. Reader, what is the proper valuation of the adjoining land on Front street, the Flint estate, the Worthen estate and the Clapp estate?

Assessor Dwyer says he was born in Weymouth and always tried to keep down town expenses.

Why do the Assessors print over 4000 copies of the so-called "Poll Books" when the law requires only fifty? The law does not require that these books shall be distributed from house-to-house. If citizens were told to apply at the Town Offices for a book, not 500 would call for them.

The same is true of the Town Books. If the Selectmen stopped the house-to-house delivery, less than 1000 copies would be sufficient; the city of Quincy prints less than 1000.

Why print 4000 copies of the Annual Town Meeting Warrants and distribute them late in February, when it would cost much less and reach more readers if printed early in February in the local papers and be more satisfactory?

Now, how many copies are wanted of the Valuation Book? Some say only the real estate men want them; but there are others. If 1000 copies were printed and offered free to all who called for them at the Town Offices that would be enough, and would materially reduce the cost.

How many copies of the History of Weymouth will be sold? Not half the number printed.

The printing of a Valuation Book would undoubtedly disclose some property that is untaxed; again it would show considerable property that is assessed ridiculously low, an injustice to other taxpayers who have to bear the burden. The increase in valuation would more than pay the cost of the publication.

Many advocate low valuation of property, but often it is too low. A higher valuation would increase the selling value, and make it possible when necessary to raise a larger sum by mortgage. Weymouth needs more improvements to keep up with the progressive towns. It should have a sewerage system, a Town Hall, the collection of garbage, the collection of ashes, better sidewalks, better fire protection and other improvements. There is annually considerable increase in valuation from new buildings, but the land also is becoming more valuable, and with a proper valuation it is possible to have more improvements and also a lower tax rate.

Do You Pay Your Bills?

Being One of a Series of Talks on Bills and the Prompt Payment Of Them. Do you owe any Bills That Are Overdue?

"LET'S HAVE AN UNDERSTANDING"

No credit man will turn a debtor down who tells the TRUTH. For TRUTH is the foundation of CREDIT.

YOU owe an account—YOU have owed it for several months—it is long past due—You want to pay it—circumstances, perhaps, have been against you—then in all fairness to the credit man make a frank statement of your conditions.

You will find the credit man willing to help the honest debtor, if he can. More often his hands are tied. The debtor will not make any attempt to make PROMPT PAYMENT of his account. He, there-fore, can not expect any consideration at the hands of the Credit Man.

If you are not willing to make a "clean breast" of your actual conditions, you have not good reason for thinking you will receive any consideration ot the hands of the credit man.

It is useless to dodge the issue for every credit man in Plymouth, Norfolk and Barnstable Counties are acquainted with your method of paying credit obligations. He knows just how you stand with every firm doing business in both counties.

If you don't pay—if you won't be honest enough to give facts—if you don't make any effort whatever to reduce your indebtedness, you may be sure that the credit man is "GOING AFTER" the money due his firm.

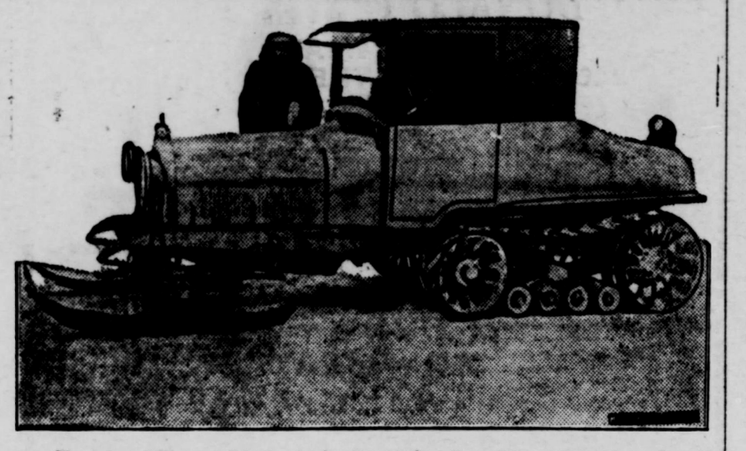

Sometimes drastic measures are necessary to collect an account. You can save yourself lots of trouble and much embarrassment by paying your bills promptly, or by giving the credit man valid reasons for your delinquency.

Don't let your bills accumulate!

"SNOWMOBILE" ATTRACTED MUCH ATTENTION

Here is a "Snowmobile," which attracted quite a bit of attention after it made a 200-mile trip through snow and storms, to get to the winter sports carnival held in Quebec, Canada.

Pathetic Road Pictures:

The man who left the jack handle at home.

Women who aren't good looking enough to attract Sir Raleighs to change tires for them.

The party who washes the new sedan with laundry soap and a "clean" rag.

Any car owner with an insured 1915 machine who sees a car thief pass along to the machine parked ahead.

Folks who come to the salesroom ready to buy, but oblivious to the meaning of f. o. b.

A driver whose rear-view mirror reveals the motorcycle officer on the trail.

CAR THIEF DOING LARGE BUSINESS

Motorist of Today Needs Device That Will Puzzle Skilled Mechanic.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

The automobile thief is doing a big business of late, and the police records show a large increase over that of last year. How, then, can the car manufacturer bring out a more or less standardized anti-thief contrivance that will really prevent a car from being stolen, and what would be the characteristics of this perfect lock?

The motorist of today needs badly a contrivance that can be locked or unlocked from the car seat by the driver, or else something that will automatically remind the driver of its existence before he starts the engine again.

Something to Confuse.

Something which merely prevents the engine from being started in the ordinary way is of absolutely no use. For example, if the self-starter is disconnected by the car owner, there would be nothing to stop two or three men from starting the engine by pushing the car with the gears in mesh. Why not give the thief constructive, rather than destructive work? Let him build up instead of tearing down. Destruction is much more simple than construction, and it can be done with most any tool. Any prisoner, given time and a saw, can eventually break jail, therefore, if the device will break a connection of some sort, perhaps something that would temporarily prevent the engine transmitting power to the differential, it would be more likely to confuse the thief than a mere locking device, which could easily be destroyed, and allow the car to be driven away.

It isn't the fact of getting the better of a thief with only a few minutes' time in which to work out his getaway. It's got to be something that will puzzle the skilled mechanical thief, who has no longer time in which to accomplish his work.

Lock Gear in Neutral.

The majority of old-time motorists' suggestions seem to turn towards some device which will lock the gear in neutral, and, by the way, there are already numerous devices of this kind in existence, many of them operated with a Yale key. The keyhole is in reach of the driver, but in such a position as to make it awkward for the thief who tries to file off the device. But here again is a destructive rather than a constructive job, which brings us to where we started.

You, as a car owner, should take extra precautions if you go to unusual risks, in the way of leaving your car unattended. A few simple mechanical changes would help complicate the thief's job and, in many instances, save your car.

Come on, you tinkering mechanics—set your ingenious brains to work on this most needed of automobile problems. There is big money for the man who succeeds in this venture.

Flashing Lighthouses to Protect Motorists

Light signals have protected travel on land and sea for many years. Colored flashing signals will be installed this spring on the main national highways at crossroads, sharp curves and railroad crossings. The motorist of tomorrow will be guided by traffic signals that will safeguard danger points and minimize accidents.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

No motor vehicle should be parked at the entrances to hotels, theaters, office buildings, large stores, and other buildings to which there is a great amount of coming and going.

The importance of efficient spark plugs cannot be estimated, says a well-known automobile engineer. Never wait until they miss fire and always buy the best quality obtainable.

Scale in the radiator can be overcome by mixing a little glycerin with the cooling water. The glycerin should be used in proportions of half a pint to each five gallons of water.

A slow leak in the tire valve plunger can be sometimes checked by applying a drop of oil in the valve stem. The oil partly dissolves the rubber, and causes it to anneal itself to an air-tight joint.

Water which comes from a chalky district should not be used in the water circulation system because this results in deposits in the pipe and radiator. Distilled or well filtered rain water should be used.

Care should be exercised when dry cells are used for ignition purposes to keep them in a dry place, for any dampness will cause them to short circuit, and when this takes place it will be hard work starting the engine.

It is often difficult to start by hand the small screws such as are used in the magneto, speedometer, etc. An easy way around this difficulty is to hold the screws between the legs of a pair of calipers, a drawing compass or even in the slot of an ordinary steel pen. The screw is then driven home by the small screwdriver. The same method may be used in replacing small nuts located inaccessibly.

Spark Lever Intended to Control Ignition Timer

The spark lever is for controlling the ignition timer or breaker which causes quick impulses of high-tension current to pass through insulated wires to the sparkplugs. When the spark lever is retarded the timber is in a position where the contact points separate and send current to the plugs just at or a little past beginning of power stroke of each piston. When spark lever is advanced the timer moves to a corresponding position, creating impulses before each piston reaches beginning of power stroke, when the engine develops more power and speed.

Piston Ring Guide

A steel ring just the diameter of the cylinder bore of one end and tapered off at the other until it is just large enough to slip over the piston ring makes it easy to get a piston back in the cylinder, obviating, as it does, catching of the rings.

Clean With Kerosene

Soap and water sometimes will not remove the grease spots and other marks on the running boards or the floor boards. The best way to clean these is with a rag saturated with kerosene.

Yes—it can be done

The finest of cars can be sold at these prices

THE Studebaker name guarantees to you the utmost in fine-car construction. For 72 years it has stood for quality, for honest workmanship, for square dealing.

It has always stood for style and class. Remember Studebaker carriages—supreme examples of fine coach building.

Consider our facilities—mark what we have at stake. $90,000,000 in assets, $50,000,000 in plants and equipment, $10,000,000 in body plants alone.

Note our multiplying sales—the sensation of Motordom.

It is fair to assume that we can and do build the finest cars and at Studebaker prices.

What is a fine car?

A fine car means the best materials any cost can buy. We use 35 formulas for steels, each known to be best for its purpose. We pay a premium of 15% on some to get the formulas exact.

All Studebaker models are equipped with Timken bearings. There are few cars in America, regardless of price, which equal ours on this point. In our Light-Six, for instance, we put more Timken bearings than are used in any competitive car, within $1,500 of its price.

A fine car means fine engineering. We spend $500,000 yearly on that department, employing 125 able men.

It means careful construction. We have 12,500 up-to-date machines. 1,120 of our operations are exact to 1/1000 of an inch. 360 are exact to one-half of 1/1000 of an inch.

It means infinite pains. For instance, we machine all surfaces of our crankshafts as was done in Liberty Airplane Motors. We are the only makers of cars at our prices who do this.

It means careful inspection. With us it means 30,000 inspections in the manufacture of each Studebaker car.

Luxury and beauty

It means a car to be proud of.

Our body finish includes 15 coats of paint and varnish.

Chase Mohair is used to upholster our closed bodies—made from the soft fleece of Angora goats.

We offer much extra equipment. Some of our Big-Sixes, for instance, have two nickel-plated bumpers, one or two extra disc wheels with cord tires, a courtesy light, a motometer, steel trunk, etc.

This factory, remember, is the ancient home of fine coach work.

A fine car must be enduring. A Studebaker Big-Six, built in 1918, has so far run 475,000 miles. That means 80 years of ordinary service.

Go and See
Why Studebaker Leads

Studebaker is now the world's largest builder of quality automobiles.

Last year, 145,167 fine-car buyers paid $201,000,000 for them.

There are 13 models.

Prices begin at $1,025.

Go see the reasons for this trend. See why sales have almost trebled in three years. Why these cars have become the sensation of Motordom.

You owe that to yourself before you buy a fine car.

Where savings come

Then how do the Studebakers so far undersell any comparable cars?

Because we build so many. The fixed costs are divided by enormous output—150,000 cars per year.

Because we build our own bodies. The saving to you on some types is up to $300 per car.

Because we make our own forgings, saving another profit there.

Because our plants are modern and efficient. We have spent $38,000,000 on them in the past five years.

Because we keep our men, make them partners, pay them large bonuses to stay. Changing men is expensive.

Because we conduct this business in every way on the best modern lines.

What buyers save

The Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car sells for $1,045. Under ordinary manufacturing conditions it would need to cost you from $1,200 to $1,400.

On our Special-Six the difference might be $400 to $700.

On our Big-Six type the difference may run into thousands, depending on the number produced. For this car compares only with the highest-priced cars in Europe and America. * * *

You will respect the Studebaker methods when you come to know them. You will admire the cars they create. You will delight in the values.

Remember that last year 145,167 fine-car buyers, after comparisons, chose the Studebaker models. So many people could not be wrong.

Learn why they did so before you buy a car at $1,000 or over. You owe that to yourself.

LETTER FROM FLORIDA—NO. 3

By Mrs. Lizzie M. Hanscom

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 3, 1924

As we see more of the city we are better pleased than ever with our location. We can see the boats going to Tampa, and other places. One day we saw a five-masted schooner sailing along the bay; it was a pretty and to us unusual sight. The street we are living on is very wide; I think about sixty feet, with a grass plot between the sidewalk and street with hibiscus, orleander, and other shrubs and palms of different kinds in it.

Opposite us is the waterfront park, one of the many city parks. We are told that a few years ago the street was narrow and the water came almost up to it; in fact sometimes when there was a big storm the water came over the street and up to the house, but someone thought that there should be a park here, so they built a sea wall, pumped an island inside of the wall and there is the park which I should think was five or six hundred feet wide, extending a long way along the bay, and I understand it is to be made even larger in time.

Opposite us on the park is a large tennis court where four sets of players can play at once as there are four nets. A little farther along is a pier which they call the "Fountain of Youth" pier, which extends out into the water a long way with seats at the end of the pier. There used to be a roof over the end, but that was torn off in a bad storm. Just beyond that is the "Fountain of Youth", a sulphur spring. All day long and even in the evening there are many folks there drinking the water and they also bring jugs to take the water away. My husband drinks it, but I can't and even the odor is offensive to me. One can smell it quite a way off. Makes one think of rotten eggs. I have seen people hold their nose while they drink it.

A little farther along is another long pier, a railroad pier, but you can walk out on it and the other day we went out to see the Pelicans. I should think there were thirty or more of them. Every few minutes they would dive down into the water after a fish. I wish I could describe them. They are a large bird when their wings are extended, should think they might measure nearly two yards from tip to tip, as they have very long wings. They are protected so are quite tame. They are always ready to eat and the fishermen have to watch them or they will steal their fish. Sometimes the fishermen will feed them and one man said he fed one pelican fifty fish at one time.

A little farther along is the ball field where the Boston Braves do their spring training. They are here now. Then there are places for other sports: roque, quoits, a nice place for checker, chess and domino players. There are some very expert players here every season. Beyond there, is the yacht basin where many boats dock. Mr. Ringling, who has a home in Sarasota, was here in his yacht when his son gave a concert here. Now there are two of our Navy boats here; last week there were also some Army planes and there are some other large private yachts.

Then there are many boats that take out parties, either for fishing or pleasure trips, next to the yacht basin is the Municipal pier, which is wide enough for autos to drive on, and all day long it is full of autos. There is a bathing spa, playground for the children, and outdoor bathing place.

There is another park where there is a band concert every afternoon and evening in the season and there are very large crowds there when it is warm, but it has been so cold this winter that the people have not cared to sit out of doors much. It is getting warmer here now. There are also many places on this park to play roque. Perhaps you are like the writer, I do not know what roque is. The game is similar to croquet only as some one told me "it is played more scientifically", or in other words is croquet gone to college". There is always a crowd watching the roque players.

One of the first things you are urged to do here is to register at the Chamber of Commerce and I believe there have been over 30,000 registered this season. Of course some do not register. The reason they wish you to is that they may be able to find you if necessary. With 60,000 tourists this season it would be impossible to find anyone otherwise. The Chamber of Commerce is a real friend to the tourist; they will give you a map of the city and almost any information you wish. They have tables where you can write, free telephone, and State books. You can get the book and see who is listed from your state and where they are located. Then each state, or at least nearly state, and where they are located. Then each state, or at least nearly every state, has a State society, and you are asked to join. The fee is only a dollar for the season. Some meet every week; some every other week; they have good programs, and sometimes have refreshments. When we came there was no Massachusetts society, only the New England, as its name implies, taking in the New England States, having about twelve hundred members. We joined that, they meet every week, afternoon one week the next week in the evening. At the evening meetings you must show your ticket to be admitted. They have ice cream at the evening meetings, beside a good program.

Since arrival there has been a Massachusetts society found. We also joined that. At the first meeting of the Massachusetts society, my husband met a man who served on the jury with him a number of years ago and one day on the park we met some old friends my husband had not seen for years, as they had moved away. Some of the people here join all the State societies although you are not supposed to unless you have lived in that state some time.

You see most of the folks here have nothing to do but amuse themselves and there is always something to do. Many go fishing the piers having many fishers, both men and women on them all the time. There are sales of real estate, either an auction with a car or diamond ring worth from three to five hundred dollars given away to the holder of the lucky ticket. The tickets are given free to everyone whether they buy or not. There are usually free busses and car tickets to the sale.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE

Though "Merton of the Movies" was a long time reaching the stage of the Hollis Street theatre in Boston since its first presentation two years ago in New York it is the judgment of Boston theatregoers that it has been well worth waiting for. Nothing more deliciously funny than this stage production made by George Kaufman and Marc Connelly from Harry Leon Wilson's famous story has been presented in Boston. It is wholesome, infectious, unctuous humor with that rare and enervating human quality that gives substance to comedy.

Millions of readers knew the story, for it was a best seller for a long period and they laughed at the constructed tale by this foremost of American literary humorists. It was most natural that the story should be dramatized, though it was a stern necessity that every quality which contributed to its popularity with readers should be preserved. This requirement was so happily fulfilled by the dramatizers that it is common opinion that in its stage vivification it is even a greater contribution to the happiness of the multitude than in its original form.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

The production of "The Faithful Heart", a melodramatic comedy by Monckton Hoffe at the St. James next week will give the various members of the Boston Stock Company unusually splendid opportunities. It was produced at the Broadhurst theatre last season by Max Marcin and received widespread and favorable comment from New York critics. It will be produced for the first time in Boston.

In "The Faithful Heart" the author tells the story of a lass who loved a sailor, Waverly Ango, on a windy night back in 1899 kissed little Blackie goodbye at Southampton, while his ship was getting up steam down the bay.

The full company will be used in the production.

CLUB and SOCIAL

—Many friends of the old established Weber male quartet which appears at many Masonic affairs, wondering why the singers on Tuesday should take a night to themselves at the height of the season, may find the answer to be Miss Ruth Prescott, daughter of Allan C. Prescott, the leader of the quartet. She was being initiated in the mysteries of the Eastern Star. When the work started the quartet appeared and took charge of the musical part of the program. Mr. and Mrs. Prescott have been members of Keystone chapter for many years and wished the daughter to become a member before she changed her name. Her fiancee, Reginald Gay of Theodore Roosevelt lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Wollaston, was also a candidate. A number of Mr. Prescott's friends from South Shore towns were present.

—Mrs. Sumner Fearing of Water street entertained the Merry Twelve Whist club Saturday evening. Favors were awarded to Mrs. Frank Abrams, Mrs. Ebed Litchfield, Mrs. Arthur Fearing, Selwyn Abrams, Dana Hollis and Ebed Litchfield. It was also a costume poverty party and the prizes went to Mrs. Ebed Litchfield and Dana Hollis.

—The H. G. L. Whist club met with Mrs. Charles Heger on Monday evening and souvenirs were awarded to Mrs. Roy Bickford, Mrs. Charles White, Mrs. Clarence Pratt and Mrs. Joseph Black.

—On Monday evening at the home of Paul Mulready, Pleasant street, East Weymouth, Miss Gladys Foster entertained the Weymouth chapter, branch No. 2, M. P. C. of A. A business meeting was held and many plans made for a whist party to be given at an early date. The club will attend a supper and theatre party on Tuesday evening, March 18. Piano solos were given by Miss Alice Coyle which added much to the evening's entertainment. Whist was also enjoyed and a collation served. There were 14 members and friends present and it was an enjoyable evening for all. The next meeting will be held with the president, Miss Olive Ralph, Union street, South Weymouth.

—The Wednesday Night Whist club met at the home of Mrs. Roy Wheaton and the prizes were awarded to Mrs. Maynard Carter, first; Mrs. Carwin Savage, second; Mrs. Burgess Spinney, third; and consolation to Mrs. Young. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Algers.

—William N. Craig of Front street returned on March 6 from a visit to California, returning on one of the steamers of the Panama-Pacific line to New York from San Francisco, with calls at Los Angeles and Havana. The ocean was as smooth as a mill pond during the entire 18 days journey and not a solitary passenger was seasick. During her stay in California Mrs. Craig visited her son Kenneth in Los Angeles, and made motor trips to many of the leading cities and resorts. She particularly liked Santa Barbara and Oakland. Southern California is in a distressful condition owing to the failure of the usual rainy season. Many sections had not had any rain for 14 months and this made business very bad, many thousands were out of work in Los Angeles and other cities. While she liked the warm days after fog had cleared, nights were cold and houses seemed poorly heated compared with the East. Taken all in all she came back well satisfied with New England

—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Holden of 21 Wessagusset road, who have been passing the winter in Cambridge, returned home this week.

—The Service Star Legion, Old Colony chapter, of Weymouth and Braintree met with Mrs. Harriet B. Voorhees, 79 Commercial street, Weymouth, on Monday afternoon of this week. Letters of reply regarding the so.called "Bonus Bill" were received from Senator Lodge and Congressman Frothingham. After transacting considerable important business a dainty repast was served by the hostess and the meeting adjourned until April 14. In accordance with the S. S. L. custom a representative of the chapter attended the funeral services of Carlton Tyler, a World War veteran, of North Weymouth Sunday afternoon and placed a red rose, signifying sacrifice, upon the casket at the grave.

—A meeting of the Weymouth Catholic club was held in Sacred Heart hall Monday evening. Rev. Fr. Gerald Fitzgerald of Brighton was the speaker, his subject being, "Fundamentals of the Spiritual Life". Miss Mary Cullinane favored with vocal selections assisted by Miss Margaret Dwyer.

—A daughter was born on Monday at the East Braintree Cottage hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Nickerson (Hazel Hollis) of 143 Washington street.

—Mrs. Eva Morris and two daughters have returned to their home in Silver Lake, having been the recent guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Frost of Park avenue.

—The R. F. Whist club met with Mrs. Willander on Union avenue on Wednesday evening. Honors went to Mrs. Ethel Gould, Mrs. Arthur Wise, Mrs. Henry Dewey, and Mrs. Willander.

—A surprise party was given to Miss Caroline Conway at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson, 21 Linden place, East Weymouth, by her friends last Friday night. The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and bunting. Music, games and dancing were enjoyed, also a dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Nelson. Miss Conway was presented with a beautiful string of pearls. Guests were present from Quincy, Boston, Braintree, and the Weymouths.

—The beach at North Weymouth especially near the Edison station got the brunt of the severe gale of Tuesday night and Wednesday, the water being very angry at high tide. The wind blew about 60 miles an hours and was accompanied by rain, snow and sleet.

MEN'S CLUB

Those who braved the very inclement weather of last Wednesday evening to reach Clapp Memorial Building felt well repaid for their efforts. The occasion was the annual ladies night of the Clapp Men's Club and a most enjoyable affair it was. After a social hour a bountiful roast beef dinner was served. A splendid program was then given by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Young and "Miss" MacConnell (who later proved to be Master MacConnell. Mr. and Mrs. Young each sang several solos and also a number of duets, in which their voices blended beautifully. The vocal selections were happily chosen and the program most enjoyable. Master MacConnell was a complete entertainment by himself—in dances, songs, and impersonations. Unusually clever were the selections which he gave as was also his rendition of them. Mrs. William Hodges accompanied at the piano throughout the program. At the conclusion of the entertainment dancing was enjoyed. Those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Horace R. Drinkwater, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hodges, Mrs. V. W. Whiton, Earl E. Story, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Whitmarsh, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Preston, Mrs. Edith W. Lincoln

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Bosworth, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Doucett, Mrs. George Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Alden, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Rogers, Miss Evelyn Silvester, Miss Annie F. Berry, Mr. and Mrs. James Ford, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Earle

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wheaton, Mrs. I. E. Wardlaw, Mr. and Mrs. George H. McGrath, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Teague, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Sylvester, Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. Prescott, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Denbroeder, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cuningham

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Merchant, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Bancroft, Elijah Whiton, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Easton, Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Spear, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Farrar

J. E. Fabyan, Bessie H. Bates, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Sandell, Charles Y. Berry, H. A. Taber, Thomas F. Lynch, George L. Bates, Harold F. Belcher, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Conathan, Mrs. Daisy Fabyan, Mrs. Mabel A. Ford, M. P. Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Humphrey

MONDAY CLUB

The next meeting of the Monday Club wil be held March 17th, when the Hingham Woman's Club and Weymouth teachers will be guests. This will be the annual musicale, program to be given by the R. S. B. Trio of Boston.

On Friday, April 4, the Monday club will present its annual play at the Gem Theatre, Weymouth. The play this year is "Nothing but the Truth", a comedy by James Montgomery. The cast contains many of Weymouth's well know citizens and an immense amount of time and pains have been spent in making this production one long to be remembered. The entire proceeds of the evening will go to the scholarship fund of the club. Tickets will be on sale next Monday as usual at one o'clock before the club meeting. Each member is entitled to five tickets

OLD COLONY CLUB

Edwin M. Whitney entertained the members of the Old Colony club on Thursday afternoon with the dramatic reading "Adam and Eva". The president announced that a fashion show arranged by Miss Harriet Ainsworth will be the feature of the next meeting which will be held at Fogg's Opera House. Living models, all of whom are members of the club have been selected to display the gowns with a definite aim in view. The music will be in charge of Mrs. William Barnard.

GEM THEATRE

George Melford and a company of seventy people went to Sonora, Cal. for the purpose of making outdoor scenes in his current Paramount production, "Flaming Barriers" at the Gem Saturday. A number of scenes were made on the train and the entire company stopped at Jamestown en route to make street scenes. The company remained on location for three weeks during which time they filmed a series of exciting scenes in a forest fire. Among the equipment taken to location was a high powered motor fire truck fitted with the latest devices, and an airplane. Jacqueline Logan drove the flying machine across the forest and later drove the fire truck through the burning trees. See this picture and know what it means to be thrilled.

How fate sent a youth to blackmail and rob his own mother unaware of her identity, is one of the dramatic episodes in "The Age of Desire" at the Gem Sunday. It's a cry from a mother's heart for a once unwanted son.

—The Elopement of Ellen, or has been said, "better named—The Elopement of Helen" will be presented by a notable cast of characters at the First Methodist Episcopal church this evening at 8 o'clock.—Advertisement

WEYMOUTH HEIGHTS

—Deacon Allan C. Emery of the Mt. Vernon House entertained his Sunday School class of boys last Monday evening.

—At the weekly whist party of the H. G. L. club held last Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Hager the prizes were taken by Mrs. Roy Bickford, Mrs. White, Mrs. Clarence Pratt and consolation Mrs. Joseph Black. Refreshments were served and a most enjoyable evening spent.

—A party will be given in the First church chapel next Saturday afternoon for the members of the Junior Christian Endeavor connected with the First church. The committee in charge consists of Lynwood Teague, Helen Moulton, John Moulton, Anna Craig and Eleanor Pearson, assisted by junior superintendent, Miss Florence B. Nash. An interesting program of games is planned and a good time is promised for everyone.

QUINCY THEATRE

While the William Fox production, "No Mother to Guide Her," is essentially a gripping drama of life in the raw, it has its humorous moments even as the most serious life now and then gets its smile. The picture will open a three days engagement at the Quincy theater on Thursday.

The story deals with the lives of two girls, one a daughter of the rich, the other penniless. Their experiences combine to present a powerful story in which evil is conquered by good despite almost insurmountable obstacles.

Genevieve Tobin and Dolores Rousse have the leading feminine roles, with J. D. Walsh in a prominent part opposite. The balance of the cast is unusually efficient and the picture has been well directed by Charles Horan. The story carries an appeal to every home, particularly to the mothers and daughters.

LOVELL'S CORNER

—Miss Charlotte Chase of Boston was the guest Sunday of Mrs. Everett Pratt of Washington street.

—Mrs. Fred Monroe is able to be out again after a month's illness.

—Miss Almerta Spires spent the week-end with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Tirrelle.

—Roland Smith entertained his Sunday School class at the Community Building on Monday night.

—William Lavigne of Fall River spent the week-end as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Ellis of Washington street.

—Little Miss Doris Pike of Weymouth is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Belcher.

—Mr. and Mrs. James Stever of Pleasant street visited relatives in Harwich last week.

—Mrs. John White has been kept in by illness the past week.

ODD FELLOWS ANIVERSARY

Mt. Wollaston lodge, No. 80, I. O. O. F., of Quincy observed its 40th anniversary on Tuesday and was honored by a visit of Grand Master Rideout and other Grand officers, and also District Deputy Budd B. Thorne and suite. Addresses were made by the Grand officers and others. Frank F. Prescott of the Gazette-Transcript, a past grand, and the first secretary, was one of the 23 charter members; he and Joseph H. Layton were the only two present on the anniversary. Bro. Prescott is a member of the Grand Lodge and Grand Encampment and in 1886 and 1887 was deputy of Wompatuck encampment of East Weymouth, installing the officers four times.

Winsome Features in New Garments

Bright Colors and Artful Devices Add to Charm of Frock or Coat.

To dwell on the frivolities of the mode this season, to follow the intricacies of its minor features, is to enter a labyrinth artful in its devices and bright with colorful fabrics. Apparently simple, says a fashion writer in the New York Herald, every frock or coat has some clever feature all its own. The fabrics are unusual and there are more with strange weaves and textures than have been seen for several spring openings. In the strict sense of the word, neither fabrics nor frocks can be described as simple, when one considers the amazing care and ingeniousness that have gone into their makeup.

Frivolous, some of those touches and additions to the new chemise frock may seem and the fabrics may appear not too extraordinary, stopping this side of the extreme, but in comes the art that is genuine. There will be found in the new collections very few dresses which are not wearable and very few fabrics which are not practical. Amusing and entertaining without being inconsequential is the demand made of the designers and the order has been filled satisfactorily.

Tunic frocks which increase apace represent one form of the unusual. Cut on the lines of a mandarin coat the tunic has just about the amount of flare of its oriental model and is about knee length, its especial claim to originality being in the devices to bring the fullness of the skirt portion to the center of the front. One of these models by Bernard is cut with a panel in the center of the front curving away at the hipline, allowing a gathering of the material at the sides.

Another model has utilized the deep U-shaped inset vest to hold a gathered portion in the center. The material of this dress is a silk crepe coin dotted in a darker shade. It is a model for general country wear as the vest of sheer white material has a broad collar opening V-shaped and very tiny sleeves are used instead of the long ones intended for town.

Scarf Part of Many Dress Designs.

After tunics one may consider the multitude of frocks in which the scarf is a definite part of the design. No rule prevails as to where the scarf shall be tied or worn. Tied in the middle of the back is just as smart as any other place, but no newer than the trick of tying it at the side and allowing one end to hang front and another back. In the evening the scarf is revived also, this time in its old form, just a strip of tulle wound around the throat and floating to the hem of the gown.

A tunic dress of silk crepe voile has a scarf matching the plaited skirt showing below. It is tied at the side with the ends falling to the waistline. Blue and white are the colors of the tunic, the design being blue triangles on a white ground, and the skirt and scarf are of plain blue. A ruffle of plain plaited white finishes the ends of the scarf.

Another frock has practically the same arrangement of the scarf, although the model is one piece. An inset of plain material draped up at the right side gives this dress the effect of a more elaborate model than its one-piece cut warrants; scallops outlining the joining of the material increase this note.

The frock makes an entirely different use of the scarf idea. Fine plaiting runs the entire length of this scarf, which finishes by way of becoming panels at the sides of the skirt. With such an elaborate use of the scarf no other decoration is needed.

Embroidered in Crystal and Net.

One more scarf gown is an evening dress model by Doeuillet. Jade-green crepe heavily embroidered in crystal and jet beads makes the simple straight dress, which has the scarf attached from shoulder to waist at the back, tying at the waistline and falling in long ends well below the skirt. This brings a V-shaped arrangement of the plain material of the scarf draped over the beaded frock, the ends giving the effect of a short train.

Then for variety there are peplums, those seemingly useless, extraneous portions of cloth, periodically honored by makers and wearers. Not perhaps entirely useless from one point of view, for they admirably conceal the lines of the figure where concealment is advantageous and break the line of length when that, too, is desirable.

Worth shows an amusing use of the peplum on a jacket which is part of a suit. Circular as the more fashionable of these peplums must be the fullness is so arranged that it falls only at the front. Jenny accomplishes very much the same silhouette with the use of plaits opening into fullness below the pockets on a black rep tunic dress.

An intricate dress has the peplum silhouette at the sides. Two circular sections starting as peplums turn back on themselves, forming a jabot plait each side of the front of the skirt. This is a feature of the new skirts favored by many of the best designers and frequently seen.

Much admired is a suit of red and blue changeable alpaca. It has plaited insets let into the sides of plain blue which give it the peplum effect. A narrow stand-up collar, Chinoise in cut, is of the plain blue and cuffs of about the same width are also of the plain material.

Silk and Wool for Gowns.

Afternoon frocks as well as those for morning find a wealth of inspiration in the new silk and wool fabrics. The chantilly laces are usually reserved for use in the evening, as are the metal laces, while vegetable silk is being discussed wherever fashions are a subject of interest. What the final verdict regarding this substitute will be remains to be seen. It is to be called by its trade name so that one shall recognize it eventually, whether one uses it or not. Satin mouflon imprime, a vegetable silk showing one satin side and the other printed and velvety, was featured in one of the smart collections in Paris.

Authentic figures as to the amount of silk actually produced by the silkworm and the amount consumed as silk convince one that all is not silk that shimmers.

Of course much of the imitation silk is used in the weaves which take the place of knitted silk floss and are in reality, now that they have perfected the process, much more practical for knitted dresses and sweaters than the pure silk, as the substitute is lighter and keeps its shape better. A weave with a slightly rough or knotted effect in this silk or mixed with the real silk is especially attractive in plaids which have an unusually good combination of bright but soft colors.

Printed Silks Are Attractive.

Printed silks are really bewildering in the variety of pattern and charm of color. Some designs for sports and frocks for morning wear are so fine that the eye sees it at a little distance as one tone, but others are so large and so widely spaced that the design appears as a few large disks of embroidery on the dress. A beautiful crepe is printed in huge roses in dull reds and an odd silk broche has a printed pattern like a chintz.

For evening a gold lame, which is to say a weaved design, makes one think of a Chinese evening landscape, that is, if one has imagination enough. Bars of gold which look like clouds have large round moons also of gold floating about and a heavy border copies that seen on the bottom of Chinese coats, close circles and waves with only a narrow line between.

Laces used for evening gowns are cobweblike in weave and not at all like the laces of last season, unless they may be regarded as progressions from the latter. For example, large, fragile lotus leaves etched in silver on a background of sulphur-yellow tulle, or a silver tissue with a raised design in beige wool, and wool can be lacelike when treated in this manner. Cellophane is used for odd weaves which shimmer with the strawlike material.

CAT TAUGHT TO SPARE BIRDS

Pet Has Been Instructed as to Right and Wrong by Patient Mistress.

Although cats in New York state are blamed for killing millions of birds annually, there is a cat in Monsey, near Suffern, Rockland county, that, according to her owner, has been taught not to harm birds.

"When we moved into the country," said Mrs. Raymond A. King, to the New York World, "we found living about the grounds phoebes, sparrows, wrens, catbirds, humming birds and bluebirds. What was my horror the very first morning to have our big old mother cat, which is almost human and had been taught to respect our canary's rights, lay a sparrow at my feet?

"I took Mrs. Pussy in my arms and talked in exactly the same strain I would to a child. I took her out on the porch and introduced her to the phoebes. I showed her nests and made her feel altogether ashamed of herself.

"The effect was that the baby phoebes grew in comfort and all disappeared in perfect condition; not a nest was disturbed, and pussy feels the same moral satisfaction we all feel when our intelligence overcomes our instincts. At least, we ought to give her credit for that."

Mrs. Pussy is the property of little Peggy King. Mrs. King writes under the name of Amy Forbes King.

AUTOMATIC PHONES IN INDIA

Delhi Is Soon to Have Modern System Despite the Unfavorable Climate.

The government of India has determined, as part of an ambitious program of telephone extension and improvement, to install a modern system of automatic or machine-switching equipment in the city of Delhi, the capital of the great Indian empire.

The climate of India is hard on telephone plants, and all equipment has to be specially prepared to withstand the tropical heat. The Indian government does not produce its own telephone exchange apparatus, but orders it from manufacturers in other countries—a substantial portion being of American design.

At present the Indian government telephone system includes only about 13,000 telephones—fewer than there are in the city of Davenport, Iowa. There are also certain privately owned telephone companies in India, operating about 24,000 telephones. Including both the government and the corporation systems, however, the empire of India has only about one telephone to every 10,000 habitants, as compared with over 1,600 telephones for every 10,000 people in the United States.

Admires Wife's Morning Dress.

Newed leaves his apartment at seven each morning and, although his young wife arises and prepares breakfast for him, he was annoyed that at that hour she did not get fully dressed for the day, says the New York Sun and Globe. That she was always attractively attired in a negligee and that she had taken time to do her hair was not appreciated by him. But now he has changed his opinion.

The other morning, not feeling well, he postponed arising till ten o'clock. His wife, becomingly dressed in street clothes, served him breakfast in bed and later he departed for his office. Going down the stairs of the walkup apartment house he encountered three woman neighbors gossiping. All were attired in slovenly wrappers, not one had done her hair and one still wore curlers in her thinning locks. Newed has only compliments now for his better half.

Dead Shot.

The late Enos A. Mills, the nature writer of Long's Peak, Colo., was the life of his picturesque and luxurious Long's Peak inn.

As he carved a shoulder of venison one evening at the height of the hunting season Mr. Mills said to his guests:

"That young millionaire sportsman who left us yesterday is an open-handed chap. You don't catch him sending the stuff he shoots to the game market. No, sir, he sends it all to the hospitals."

"Splendid!" said an old lady. "And does he send them much?"

"He sent them from here," said Mr. Mills, "a guide, two porters and a friend."

Is This a "Sign" or Something?

A freak corncob, resembling a human hand, is the property of A. L. McQuary of Neosho, who was in the city the other day. Mr. McQuary purchased the cob from a farmer residing near Quail Spur. The base of the cob has the appearance of a human hand, with the palm slightly cupped. The thumb and fingers are easily distinguished, with the smaller end of the cob forming the wrist.—Springfield Leader.

Why the Mud Guards?

"Now, John," directed the garage boss, "fix up this flivver for Senator Spug. He is going to campaign in it. So make a thorough examination and see that everything is ready for heavy going. He especially wants extra large mud guards."

"All right, boss," said the helper. "Extra large mud guards he shall have. But—"

"Well, well?"

"I thought there was to be no mud slinging in this campaign."

WHY THAT LAME BACK?

That morning lameness—those sharp pains when bending or lifting, make work a burden and rest impossible. Don't be handicapped by a bad back—look to your kidneys. You will make no mistake by following this Weymouth resident's example.

Mrs. Nellie Condrick, 177 Broad street, says: "I used Doan's Pills some time ago when suffering from an attack of kidney complaint. My back was lame and sore and I had a constant, nagging ache in the small of my back. My kidneys felt sore and heavy and didn't act right. I was advised of Doan's Pills and got a few boxes. In a short time they completely rid me of the attack".

Price 60¢, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Condrick had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

BASKET BALL AND OTHER SPORTS

WEYMOUTH 37, ROCKLAND 22

The home team easily trimmed Rockland in a South Shore league game played in Bates Opera House Friday night.

As usual when these rivals clash, interest was high among the spectators. Rockland's famous iron man was the object of considerable booing by the partisans of the local five.

Fitts opened the scoring with a one hand shot, Gannon following with a point from the foul line. Fitzgerald counted for the visitors with a clean basket from the side. Gannon sunk a nice shot from mid floor. Morley caged two tries in succession, Gannon added another point from a free try. Shields hooped one from in under the basket, Weymouth leading 12—2. Fitz tallied again for Rockland, Sney annexed a point from the foul line. Morley shot a foul and "Tacks" Connell scored from more than half the length of the floor just before the period ended. Weymouth in front 13—7 at the half.

McGrory's outfit started the second half at full speed, Gannon, Fitts, Sheilds and Fitts again scoring twin counters in the first few minutes. Connell caged another long shot for his second tally, to show that he could net the long ones too, Roscoe Fitts duplicated the shot on the next play. Gannon brought his total up to eight with a good shot from the side lines. Heal made his first score with a set shot in the far corner of the hall, the longest shot of the game. Morley counted twice and Gannon once from beyond midfloor. "Tacks" dropped in a foul and soon after added a double counter. The iron man hopped in his first and only basket, Fitzgerald got a long one, "Tacks" sunk two fouls. Gannon then staged a rally of his own, dropping in a short try from the side, then caging two wonderful shots in succession from almost the entire length of the hall. Heal tallied again with a long shot just as the contest ended.

Gannon was easily the star of the game. He ran rings around the famous Sney, and scored 16 of his team's 37 points. Fitts played one of his best games against Connell, both were big factors in the team play of the opposing fives. Morley, Curtin and Sheilds all did well for the home team.

CENTRAL SQ. JRS. VICTORIOUS

The first game of the evening for the Junior championship of Weymouth Centre, was a walkaway for the Central Square outfit. Their opponents showed a considerable lack of teamwork due no doubt as their manager claimed, to the fact that this was their first public appearance.

N. Daniele was top scorer with seven baskets. Young Gus Conathan and Cicchese also did well for the victors. D'Allesandro, the smallest player on the floor, led his team in points with a basket and a foul. The summary:

—Meetings have recently been held in Boston by representatives of several fair associations for the purpose of forming a fair circuit similar to some of those already established. The plan is to start with Marshfield Fair the last of August and continue up to the big fair at Brockton, staging in the intervening weeks an unbroken chain of racing. It is proposed that each member give similar purses and a like schedule of races. H. P. Hobart of South Braintree is president and Edgar Power of Winthrop, chairman of the racing committee at Marshfield secretary of the temporary organization already formed. Weymouth, Marshfield and Barnstable were the South Shore tracks in the proposed chain.

—The fox hunters are to hold a hunt tomorrow on Mt. Blue, Scituate. Some of the best dogs in this section will be on hand so a real hunt is in prospect.

—The candidates for the High school nine will be called out for practice in a few more days. The prospects are for a good team again this season.

COLLEGIANS 28, CARVER 27

—The preliminary game on Friday night, a Mayflower league contest, was the hardest fought opening go staged in the hall this season.

—With the score tied five different times in the final period the half ended with the score at 25 apiece. In the first overtime period both teams scored a basket to tie again at 27 all. Gunville tallied the winning point from the foul line in the second extra session, giving the locals their first victory over the league leaders.

—Dugan played a star game for the Collegians, his 14 points being just half his team's total. Slattery and Coffey both played well. Coyle was a stalwart on defense. Gunville's one point was the one that won the game. The cranberry growers brought a team of big, rangy players that should have been able to take the measure of a crowd of bantams like the Collegians. Rudolph and Shurtleff played best for the visitors.

SPORT NOTES

The series with Plymouth starts this evening at Bates Opera House, the second game will be played Monday, St. Patrick's night, in Emond hall, Plymouth. The probable lineups of the teams as follows, for Plymouth Dolan, Silva, Finn, Gunthers, Costello and Herget; for Weymouth, Martin, Morley, Fitts, Joe Mahoney, Gannon, Sheilds and Capt. Curtin. It is rumored that considerable change will find new owners on the results of this series.

—This talk of fathers and sons in sport reminds us that S. B. Totman and son J. Wendell are both prominent in the affairs of the Old Colony Driving club. It is a not uncommon thing to find them racing against one another in the Saturday matinees, each trying his utmost to land under the wire first.

—Joe Mahoney celebrated his last game with the Tufts basketball team with a victory over Brown. Evans and Joe have been big factors in the success attained this season by the Jumbo five. They were about the classiest pair of forwards on any college team in the east.

—The departure of the major league teams for the southern training camps heralds the approach of the baseball season. Several of the local amatuer aggregations are already laying plans for an early start.

—Mr. Connell, well known Hingham tailor, has turned over his good 3-year-old Ethel Volo, to George Barnard to prepare for the early season matinees at the South Weymouth track.

—Weymouth got an awful trimming at Rockland last week and the next night easily defeated the same team at Weymouth. Welch and Mielbye, Mgr. McGrory's board of strategy, have as yet failed to explain this overnight reversal of form.

—A shipment of genuine white hares from the wilds of Maine were recently liberated by a few local sportsmen. These quadrepeds are the real article, inured to the rigors of our winter and able to procure a living for themselves in the severest of weather. If hunters will refrain from killing them for a few seasons they and their descendants will furnish sport for years to come.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY

The Sacred Heart Holy Name Society received communion in a body at the early mass last Sunday—157 men participating.

The Holy Name choir gave a splendid musical service, Mr. Leonard Riley assisting as the soloist.

In the evening a delightful social hour was enjoyed. Father Driscoll gave an intensely interesting talk on "The Historical Significance of Church Vestments", illustrating his talk with each vestment as he went along.

The society decided to hold a communion breakfast on Palm Sunday in Pythian hall. Tickets for this event will be limited to 120—the capacity of the hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Reader

When you pick up a copy of your home paper, do you give any thought how it was produced, or the money that is spent to print it and deliver it at your home?

The newspaper of today, no matter if 25 cents a copy was charged, would be the cheapest thing you bought.

In the first place it represents an investment in plant and equipment of many thousands of dollars.

Its editor and staff work diligently day in and day out to gather all the news and present it to you in readable fashion. It aims to keep you informed on all the news that's "fit for ink".

With the average paper, the price you pay for subscription does not cover the cost of WHITE PAPER.

Yes, the newspaper is the cheapest thing you buy.

Think it over. Look it over. Then support your home paper. It's the best investment you can make, for it brings the largest returns.

NEW BANK OFFICERS

At the annual meeting this week of the Weymouth Savings Bank, Charles T. Crane was elected president, and John T. Hunt treasurer. For over 50 years Mr. Crane has been connected with this bank and for over 40 years was treasurer. He has seen the bank grow from a few depositors and a small total deposit to a large and influential Savings Bank that stands high in the State. Recently the bank has dedicated a new $75,000 building in Washington Square which is a credit to the town, and is admirably equipped for the increasing bank business. For many years Mr. Hunt has been the faithful assistant treasurer.

BRAINTREE POINT

—The regular meeting of the Braintree Point Welfare club, which was to have been held Wednesday, March 12, was postponed to Wednesday, March 19, owing to the very inclement weather prevailing the night of the first meeting. All members are urged to be present at these live meetings.

—The next regular meeting of the Braintree Point Women's club will be held next Tuesday, March 18, at 8 o'clock. The usual good time will be enjoyed by all.

—Don't forget the date, March 17, at the Braintree Point Welfare club. Dancing party, with DeNeil's orchestra. Come and bring your friends.

Dirty little fingers that soil white paint

Their marks are quickly removed from woodwork painted with Barreled Sunlight

LITTLE fingers will get into jam, mud pies—or coal dust. That's one of the reasons why woodwork coated with ordinary white paint doesn't stay white long.

Barreled Sunlight is a white paint made by a special process which produces a smooth, lustrous finish that can be washed like tile. Its even surface offers no lodging place for the tiny particles of dust. Dirt and smudges do not "sink in."

This paint costs less than enamel, requires fewer coats and is much easier to apply. It has all the advantages but none of the disadvantages of an enamel. It is the whitest white imaginable and guaranteed to remain white longest.

Comes ready mixed in cans from half-pints to five gallons—a size for every purpose. Is easily tinted where color is wanted.

For every interior where light and cleanliness are desired—use Barreled Sunlight.

A THOUGHT

If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.—1 John 1:8.

We deceive and flatter no one by such delicate artifices as we do ourselves.—Schopenhauer.

OUR VALUABLE SHORE

Weymouth has many miles of sea shore and should place a higher value upon it. Read what the Wareham Courier says editorially:

"It is a demonstrated fact that the greatest prosperity in the country is in relation to the sections where the people go to play. Real estate values seem to have no limit when the people want locations for their summer or winter playgrounds.

"This section is one which has unexcelled advantages for summer residence and it is sharing in the prosperity which has come to other sections of the country where the people seek recreation and health. It is doubtful whether those who reside in this section fully realize what is going on and how greatly shore lands are in demand by the workers in the city. We have been somewhat amazed at the prices which have been paid for shore lots and have been led to wonder what it all means.

"The plain meaning is that those who work in the city shops and stores greatly desire to have a place along our shores where their families can enjoy pleasures not possible in their home communities. They are willing to economize with that end in view. The humble houses which they build have great attraction for them, and they enjoy them to an even greater extent than does the rich man with his palace on the shore.

"We must consider what has taken place and look ahead at what is likely to be the situation of the future. Not only will we gain summer residents, but a goodly proportion of them will become year-round residents. We must provide accommodations for them; we must build roads that they may get to their property conveniently; we must provide modern conveniences for them; we must in every way cater to their desires if we are to reap the full benefits of their presence.

"Merchants can materially help by carrying stocks of goods which they desire and by making a bid for the trade which they are desirous of giving us."

THE HOME PAPER IN VERSE

Edward Anthony used to write a "Ramblin' Round" column in the New York Herald. One day in his rambles he camped out near a news-stand where they sell outof-town papers and he was thereby inspired to write some verses about the home paper which aren't quite like the usual run.

The out-of-towner, he wrote, reads with such evident pleasure that one almost expects him to smack his lips over each item. It is a zestful perusal even when the news is not more important than that

The Blairs, who visited the Browns,
Tomorrow night are leaving.
It looks like snow for Christmas, though
Such things are quite deceiving.
Up at the Simpsons' it's a boy,—
Eleven pounds—a dandy.
There'll be a play on New Year's day
In church,—and cake and candy.
Jake Olson bought another cow,
Try (ad.) McCullum's poolroom
Be at the dance (in case you prance)
Tomorrow in the schoolroom.
The libr'y has another book,
Eliza Adams gave it.
Jack Lawson's mare is sick for fair,
Although he hopes to save it.
The frost is not as bad this year
As it was other winters.
Ned Allen's back on Elton's hack,
Try Keller's (ad.) good printers.
Lem Atkins, home from college, says,
"Nothing like education."
Died yesterday—Eugene McKay,
Survived by one relation.

"An integral part of your community is the home paper."

ART FOR ART'S SAKE

There was only one man in the tent when the sideshow opened, but the lady performed as earnestly as if she had been appearing before the assembled crowned heads of Europe. She wound a torpid boa constrictor around her shapely waist, draped it over her snowy shoulders, and bestowed a shy little smile upon the lone spectator.

"The snake," she explained, "is charmed."

"I would be myself," said the gentleman, politely.

VENTILATION.

"Why is the cheese so full of holes?"

"That's all right. It needs all the fresh air it can get."

Oversupply.

"If ignorance is bliss," said Black
To White, "well, then, my boy,
You'd better get your life insured;
You're apt to die of joy!"

The Hidden Face.

"Hello! Is this Jigson?"

"Yes."

"This is Smith. Can I borrow your car for this afternoon?"

"Why, no. I shouldn't think you'd have the face to ask for it."

"I haven't. That's why I'm asking you over the phone."

Audible.

Higgs wanted to buy a car and Biggs wanted to sell one, so a trial run was arranged. Rattling and groaning, it covered the ground at its maximum speed, about one mile an hour.

"Rattling fine car!" ejaculated Biggs. "Sound in every part."

"So I hear!" was Higgs' response.

Notice of Improvement.

Bachelor—Well, old man, one thing I notice about you since you've been married—you always have buttons on your clothes.

Benedict—Yes; Elsie taught me how to sew 'em on before we'd been married a week.

PUZZLED.

Mr. Owl (looking at golf ball): My! what kind of an egg is that?

The Bird News.

The canary ran a news sheet,
He was a clever fellow;
His journalism failed because
His patrons found it yellow.

We'll Say He Is.

"Jones is something of an optimist."

"How so?"

"He said he was going to learn to play the violin if it took him six months."

No Consolation.

The Optimist—Behind the darkest cloud the sun is shining.

The Pessimist—That may be very comforting, but it won't keep a fellow dry when he has been caught out in the rain without an umbrella.

Blue Enough—Blooey!

"Don't you think my car would look better painted a deeper shade of blue?"

"Not if you are planning to pay the bill."

Playing the Races.

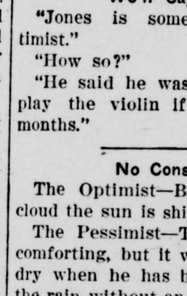

"I suppose I was foolish to take a tip from a bootblack, but I thought one tip was as good as another."

"So it is. Just about."

A Big One.

Optimus—Have you heard the latest Ford joke?

Cynicus—Yes; he wants to be president.

COMPLETE.

Is the car equipment complete?

Yes, it even includes letter forms for putting off the grocer and butcher.

Away With Him.

I have no love
For Walter Black.
He always slaps me
on the back.

A Proposal for Mamma.

Irate Neighbor—I wish I were your father for one week only.

Little Mary—I'll speak to mamma about it when I get home.

Old-Fashioned.

"She's old-fashioned, all right."

"That so?"

"Yes. She still insists on giving cod liver oil for a cold."

That Proves It.

A. (boastfully)—I'm smoking an awful lot of cigars lately.

B.—Yes, I noticed it. You gave me one.

SPECIAL

All the news stories on this page were in type for the Gazette of March 7, but were unavoidably crowded out. Had they reached the office on Monday or Tuesday we could have found space for them.

ACTACTE CAMP FIRE

The last Ceremonial Meeting was was held at the home of Eleanor Freeman on Hillside Road. Miss White attended the service and brought her Camp Fire group with her. The meeting commenced with the Wohelo Call, then the entrance and handsign of the fire. The whole group sang "Wohelo for Aye" and the candle lighting service was most impressive. Three different girls lighted the candles of "'Work," "Health" and "Love" and then "Burn Fire Burn" was sung with motions. The Law of the Fire and the Ode to the Fire were repeated by all the group. Each girl read one point of the law which was beautifully portrayed in verse. The secretary of the Camp Fire read the Roll Call while each girl answered to her name by: "Kolah," meaning friend. The guardian awarded the honor beads and each girl acted out in pantomine at least one honor which she had won. Ths idea proved very interesting, and it seemed worthwhile to try it again at another Ceremonial Meeting. An Indian Legend was read by one member and enjoyed by all. The rank of woodbearer was awarded to Gladys Conway and a song was sung to welcome her into the Actacte Camp Fire. "Mammy Moon" was sung with motions, also: "Lay me to sleep in Sheltering Flame, O Master of the Hidden Fire." this ended the Ceremonial which was without a doubt a success. The Camp Fire Grace was uttered after which the hostess served the company with delicious refreshments and the evening proved most enjoyable.

Plans are being made so that at least two members may attend the Camp Fire summer conference at Northfield. Last year the group was able to send its guardian to the Camp Fire conference and she came back with added knowledge and increased interest in the work. She received a leather honor for attending this conference as well as another member who received one for attending the conference of religious education and some Camp Fire ceremonial meetings while at Northfield, as both conferences took place at the same time.

Now that the weather is growing mild and beautiful it is hoped that a hike may be enjoyed by the group, and that the girls may have the opportunity to learn more about Nature, and to be out in the open air breathing the fresh odors of Springtime.

Several girls are anxious to earn the rank of torchbearer, but this is difficult to attain, altho the group boasts of one torchbearer. Last ceremonial meeting the guardian gave a special leather honor to the girls who had regularly attended mid-week prayer services and several received the honor. One minister seems to be encouraged by the cooperation of the Camp Fire Girls who show interest in the church by attending its meetings. There are two Camp Fire Girls who give helpful service by being on the flower committee of the church and thus fulfill one phase of the Camp Fire pledge, "Seek Beauty" as they make the church more beautiful. Another Camp Fire member is doing good work with her bluebirds. She has weekly meetings and the children make scrap books and provide post cards for the use of missionaries in their work among children and have various forms of good times. Last week the Bluebirds had a ceremonial meeting, singing many songs among which they sang their Bluebird song, "Sohegro for Aye". A new girl was initiated into the group and with such a splendid set of Junior Camp Fire Girls we certainly feel proud of them and of their guardian.

At the last meeting it was voted to elect new officers in order that an increased interest in the Camp Fire may be obtained.

The Actacte group feel very grateful that it has a guardian in Miss Jones, who shows such marked interest in the work, and cooperates so heartily with the girls. She has offered to teach the group some lessons in the art of cooking, which the girls believe to be a rare opportunity.

The girls are happy in the thought that Miss Jones believes it is worth her while giving so much of her time to the work of the Camp Fire.

GIRL SCOUTS

The new committee for the Girl Scouts met with Mrs. Prince Tirrell Monday, Feb. 25, and organized for their work as aid and moral support for the South Weymouth Girl Scout troup. Mrs. Henry Morse was made chairman; Miss Helen Rockwood secretary and treasurer. The other members of the committee took charge of the different branches of the work as follows: Mrs. Prince Tirrell public interest; Miss Grace Simmons, merit badges; Mrs. H.H. Wieting, finance; Mrs. Francis Poole and Mrs. Walter Field, education; Mrs. Harold Baker, camping; Mrs. Morse, publicity.

Heretofore the Girl Scout movement has been carried on thru the enthusiasm of the captain and the interest the work and attractions of the organization inspired in the girls. Mrs. Metcalf, present captain of the troup, is giving glad welcome to this committee that has come to her aid, that the work may broaden and strengthen as it should with heads to carry out the many branches of the training.

The hope is general that a large local interest may be manifested, the Girl Scout movement better understood and so become popular among parents as well as the young.

At this period of time when careless criticism of the young is so often heard, it is hoped by the committee that this opportunity to get the girls together for their culture and development as well as training for efficiency and service may prove an opportunity for good among the young and an opportunity for help among those to whom the girls look for example and authority.

May we depend upon the support of you who as citizens are able to give strength to this undertaking in our town toward the development of future citizens.

The Bobwhite Patrol of the South Weymouth troup of Girl Scouts gave a birthday surprise party to Edith Metcalf, one of their members, at the home of Mrs. Harold Baker. The surprise was genuine, Edith thinking she was on an errand till she discovered the girls who were awaiting her coming. The patrol presented her with a knapsack. Another feature of the evening was the presentation of a Scout belt to Marguerite Sweet as the prize for selling the greatest number of cookies in the cooky drive last fall. After an hour of games the girls' choice of refreshments were served and a happy band started for their homes.

Captain Metcalf reports that ten different parts of the second class tests have been passed by girls within the last two weeks.

CAMPFIRE GIRLS

—The members of the Soan-ge-ta-ha Camp Fire are working for the rank of "Wood Gather". That will be awarded at the grand council in the Mechanics Building, Boston, March 29.

—The Camp Fire girls met at Soan-ge-ta-ha lodge on Webb street for their monthly business meeting.

—Miss Evelyn Price, a member of the Soan-ge-ta-ha Camp Fire, spent Saturday morning in Ala his kitchen making bread, cookies and cakes, to earn honors and also to help pay for her ceremonial gown.

HUSSEY—ASH

At the Church of the Sacred Heart Sunday, March 2, Miss Madeline Gertrude Ash, daughter of Mrs. Mary Ash and Robert T. Hussey were married by the pastor, Rev. Fr. John B. Holland. The bride was attended by Miss Mildred McDonald of Quincy and the groom's brother, Frank Hussey, was best man. The ushers were: Thomas and Laurence Ash, George Hussey and Donald Clark. The bride wore a dress of white dutchess satin trimmed with shadow lace and pearls and her veil was caught up with orange blossoms. The bridesmaid wore orchid chiffon over satin, trimmed with shadow lace.

A reception and wedding dinner followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, 54 Norton street. Guests were present from Boston, Braintree, Quincy, Rockland, Hyde Park and the Weymouths.

On their return from two weeks wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Hussey will reside at 54 Norton street, North Weymouth.

MRS. MARY T. REARDON

Mrs. Mary Thompson Reardon, one of the oldest residents of the town, passed away Thursday, Mar. 6, at her home on Pleasant street, South Weymouth. Mrs. Reardon was born in Ireland 93 years ago last October and had passed the greater part of her life in this country, coming to the United States at the age of 16. She was one of the pioneer Catholic residents of South Weymouth and was until recent years active in the affairs of St. Francis Xavier parish.

A genial and helpful nature endeared her to all who were fortunate enough to know her, a long and honorable life in the community leaves her passing mourned by a host of friends in this section of the town.

Mrs. Reardon is survived by seven children: Mr. Will F. Reardon and Mrs. Honora Casey of No. Abington, Mrs. William Trask of Weymouth, Mrs. Agnes Bresnahan, Mrs. James Cambell, Miss Catherine Reardon and Mr. John F. Reardon of South Weymouth, also by twenty-two grandchildren and twenty great-grandchildren. The funeral was held at 9 o'clock this morning from St. Francis Xavier church. Interment was in the family plot at Abington.

ILLUMINATED SIGN

The Mens' Club of the Second Universalist Church of South Weymouth have made it possible for the Second Universalist church to possess a sign. The device is in the form of a cabinet with glass front and will contain the messages and notices of coming events which will be before the public day and night. The cabinet will be illuminated at night and an especially arranged background will increase the efficiency of its service by day.

The illuminated Missle is nearing completion, under the direction of Charles Churchill, a member of the club, and will be placed upon the lawn in front of the church, facing on Pleasant street at an early date.

The arrangements were made at a meeting of the Mens' Club of the church in January, but because of the nature of the weather and the frozen ground where the uprights will be anchored, the completion was deferred until this time.

SUNDAY BASEBALL

The State Senate Monday, without debate or division, accepted the adverse reports of the Committee on Legal Affairs on various measures to permit professional baseball on Sunday and to permit collections of money at semi-professional and amateur games on Sunday.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S MEETING

The Young People of Union church held a special meeting on Sunday evening, March 9, in the church parlor of the Union church of Weymouth and Braintree.

They are making a determined effort to reorganize a Christian Endeavor or some other young people's organization under the direction of Mr. Justice.

Miss Eleanor Walker was elected temporary secretary and Francis Partridge was elected temporary leader.

It has been quite some time since the young people have held their C. E. meetings and it seems quite likely now that they will soon have a real live organization with regular meetings.

UNION MEN'S CLUB CONCERT

One of the finest social affairs of the season was held in the Union church of Weymouth and East Braintree on Friday, March 7, when the Schubert Male Quartette gave a very pleasing concert, assisted by Miss Dorothy Berry Carpenter, reader, under the auspices of the Union Men's club.

The Schuberts rendered four quartets, and two solos, and Miss Berry gave three readings in the form of impersonations.

The most popular of the songs were "Aloha" the Hawaiian farewell song, "Songs of Home" and "Roses of Picardy". Others were "On to guard the right, "Gay Hearts", "The Storm Fiend" and several very pleasing encores.

Miss Berry's readings were also very pleasing. One was an impersonation of a girl who went to a big league ball game for the first time. Another was an impersonation of the ordinary shop girl at the movies which was very well done. Miss Berry at one time talked so fast in this selection that it was almost impossible to follow her.

The concert was very well attended. Some 300 were present, completely filling the church. The Men's club is to be commended for arranging for such a high class musicale.

TEACHERS CLUB SUPPER

In spite of the very stormy weather the Teachers Club of the Union church of Weymouth and Braintree held their regular monthly supper in the church dining room.

The supper was in charge of Mrs. G. H. Vanalderstein, assisted by Mrs. Clarence Rich, Mrs. Newman Page, Mrs. F. B. Watson and Rowland Reilly One of the best home-like suppers of the season was served under their direction.

The educational committee voted to hold the opening and closing exercises of the Sunday School in the main auditorium beginning Sunday, March 16. A new system of bells has been arranged notifying the various classes the time to start and stop.

Mrs. N. T. Hendrick, dean of the Northern New England School of Religious Education at Durham, N. H., gave a very interesting lecture, illustrated by lantern slides of the school buildings and the various classes.

The lecture covered "How the school started", the problems of another school along similar lines which at that time was the first one of its kind and the outline of courses and faculty for the coming season at the newer school.

The various lecture halls, the dormitories, the dining halls, and the library and campus were all shown on the slides.

Several views were shown of the various classes and faculty and also some very fine pictures of the group from Union church.

The school will be in session from July 14—21 and it is hoped that a much larger group from Union church are planning to attend these wonderful conferences.

NOVEL CONTEST

The sermon on "Who wrote the Bible" preached by Dr. Charles A. Blanchard of Wheaton college, Wheaton, Ill., at the First church on Sunday evening, Feb. 10, proved to be such an excellent one, Deacon Allan C. Emery offered to the Christian Endeavorers prizes of $15, $10, $5 respectively for the three best compositions on the sermon.

The contest, which was entered into with enthusiasm, came to a close on Feb. 25.

The judges, Rev. Stanley Marple, Mrs. Joseph Teague, and Deacon John B. Merrill pronounced all the compositions splendid and stated it was difficult to decide which was really the best. The names of the contestants were withheld from the judges and the judgments were made impartially.

At th midweek prayer meeting on Thursday evening, March 6, the announcement of the winners was given. Deacon Emery presented the prizes and congratulated each one on the efforts, giving each a Bible verse. The prizes were as follows:

Virginia Emery $15
Robert Bates $15
Annie Conway $10
Mabel Emery $5
Eleanor Freeman $5
Gladys Conway $1
Bertha Prouty $1
Gordon Rauch $1

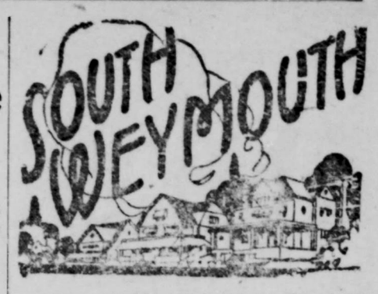

At the evening service of the First church last Sunday, the three best compositions were read. Each was a real sermon, leaving a lasting message with the listeners.

This novel contest will help to stimulate the interest of the young people in the Bible and also has served as a reward to them for their faithfulness in attending the Sunday evening service.

WANTS A MONOPOLY

The American Telephone and Telegraph Co. is bringing suits to control radio broadcasting. It seeks to monopolize static disturbances, gain complete control of disagreeable noises and put all Bedtime Stories under one management.

AMERICAN LEGION

The 300 mark has been passed and left in the dust!

Weymouth Post is well on its way to become the best Post in the state, having passed the 300 mark of membership.

There's no use in talking, this membership committee of ours certainly is going good, and reports from the Ward 2 and 3 teams look as though the team from Ward 1 would have to look to its laurels.

Ward 3 team which up to the last meeting had the largest number of members, is still working on all non-Legion men in that part of the town.

It is not necessary to say here that Ward 1 is going like a champ. The fact that they reported a large number of members at the last meeting shows that they are proceeding with full speed ahead.

The other teams of the town are also plowing thru all the obstacles that arise in their paths, with the result that soon Weymouth Post will be in a position to boast of its membership.

Along the lines of new members, the Post is planning on having a real initiation ceremony soon. The committee is meeting quite regularly and they promise a real good time. The new Legion ritual will be used for the first time in Weymouth, and it is imperative that every Legion member be present.

The Adjutant will send your notices in plenty of time for you to make your plans to be present at this important meeting.

With all the excitment in connection with the annual election of town officials and the resulting big news for the local papers we won't take up any more space this week.

So, with a last word, we'll close: Watch for our announcement of the initiation!

SERVICE STAR LEGION

The Service Star Legion, Old Colony chapter, of Weymouth and Braintree, met with Mrs. Harriet Voorhees, 79 Commercial street, Weymouth, on Monday.

A special meeting of the state council was called at the Army and Navy club, Park Square, Boston, on Thursday, Feb. 28, to make arrangements for an indoor picnic to be held under the auspices of the Service Star Legion at the Army and Navy club on the afternoon of Thursday, March 27, for the disabled World War veterans of the West Roxbury Hospital. Free auto transportation will be provided for the boys and every chapter will do its bit toward it by furnishing money, food, and women to serve and entertain them.

The Old Colony chapter will cheerfully bear its full share of expense and work. Several members have already pledged food and prizes for the whist layers and have expressed their intencan to make the picnic a "regular one' for these poor boys who have sacrificed so much for their country.

Old Colony Gas Co.

CHURCH MAKES INSTALLATION

The Baptist Church, Washington St., Braintree, recently installed the most efficient, satisfactory and economical system of heating their new banquet hall. The installation of three Clow Gasteam radiators gives them steam heat without coal and its disadvantages.

Gas for heating is particularly advantageous in churches and similar buildings where continuous heat is not required.

NEW METHOD OF HEATING GARAGE

During the past two winters, the Old Colony Gas Company has installed several gas fired steam Garage Heaters.

The value of this type of installation comes in its operating at a low temperature by a positive heat control. In this way there are many days that the heater will not operate at all, as the garage is warm enough, but if the temperature should drop in the night or when the owner is away for the evening the heater automatically maintains the proper temperature.

WILLOW CAFE PLEASED WITH RESULTS

The management of the Willow Cafe is very much pleased with the results shown with Gasteam Radiators now in use for the second year for heating their restaurant. From a standpoint of cleanliness and economy it is an ideal installation for their place of business.

RADIO

Last Spring a pleasant looking Woman about forty-five years of age, with face well colored from exposure to sun and wind, appeared at the Gas Company's office carrying a new auto tire in right hand and a load of bundles on left arm. The man on the floor stepped forward to meet her and said, "Well, you seem to be getting ready for the Spring drive."

"Spring drive nothing. I had five blow outs yesterday and thought it about time to get a new tire. Say, does that Radiant use electricity?"

"You mean the Radiantfire. That is a gas burning appliance."

"No, I mean that thing you hear the Shepard Stores over every night. My electric bill is getting higher each month and I wondered if that was the cause."

"No. madam. your Radio is not at fault. you are sitting up later listening in. Thats the cause of your increased bill."

"I guess you are right. I'll pay the bill." Giving the tire a bump on the floor to get a fresh hold she went on her way.

WHERE CLEANLINESS COUNTS

Weymouth Landing is very fortunate in having a candy and ice cream parlor, as well as a restaurant, where cleanliness is the first consideration.

The appreciation of the people is shown in the growth of business in the past two years at Marshalls where Ruud Hot Water is used to scald all dishes and glasses each time they are used.

This store is gas heated and equipped with auxiliary gas lighting, in fact wherever heat is used, gas furnishes the heat.

Two doors further on is found the Gem Lunch. Here again Ruud Hot Water is the means to cleanliness, and we find that gas does the cooking that tastes like home.

TO ERECT NEW BUILDING

Work was started February 14th on the new office building of the Old Colony Gas Company to be erected in front of their present building on Quincy Ave., E. Braintree.

The cost of this new building will be approximately $18,000. It is hoped that the new building will be ready for occupancy early in June.

This will be of great advantage to their consumers, particularly to those who pay their monthly bills at the Company office, which is now on the second floor of the storeroom building.

The new windows and show room should make a very attractive place to see the many gas burning appliances for helping the housewife.

MODERN GAS EQUIPMENT AT ROCKLAND LUNCH CO.

Three things: Cleanliness, service and adaptability were carefully considered by the management of one of Rockland's popular eating places,—The Rockland Lunch Company.

About one year ago the old coal fired equipment used for a number of years by former owners was replaced by the most modern type of heavy duty hotel ranges, using gas fuel. In addition to this, a modern type of instantaneous water heater was installed. These appliances added to the gas fired baking oven, griddle and coffee urn, made a complete gas fired installation.

Without doubt this popular lunch room is one of the finest equipped with modern appliances on the South Shore, for, in addition to the above equipment, the place is heated entirely with Gasteam Radiators. They also use gas for auxiliary lighting.

SUCCESSFUL EVENT

Gas Company announces March discount Saving of 20% to Customers

Up to a few years ago March had been a dull month in the gas appliance business. In order to create business during this month and to keep its Fitting Department employed throughout the year, the Old Colony Gas Company announced a 20% discount sale for the month of March. This has always proved very popular.

Last year during this March sale the orders taken totaled over $8,500. or about 1/6 of the total appliances sold for the year. The saving to gas users during this one sale amounted to more than $2,000.

People will usually look ahead if offered a good reason for doing so and knowing this the Gas Company is offering for the third time a discount of 20% on all domestic gas appliances or piping ordered in March.

The terms during this sale are unusual. A deposit of only 10% of the total costs is required, the balance being payable in twelve monthly installments with the gas bill.

GAS HOUSE HEATING

The Coming Fuel

With the diminishing supplies of coal and oil and the increase in the costs of these commodities, people are turning more and more to the ideal fuel for heating their houses.

When one burns coal in his furnace, what is he really doing? He is heating the coal and driving off the gas, and then what he actually burns is the gas itself. He is losing all the by-products such as tar, ammonia and various drugs which come from coal tar products. He is also losing up the chimney a large proportion of the heat. How much more efficient it is to burn the coal at a central gas plant and save all these by-products and then conduct gas through pipes into ones house.

Gas is becoming more and more recognized as the ideal fuel for heating houses. In Baltimore there are thousands of homes that have been heated with gas for some years. Recently Chicago has actively taken up the heating of houses with gas and is doing this on a large scale. Last year, Denver, where the weather is extremely cold, made hundreds of house heating installations. In the Old Colony district, there are many installations for auxiliary house heating such as gasteam radiators and radiantfires.

The first complete gas fired installation from a central heating plant in the cellar was installed last November at 234 Commercial St., E. Braintree. This consists of a gas fired Bryant steam boiler connected to replace coal fired boiler. In this installation one lights the pilot sometime in October and winds a clock once a week. This is the only labor connected with the operation of such a system. The rest is operated automatically, 70 degrees being maintained throughout the day and any predetermined lower temperature throughout the night. The elimination of coal and ashes saves a great deal of house work as well as taking care of fires. When the man of the house leaves on a cold morning for work he does not have to think of the amount of coal the housewife will have to shovel while he is away.

INTERESTING GROWTH

The increase in the business of the Old Colony Gas Company which serves Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Abington, Rockland and Whitman, gives a very good idea of the great value of gas service to the public.

During the year 1923, the net increase in the number of meters in use amounted to 565. To reach many of these new consumers, over 30,000 feet of additional mains were laid in the streets and over 27,000 feet of service pipe were run. The payroll increased from $61,034.55 in 1922 to $72,055.27 in 1923, all paid to local help.

The increased use of gas during the winter months and the increased use by new consumers resulted in increased sales of 20,826,300 cubic feet over 1922, or over an increase of 16%. To take care of this increased business, the Gas Company had to install a new 7-foot water gas set of a most modern type, with a capacity of 1,000,000 cubic feet per day.

The total investments which the Gas Company has made in improvements and additions to its property for 1923 amounted to $36,759.55.

GAS KITCHEN

The new home of Mr. Gustave Bergfors of Tremont St., Braintree, is being equipped with Ruud hot water and the new Vulcan Smoothtop range finished in white enamel with the oven heat control.

A WORD ABOUT OUR SERVICE

It is to our advantage to have your gas appliances serve you well. If you feel they do not operate properly we would deem it a favor if you would tell us. If it can be fixed we should be glad to do it. There is no charge for our time in making adjustments. Where parts are necessary a small charge is made.

Ideal gas service calls for readiness to deliver the most in cleanliness and utility with a minimum of time and expense at any hour of the day or night.

BREAD BAKING

The Home Town Bakery, located on Commercial St., Weymouth, started business on March 7th, 1921. The largest part of the baking of the bread, with which nearly all of us are familiar, is done with gas fired ovens. The production of this wholesale bakery today is approximately 1,000 loaves of bread per day, besides rolls, pies, cakes, etc.

Mr. Pflaumer spent many years in the baking business before starting the Home Town Bakery. His choice of gas for his work was due to its cleanliness and ease of control.

MODERN GAS KITCHEN

Mr. Robert R. Dilks has recently had installed in his new home at 85 Bluff Rd., North Weymouth, a modern gas kitchen with instantaneous hot water.

This installation consists of: No. A441 Vulcan Smoothtop Gas Range with heat regulator, and No. 95 Ruud Automatic Water Heater.

They do not have to come down stairs an hour before breakfast now, and have saved many steps with a coal hod. The closet which contained a galvanized iron tank is being used for dishes. Hot water is available at all times.

Here is a great saving of space as well as labor, and the appearance of the kitchen has been improved a great deal.

BUYING EGGS BY WEIGHT FAVORED

Practice of Selling Eggs by Weight Gaining Favor.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Apples, potatoes, string beans, and other products handled by the greengrocer or fruit stand are now usually sold by weight instead of by count or measure, but for some reason the habit of handling eggs by the dozen still persists. As every housekeeper knows there is the greatest difference in the size of eggs, even in the same box; and the most up-to-date cookbooks will call for "a cupful of egg whites" or even better, so many "ounces" of egg white, rather than a specific number of eggs.

If women generally would weigh their eggs and persuade dealers that a dozen very small eggs is not worth as much as a dozen fine big ones, the custom of selling eggs by weight would soon become established. The United States Department of Agriculture favors this system of selling eggs as being fair to both buyer and seller. It would encourage the proper sorting and grading of eggs on the part of the producer, and the consumer who found her family satisfied with little eggs could get them cheaper and leave the big ones for somebody else.

HANDLE FRUITS WITH CARE

All Produce Coming From Market Should Be Carefully Washed in Several Waters.

Vegetables and fruits that are to be served raw must be handled and prepared with great care. Most people will agree that such fruits as apples, oranges, and pears may be considered clean if they are picked from the trees in the orchard far enough from the road to escape dust. If they drop to the ground on clean grass, they may still be eaten without much risk, although there will be more chance for their being contaminated with disease-producing bacteria. There may sometimes be danger from poisons used in spraying fruit. All such fruits and all fresh fruits and vegetables, which come from the market should be thoroughly washed in several waters; apples and other large fruits, with unbroken skins may be safely washed with soap.

Dried fruits should be particularly well washed, warns the United States Department of Agriculture. If they are then put into a warm oven to dry, they will absorb the water that clings to them and thus be softened and improved in taste. Dipping in boiling water kills many, if not all, of the bacteria and other organisms that are likely to cling to fresh fruit and does not injure the flavor of many kinds even when they are kept immersed for several seconds. For instance, grapes, apples, pears, peaches and plums, are not injured by this treatment, and unripe strawberries are often improved by it. A wire frying basket for holding the friut will be found a convenience.

CUP CAKES ARE FINE FOR TEA

Make Excellent Change for Sunday Night Supper—Many Kinds of Frostings Good.

Make cup cakes for a change instead of layer cake and serve them with afternoon tea, for lunch, or Sunday night supper. Frostings of many kinds are acceptable but none are more wholesome or better liked than those flavored with orange juice and rind.

Cup Cakes.

¼ cupful butter or other fat	1 cupful milk
2 cupfuls sugar	3 cupfuls flour
4 eggs	3 teaspoonfuls baking powder

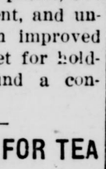

Mix according to the usual method for butter cakes, and bake in gem tins. This recipe should make 24 cakes. The following frosting is recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture as a means of using orange juice and uncooked yolks of eggs:

Orange Frosting.

2 tablespoonfuls orange juice	Yolk of one egg
Grated rind of one orange	Confectioners' sugar

Let the rind stand in the orange juice for 15 or 20 minutes. Strain and add the yolk of the egg to the juice, mix thoroughly and add confectioners' sugar gradually, beating thoroughly until of the right consistency to spread.

All Around the House

When you have chicken giblets to use make a little pie of them.

All breadcrumbs should be saved and dried to use in scalloped dishes.

You can remove iodine stains from any fabric by soaking the article in lime water.

Cornmeal is excellent for cleaning articles of flannel and for taking dust from straw hats.

Lemon juice will remove stains from the hands with moist sugar. This usually proves effective.

NO RATS OR ROACHES REACH THIS CABINET

Alabama Women Inspired by Home Demonstration Club.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Because she liked carpentry, and needed an inexpensive kitchen cabinet, Mrs. M. C. Leavelle of Buhl, Ala., decided to make one for herself. Her husband became interested and assisted her, she states in a letter to the United States Department of Agriculture, adding that the inspiration for making the cabinet, as well as other kitchen improvements, came from the home demonstration club and county home demonstration agent.

"The dimensions of the cabinet," says Mrs. Leavelle, "are 6½ feet high, 46 inches wide and 2 feet thick. It consists of one large drawer and two medium-sized drawers in the bottom section. Over this section is the table 46 inches long by 27 inches wide, which is covered with white oilcloth. The top section consists of one long box on the left side for flour and sugar, a dish closet and two small drawers on the right side. The lumber I used is poplar, which came from our farm. The doors of the top section are made of screen wire. The total cost, including wire, latches, hinges and oilcloth, did not exceed $10. The tools used in making the cabinet were a hand saw, hammer and draw-knife. My cabinet has a double advantage over many I have seen in that it is rat-proof and roach-proof."

Cabinet Is Rat and Roach-Proof.

With her husband's assistance Mrs. Leavelle has added to their home, since joining the Home Demonstration club, a kitchen sink made of wood and lined with sheet iron, a barrel for a water tank, a fireless cooker, a baby bed and a library table. The making of these articles has saved them money and Mrs. Leavelle is very proud of them.

FAVORED FOR SCHOOL LUNCH

Appetizing Combinations Suggested by Department of Agriculture Specialists.

The following menus suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture for the children's lunch basket may remind the mother of some combinations not recently thought of and thus afford a change from the usual monotony of sandwich lunches.

Crisp rolls, hollowed out and filled with chopped meat or fish moistened and seasoned or mixed with salad dressing; orange, apple, a mixture of sliced fruits or berries; cake.

Lettuce or celery sandwiches; cup custard; jelly sandwiches.

Cottage-cheese sandwiches or a pot of cream cheese with bread-and-butter sandwiches; peanut sandwiches; fruit; cake.

Hard-boiled eggs; baking-powder biscuits; celery or radishes; brown-sugar or maple-sugar sandwiches.

Bottle of milk; thin cornbread and butter; dates; apple.

Raisin or nut bread with butter; cheese; orange; maple sugar.

Baked bean and lettuce sandwiches; apple sauce; sweet chocolate.

POSTAL CLERKS

Legion hall, Quincy, was filled to the doors one evening recently with citizens who were gathered to hear the postal employees present their case for a salary increase commensurate with the cost of living.

Letters of regret were read from Congressman Frothingham, Postmaster Roland M. Baker; D. D'Allessandre, president of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union of America; Walter J. Harrisson, president Braintree Board of Trade; Samuel Squibb, president of the Granite Cutters International Association of America; and others.

Charles J. Canavan of the Quincy postoffice spoke for the postoffice clerks, and John T. Cain of the Quincy postoffice for the letter carriers.

The invited guests were Senator Shuebruk, who said that it was an outrage for the great government of the United States to treat its employees in such a miserable manner; Representative Sandberg of Quincy, who said that he believed in higher wages for postal employees; Charles A. Ross, president of the Quincy City Council, who said that the present salaries were inadequate and that he was willing to give any assistance in his power; Representative Allan Lawson of Braintree, who urged the people to write to their Congressmen and Senators in favor of salary legislation; Mrs. Hinds, president of the Quincy Women's club, who said that she was glad to be able to assist in the cause and asked for a speaker to present the case before the Women's club; Representative Prout of Quincy, who offered his assistance in the cause; Simon Swig made an eloquent address; W. W. MacDougall, president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, who believed everybody should assist the postal employees in securing their aims; Councillor Thomas J. McGrath, who made an appeal that everyone send a postal to the Congressmen and Senators requesting them to support the "Kelly-Edge" bill; Joseph Walker, president of the Granite Manufacturers Association, who believed that the pay should at least be equal to the average mechanic, and who said that unskilled labor in his employ was receiving $1 per hour; and Assistant Postmaster Charles L. Hammond, who appealed to the audience to assist in this movement.

Entertainment during the evening was furnished by the King Tut Jazz orchestra of East Weymouth; vocal selections by Thomas Gorman, and novel musical acts by Thompson & Andrews.

President Frank J. Higgins of the South Shore Association of Postal Employees, including Quincy, Weymouth, and Braintree, presided and introduced the speakers.

The meeting adopted a set of resolutions urging on the Congressmen and Senators the passage of the "Kelly-Edge" bill, and directed the secretary of the meeting to forward them to Senators Walsh and Lodge and Congressman Frothingham.

A SURPRISE PARTY

The friends of Sarah E. Cushing gave her a surprise at her home, 30 Lafayette avenue, Feb. 28, being her 83d birthday. "Aunt Sarah", as she is affectionately spoken of, was entirely unprepared for such a visitation when friends began arriving in twos and threes each bringing some token of their high appreciation of Aunt Sarah's friendly and generous disposition. The gifts included many pretty and useful articles, a variety of fruit, confectionery, cut flowers and potted plants.

Ice cream and cake such as only Lafayette avenue folks can make, were served in abundance. A generous birthday cake (also a product of the avenue) ornamented with 83 candles, which was cut and served by the recipient with a hand as steady as any youngster, formed a pleasant feature of a good time which Miss Cushing will hold in happy memory for a long while.

GIRL SCOUTS

The Girl Scouts of South Weymouth are now holding their regular meetings at the former Savings Bank rooms thru the courtesy of the Norfolk club. This is regarded as more than a compliment, but as an endorse- of the organization and the work they are undertaking.

The two South Weymouth teams are practising basketball at the Howe school with growing interest as they await the date on which they are to meet the Thayer Academy troop for a second game. The date has been left to Mrs. Southworth, captain of the visiting troop.

Mrs. Metcalf, the very live captain of the South Weymouth troop, is already teeming with plans to interest and stimulate her troup as well as to meet their longing for spring diversions that is already in evidence.

NEW HIGH SCHOOLHOUSE

The addition to the High School building is practically completed, but the seats have not yet been installed. Some entertainments are being planned to be held in the new hall at an early date, and the graduation exercises will be held there.

JOHN AND FELICE

By AGNES JOHNSON

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

FIRST off, I must tell you that me and Felice is employed at the Blank cafe, which ain't no swell place, maybe, but where everything is clean and the food is well cooked.

Back in the kitchen, Felice totes a wicked dish-rag, and I act as governess to eats from the hole in the wall to the tables. You don't have to have four letters after your name to read the menu, either.

We serve everything from beans to this or that a la something or other, on'y it's written so you can understand it.

Me an' Felice has been chums and room-mates for years, so it come kind of hard on me when she done something that forced me to talk to her like a mother.

Briefly, she was bugs on the "movies." She wrote for circulars and booklets which claimed to know the secret (for sale at a hundred bucks or so) of how to become a "movie" queen though dumb.

Girls is queer nowadays; they fall for the "movies" somethin' awful. Now take me. I might crowd Mary herself if I wanted to, because I got the goods. I'm kind of o-bess-ee. The manager of the cafe says so hisself. But, thank goodness, I got sense.

Now Felice is good to look at, I must admit, but she's dense, awful dense. One little thing in particular was rich: "From Kitchen to Stardom in Six Easy Lessons." After that come there was no reasoning with her. Our room was chock full of such bait, but I think it was that last one which knocked Felice for a ash can. So I decides to marry her off to a nice boy which is in the grocery line and has lots of jack stored away before she goes cuckoo.

Some folks will say that a woman which does that ain't no lady, but us girls is gotta stick together.

The young merchant I have in mind grew up with the business. John Epple knows his canned goods and best trade. But it was a tough job, an' I was ready to quit the looney idea. But wait.

One day I come home and seen Felice rehearsin'. You seen a closeup where they kiss like they was glued together, ain't you? Well, there she stood in front of the on'y thing that tells horrible truths without flinchin', practicin' a long, lingerin' smack.

Hot stew! Felice is on'y 19, but she's long on imagination. Gosh, you'd be surprised. Her ambition was colossal, but her talent measured zero.

"My stars, girl," I says, "how'd you get that way?"

"Hush up, can't you!" Felice snaps back at me. "It's a gift!" And she goes right on doin' her stuff.

"My de-ah," says Felice, talkin' to our bed and bowin' as graceful as a stuffed night shirt, "you quite startled me. But chawmed to see you, I'm shuah."

It was then I decided to save her. So I arrange a rendyvoo at a quiet little place where I introduce John an' Felice, and I get ready to take the air an' wait for the egg to hatch, if you follow me.

Now John ain't no Adonis by five city blocks, an' still less on the sheik thing, but he's a nice kid. Right way he falls for Felice and her come-hither ways, but for a while she looks at me like I was a encroachin' insect.

John begs me to stay and then he invites us to go the limit an' he'll foot the bill. But I'm playin' the injenoo, so we go easy on his bank roll. By an' by a classy waiter comes up an' looks like he'd rather part with his right eye than talk to us.

"We we, garcon tress bean toot sweet," Felice parlyvoos right off the reel.

I almost forgot to say that she talks frog like sixty.

Well, I had a sweetie once, so I know that two is great company until you're married.

After a while I manage to make my get-away. For several weeks after that I don't see much of Felice except at the cafe, an' she don't say no more about shinin' at Hollywood.

Then one night as I'm getting close to our room I hear a merry ripple of laughter that would do your heart good, an' I blow in an' find John an' Felice lookin' at a big mail order catalogue, an' all her "movie" literachoor is missin'.

"Why, Felice," I says, makin' no secret of the fact I'm puzzled, "where's all them books of yourn?"

John blushes an' she turns her head away an' colors like a six-year-old, an' she holds out her left hand, on which is a sparkler that would knock your eye out.

"When?" says I. But Felice just keeps on lookin' goofy an' don't say nothin.'

So I gives her a great big hug an' we both have a good cry. That happened a year ago, so I wasn't surprised to receive a letter a few days ago from Felice, sayin' come up and see the nicest little boy you ever seen.

"I'm prouder than her which vamps on the screen, and far more happy," writes Mrs. Epple.

And she was, for I seen it all myself.

Good Psychology.

Do You Pay Your Bills?

Being One of a Series of Talks on Bills and the Prompt Payment Of Them. Do you owe any Bills That Are Overdue?

"LET'S HAVE AN UNDERSTANDING"

No credit man will turn a debtor down who tells the TRUTH. For TRUTH is the foundation of CREDIT.

YOU owe an account—YOU have owed it for several months—it is long past due—You want to pay it—circumstances, perhaps, have been against you—then in all fairness to the credit man make a frank statement of your conditions.

You will find the credit man willing to help the honest debtor, if he can. More often his hands are tied. The debtor will not make any attempt to make PROMPT PAYMENT of his account. He, there-fore, can not expect any consideration at the hands of the Credit Man.

If you are not willing to make a "clean breast" of your actual conditions, you have not good reason for thinking you will receive any consideration ot the hands of the credit man.

It is useless to dodge the issue for every credit man in Plymouth, Norfolk and Barnstable Counties are acquainted with your method of paying credit obligations. He knows just how you stand with every firm doing business in both counties.

If you don't pay—if you won't be honest enough to give facts—if you don't make any effort whatever to reduce your indebtedness, you may be sure that the credit man is "GOING AFTER" the money due his firm.

Sometimes drastic measures are necessary to collect an account. You can save yourself lots of trouble and much embarrassment by paying your bills promptly, or by giving the credit man valid reasons for your delinquency.

Don't let your bills accumulate!

KEEP THEM PAID UP EVERY MONTH

Weymouth and East Braintree

—Mrs. Wallace S. Halsey entertained the Flower Circle of Union church at the home of her mother, Mrs. George D. Bullock, 94 Washington street, Weymouth. Whist was an enjoyable feature of the entertainment, at which suitable prizes were awarded, after which a collation was served.

—Julius Brava, a well known local business man, who has been ill for the past seven weeks, is now about again and able to attend to his business.

—Miss Ethel Keene, who has been spending the past three months with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chessman L. Keene of Summer street left this week for Mechanic Falls, Maine, where she conducts a millinery business.

—The Ace of Clubs met Tuesday evening, March 4, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson. The winners for the evening were: Mrs. Mabelle Swanson, Harold Buker, Ruth Buker and Charles Jackson.

—The Neighbors Whist club of Hobart street, East Braintree held their 17th party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Williams Feb. 22. Winners of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Brown. The 18th party of the club was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Croke's on Tuesday evening, Feb. 26. Winners of the evening were Teddie Williams and Mrs. Foley. The 19th party of the club was held on Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cody. Winners of the evening were: Mrs. John Cahill and Mr. Maguire. A pleasant evening is spent at each and every party and one who thoroughly enjoyed the evening was the baby, William Francis Cody, and we all say he was "some baby".

—Emerson Coal & Grain Co. Inc. have received a shipment of the popular Franklin Bouletts, $14.50 per ton. —Advertisement

—Letters received from Mrs. Harriet B. Bachelder, who with her sister, Mrs. Ella C. Richards and Edith and George Baker are spending the winter at St. Petersburg, Florida, state that they are having a most enjoyable time; the flowers are in full bloom and vegetables and fruit may be had from the garden every day. They especially enjoy the band concerts given in the park every afternoon. She describes the climate as delightful and that she meets daily some of the other Weymouth and Braintree people who are wintering at that place. Mrs. Bacheldor expects to return early in May.

MARKET REPORT

As a guide to the busy housekeeper the Gazette-Transcript will publish the prices in the Boston market as of Tuesday of the week the Gazette-Transcript is printed.

Parsnips, onions, spinach, cabbage, southern celery, bunched beets and carrots, and mushrooms z

Oranges, bananas, and hothouse rhubarb

Pork rib roast 18—20c lb. Sliced ham 50c lb. Bacon, sliced 40c lb. Beef rib roast 35c lb.

California asparagus, large bunches $1.50. Market luxuries include dandelions 35c lb. Beet greens 30c lb. String beans 35—40c lb. Peas 50c lb. New potatoes 15c lb. Texas Bermuda onions 20c lb. Strawberries 65c qt. basket.

Shippers say egg output will exceed that of 1923. Nearby eggs are lower than last week, retailing 49—53c lb. The farmer's wagon furnishes the transport from farm to market annually for the product of six million farms valued at twice as many billions of dollars. The food and clothing of the nation are carried on its axles. Its load from farm to market marks the origin of 80 per cent of the national industry, despite the fact that the total finished product of industry is several times larger than the total farm product. Market gardeners of Massachusetts trucked to the Boston market last year the equivalent of over 7000 car loads of fruits and vegetables

Try this receipe:

Bread crumb griddle cakes—1½ cup fine dried crumbs, ½ cup flour 1½ cup scalded milk, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 4 level teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons melted fat. Pour the hot milk over the crumbs and let them stand until they are soft. Mix and sift the flour, salt and baking powder. Add slightly beaten egg to milk and crumbs. Mix liquid with dry ingredients. Add melted fat last. Bake on hot griddle that has been lightly greased.

IN MEMORIAN

The death on March 4 of Mrs. Mary Thompson Reardon removed from among us one who through many years as a neighbor showed in her quiet way her christianity and regard for fellow beings. Born in Ireland in 1830 the early years were spent in the convent boarding schools of her native land. At the age of 16 years she sailed alone for this country to meet her father. The old-time sailing vessel in which she embarked was wrecked in mid ocean and passengers transferred to another boat. For days they suffered from lack of drinking water and finally landed in Philadelphia after being on the ocean twelve weeks.

After her marriage her home was established on Pleasant street, South Weymouth, where she had lived for many years, passing away on Tuesday last surrounded by her loved ones.

May she rest in peace.

INTERESTING SOUTH SHORE NEWS BUDGET

—Among the appropriations at the Cohasset town meeting were $60,000 for schools, $35,000 for highways, $15,000 for town welfare department, $9000 for police, $9500 for firemen, $8500 for street lighting, $500 for Memorial Day.

—Kingston referred the purchase of a motor pumping engine to a committee. The town accepted the bequest of $25,000 left by Thomas Prince of Worcester, a former resident, for the benefit of poor and sick of the town. Mr. Prince also left $5000 for care of the old burying grounds, which was placed in the hands of the selectmen.

—Rev. James Nobbs, for many years pastor of the First Baptist church at Marshfield, died March 5. He was born in England and was 86 years of age.

—Duxbury elected as selectmen—Alfred E. Green, Sidney C. Soule and Wendell Phillips. The license vote was Yes 172, no 125.

At the annual town meeting in Duxbury on Saturday it was voted to request the state to replace the statue of Miles Standish on the Standish monument. The statue was thrown from its base and badly damaged when it was struck by lightning two years and a half ago. The voters appropriated $85,000 for a new senior and junior high school building, $50,000 for roads and bridges, $36,500 for public school expenses.

—At the annual town election in Plymouth on Saturday 1490 votes were cast out of a total of 3548. The Selectmen elected are William T. Eldridge, Frank Eastwood, Josiah Robbins, Henry W. Barnes and Emerson Sampson.

—Walter H. Faunce, Albert F. Holmes and George E. Fogg were elected selectmen at the annual town meeting in Kingston on Saturday. Mr. Faunce is 92 years of age and has been on the board for many years.

—The funeral of William H. Watson was held at his late home on the County Way, Scituate Center, March 4. Rev. Karl Knudson officiated. There were many floral tributes. Burial was in Fairview cemetery. Mr. Watson died at the age of 67, Sunday morning in the Charlesgate Hospital, Boston, of pneumonia. He was born in Scituate, son of Mr. and Mrs. Galen Watson, and resided during his youth at the homestead at Mongos Corner. He married Ida Bearce of this town. He was an employee at Dreamwold for 20 years, and for 30 years served as janitor of the Congregational church. He leaves a wife, a daughter, Mrs. Hamilton W. Welch, and two brothers, Frank N. and Galen of Scituate Center.

THE AUTO SHOW

While the main exhibit at the Auto Show in the Mechanics Building is on the street floor and many handsome models are displayed, the basement display is attracting considerable attention. Thousands are pouring in and out of it every day and the scope of motor truck equipment is surprising. Fire engines of all types are shown: ladder trucks, hose wagons, chemical units and speed apparatus; dump trucks employing new and novel methods of tilting bodies; tank cars for transporting gasoline and liquids and delivery cars of all variety.

An armored car, shown by one exhibitor, is formidably built of thick steel. It has numerous openings in its body, all protected by small shields for the use of firearms. The glass windshield is bullet proof and the proof is offered in many marks and cracks in it, the only effect of shots fired at it. The car is a fortress on wheels.

Automobile men are deeply interested in the growing number of busses being shown every year. This year's increase brings some novel departure in motor travel. Some are equipped like parlor cars with swinging, cushioned seats. Others have separate compartments for travelers, similar to those used on European trains, and others look like modern street cars.

WEYMOUTH CHAPTER, RED CROSS

Dr. E. Preston Jones of the New England division of the Red Cross was in Weymouth this week to give first aid demonstrations and instruction. The program opened with an assemblage of all the Boy Scouts of Weymouth at the Methodist church, East Weymouth, Monday evening.

Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday afternoon, the 11th and 12th, Dr. Jones met with the regular men of the police department at the police station.

Thursday afternoon at the close of the school session in the High school hall, Dr. Jones gave a demonstration to the High school boys.

This Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock he will meet the boys' clubs of the Clapp Memorial at which time all members of the Memorial Association will be welcome.

Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings were given to the fire department, one evening to each house in the folowing order: Tuesday evening at the Central Fire House at East Weymouth; Wednesday evening at South Weymouth; Thursday evening at North Weymouth and Friday evening at the Landing.

It will be possible for those men wishing a second evening of instruction to call at one of the other houses on their night. It is also hoped that the special police will avail themselves of an opportunity of meeting with the local fire companies by whom they will be welcomed.

Weymouth Rotary Club Permanently Organized

An organization which promises much for the community was launched last evening—the Rotary Club of Weymouth. Only those who have become familiar with the workings of a Rotary Club, or were present at such a gathering as that last evening can understand the enthusiasm of members and its methods. But as some of the speakers remarked, the Rotarian movement comes at an opportune time, when people seem to have lost confidence in their government and in business integrity.

The charter members of the new Rotary Club are representative business men of Weymouth. Here are their names and their titles for there is a fine to address them other than by their first name:

J. Leonard Bicknell (Len)
Proctor Chandler (Proctor)
Rev. P. J. Dawson (Father)
Lemuel A. Dill (Dill)
William H. Donovan (Bill)
Wallace H. Drake (Ducky)
Frederick Dyer (Fred)
William W. Grieves (Bill)
William A. Hodges (Will)
Edward P. Hunt (Ed)
Charles G. Jordan (Charles)
J. Caleb Justice (Caleb)
Edward I. Loud (Ed)
Joseph E. Ludden (Ed)
J. E. Mulligan (Ed)
Parker T. Pearson (P. T.)
J. H. Pflaumer (Henry)
William E. Pray (Bill)
F. Wayland Preston Jr. (Bill)
Clarence M. Price (Clarence)
Oswald Ralph (Ralph)
Herbert Rossiter (Bert)

A board of seven directors were elected and they elected the following officers:

President—Charles G. Jordan

Vice President—Dr. Wallace H. Drake

Secretary—Edward I. Loud

Treasurer—J. Leonard Bicknell

Before the program of the evening started it became evident to a novitiate that the Rotarians are a lively bunch. Nearly 100 were present, including 25 from the Quincy Club, 16 from the Braintree Club, 7 from the Brockton Club, and others from Boston, Cambridge and elsewhere. Each member greets other members by their first names, or he may be called upon to pay a fine. Singing is always a prominent part of the meetings and the Rotarians have special song sheets with a true Rotarian flavor. Here is a sample, sung to the tune "It's nice to get up in the morning:

"Oh! It's great to belong to Rotary,
And serve your fellowman;
He profits most who serves the best
Upon the Rotary Plan;
Around the world it's going,
This 'Brotherhood of Man';
Oh! It's great to belong to Rotary
And be a Rotarian."

On this occasion there were three song leaders, Jim Moorhead of the Quincy Club, Ralph Bonnell of the Braintree Club, and Father Dawson of the Weymouth Club, and they kept things humming. When not leading the singing Jim was busy collecting fines which he imposed. Music was also furnished by Allen's orchestra.

The ball room was very prettily decorated and baskets of flowers were suspended and bouquets placed on the tables.

First on the program was a caterer's supper at 6.30 in the Gem ball room, the menu being as follows:

Fruit Cup
Bisque of Tomato Dinner Biscuits
Olives Radishes Celery
Hot roast tenderloin, Mushroom sauce
Delmonico Potatoes String Beans
Chicken Salad
Ice Cream
Frozen Pudding Fancy Harlequin
Sultana Roll Fruit Sauce
Orange Parfait Raspberry Parfait
Assorted Cakes
Coffee

After a salute to the flag and the invocation by Rev. J. Caleb Justice, greetings were extended by Special Representative Robert S. Gaskell, the retiring president of the Quincy Club.

After the organization under the direction of "Bob" Gaskell and "Art" McGilvray already noted above, President Jordan was introduced and spoke briefly.

The "Rotary Charge" was delivered by Daniel F. Sullivan of Fall River, governor of District No. 31, who congratulated Weymouth and the membership. He said the Rotary was not fraternal, not political, and non-sectarian. It was difficult to give a definition of Rotary, but it has ideals and is international and since first organized 19 years ago on the 23d of February has had a wonderful development, there being 1687 clubs in 21 different countries with 98,700 members. Time and space will not permit extended reports of the addresses.

"Bunny" Farren brought the greetings of the Quincy Club, and Clarence W. Carlisle those of the Boston Club. President Goddard from the Brockton Club, President Gustaf Bergfors from the Braintree, while Prof. Stacy B. Southworth of Thayer Academy spoke on "Rotary's Vision of the Future". All were greeted enthusiastically.

The Weymouth Club will meet every Wednesday noon for lunch, and next Wednesday the meeting will be in charge of President Goddard of the Brockton Club; a week later in charge of the Braintree Club, and then the Quincy Club. All Clubs extended invitations to attend their meetings and also the district conference in Worcester two days in April.

MEETING OF SELECTMEN

The Selectmen held a meeting at the Town Office Monday afternoon, all the members being present.

Messrs Dasha and Perry were appointed a finance committee.

The board voted to hold a joint meeting with the board of assessors next Monday afternoon to choose an assessor in the place of the late Charles H. Clapp.

Irving Johnson was elected superintendent of streets at a salary of $3000 the amount voted at the town meeting.

Chief of Police Arthur H. Pratt recommended the appointment of Charles Coyle as permanent officer and Anthony Panoria for the provisional term of six months.

The board recommended to the state the name of James T. Nettles as inspector of animals.

Winfred Bonney was appointed superintendent of the alewive fishery.

Oscar F. Cox was elected harbor master and was also appointed a special police officer.

Seventy-one were appointed as special police.

The board requested the Chief of Police to have a police officer at the E. B. Nevins school at the opening and closing of the school.

The Telephone Company petitioned for location of new conduits as follows Main street from Front to Columbian; Middle street from Charles street 197 feet; Columbian street from Pleasant about 379; Bridge street from Bay View to North; and on Middle street to the Telephone exchange.

At a joint meeting of the board and the board of Water Commissioners, Emerson Dizer was chosen town accountant at a salary of $2500.

DAILY CALENDAR

The Daily Resolutions Calendar for April prepared by Rev. K. A. Handanian will be printed in the Gazette-Transcript next week. The calendar will be continued the last Friday of each month.

—The sun rises before six and next week will set after six. The days have got the best of the nights.

TOWN MEETING ACT

Less than a dozen Weymouth people attended the hearing at the State House Wednesday morning by the Committee on Towns on the petition for amendment to the Weymouth Limited Town Meeting Act, introduced into the Legislature by Frank N. Clapp.

Mr. Clapp briefly introduced Arthur C. Gertsley and Thomas P. Vaille, who gave the reasons of the petitioners for a change. Briefly stated these are to reduce the percentage of office holders in the limited town meetings; to curtail the powers of the Annual Moderator who now appoints fifteen men, all of whom become ex-officiis Town Meeting Members; to prevent town officials serving on the Appropriation Committee.

Representative Prince H. Tirrell and Town Counsel William J. Holbrook did not appear in opposition, but explained the situation to the committee. Did not think any change should be made in the Act until the time came to take it up section by section.

The committee seemed to be of the same mind and will probably report leave to withdraw.

PROSPEROUS CHURCH YEAR

The Congregational church of East Weymouth held its annual meeting on Tuesday evening. Reports were read from the various organizations showing all in good condition. The pastor, Rev. K. A. Handanian, gave a review of the work of the year and outlined plans for the coming year. These officers were elected: clerk and treasurer, W. M. Reamey; deacon four years, Frank M. Coffin; church committee, Miss Adeline M. Canterbury, Miss Florence E. Earle and Miss Martha Hawes; deaconesses, Miss Janet A. Harlow, Mrs. Henry R. Hawkes and Miss Lillian M. Keene; committee on benevolences, Fred B. Garey, Ernest A. Smith, Mrs. W. M. Tirrell, Mrs. Arthur Cuningham and Herbert W. Rockwood.

—At Brockton March 15, Miss Sophia P. Van Amringe of Scituate became the bride of Police Inspector Orrin A. Saunders of Brockton.

BLUE MONDAY?

One Dollar Will Change The Color!

Like the youngster hesitating on the springboard because the water's c-o-o-o-ld, so you've been stuttering along trying to dig up courage enough to save just a bit of each week's pay check.

Monday Morning--blue Monday again--and most of Saturday's dollars gone the way of last week's and the many many weeks before that.

Just a single dollar bill would have pried open the lid and started you on the road to a real future.

This Bank is glad to help you. It accepts accounts as little as one dollar simply to help you "get the habit".

Weymouth Cousins Receive Large Bequests

According to word received in Weymouth this week 59 persons living in Weymouth, Braintree and Quincy, all of them cousins of the late Alexander F. Morrison, a leading California lawyer, have received bequests of $1,000 each under his will, which was recently probated in San Francisco. Mr. Morrison, a native of Weymouth, died several months ago while on a trip to Japan with members of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

His will disposed of an estate valued at $2,500,000. The largest bequest was one of $1,000,000 to the University of California, where the testator studied law. To his sister he bequeathed $100,000.

He was born on Feb. 22, 1856, in what is known as the old Hallowell place at 272 Washington street, Weymouth. When he was a boy his father, Archibald Morrison, removed to San Francisco Following Alexander Morrison's graduation from college he rose rapidly in his profession and his ability as an attorney was demonstrated by a recent tribute paid by the bar of the United States circuit court, at a session over which Judge William D. Gilbert presided and at which resolutions were adopted to appear on the court record and will appear in the Gazette next week.

The relatives of Mr. Morrison in Weymouth are the children of his nephews, the late John, Michael and Domino Hart, the first having three sons and one daughter; Michael, one son and four daughters, and Dominco one son and one daughter, and their children, all cousins of Mr. Morrison. In all there are 27 relatives here in the East—in Weymouth, Braintree, and Quincy—and 32 relatives in the West, making a total of 59 that will benefit.

BERTHA C. NASH

In the passing away of Miss Bertha C. Nash which occurred Wednesday, March 19, there has passed from the community of Weymouth Heights a life which has shone forth as a beautiful example of Christianity, a girl that is sincerely loved by both young and old.

Bertha, who was born in Weymouth Heights on April 28, 1895, was the daughter of Charles Carroll and Julia A. (Clapp) Nash, and a direct descendant of Agnes and John Bicknell of the Plymouth Colony. In her life and work she upheld the best traditions of the Pilgrim ancestry; she was true-hearted, sincere and earnest. She was graduated from the Weymouth High school in 1914.

From childhood associated with the First Church in Weymouth, Bertha united with the church at the age of 17. She was always a loyal worker at all times faithful to her duties, being many years a Sunday school teacher and was for several years a consecrated member of the Y. P. S. C. E. at the First Church. Her life was one of service for the Master and service for others.

Wishing to use her talents, she spent time and study on her voice, developing in herself a most beautiful soprano soloist. She served her own church as soloist, also the Pilgrim church, North Weymouth, also the Universalist church, Weymouth, and was soloist at the Old South Union church, South Weymouth, for two years, until the time of her declining health. Singing right from her heart in notes so clear, true and sweet, she has preached many a sermon and touched many hearts.

During the Tercentenary celebration of the First Church in September, 1923, though her health did not permit her to take her strength, she entered into the musical programs and sung "Unto the Lord" with enthusiasm and deep feeling.

Those who have been privileged to be associated with Bertha in the business world, in her religious work, to be received into her friendship and to enjoy her many genuinely good and lovable qualities, have been impressed by her steadfastness, her sunshiny disposition, her strength of character, and the charm of her smile.

For two years Bertha's health has been declining, she having had a hard struggle. Winter of 1923 she spent in Lakeland, Florida, trying to regain her health, but it was in vain and she became aware of her incurable disease yet she was always hopeful, never complaining but doing just the best she could. For the past five months she has been confined to her chamber but in spite of her sufferings, her life each day has been one of thoughtfulness, so sweet, so peaceful and trusting and her cheerfulness and faith in God has been an inspiration to the community. Every day she has been showered with blessings of love and remembrances by her many friends to whom she has endeared herself.

She will be greatly missed, not only by her relatives, her mother, and two sisters, Ruth and Florence, which she leaves, but also by her many friends.

A prayer service will be held at her late home at 491 Commercial street, Weymouth Heights, on Saturday, March 22, at 1.30 o'clock. Funeral services will be held at the First church, Weymouth Heights, Saturday at 2 o'clock.

GIRL SCOUTS

The Girl Scouts of South Weymouth trip to the swimming tank at Brockton proved a delightful and successful outing and created the desire for repeated trips there. All enjoyed the swimming exercises and three of the troop passed their swimming test there.

The meeting March 14 was spent indoors. The girls enjoyed an interesting hour in nature study.

Saturday included a visit to the Natural History rooms in Boston, where lessons were enjoyed. Then the troop visited St. Paul's cathedral and from there went to the Old South Meeting House where the collection of historic articles was made interesting and instructive by their captain, Mrs. Metcalf.

This week Wednesday the football team met the Boy Scouts second team with the boys taking handicaps enough to give the girls a fair hand in the contest.

The basketball team is scheduled to play the Thayer Academy team on April 9 at the academy.

The ladies of the Girl Scouts committee will meet with Mrs. Prince Tirrell, Pleasant street, on Monday evening, March 24.

THE BONUS BILL

The soldier bonus bill passed by the National House on Tuesday 355 to 54 provides for the following payments:

Exclusive of the first 60 days of service each enlisted man and woman and officer up to and including the rank of captain in the army and marine corps and lieutenant senior grade in the navy is entitled to a credit of $1 for each days of home service and $1.25 for each day of overseas service. If all service was at home $500 is the maximum allowed and if part was overseas $625 is the maximum.

Those not entitled to more than $50 would be paid in cash and to others an insurance policy would be issued. The amount of this policy is figured on the total of adjusted compensation due on length of service plus one-fourth of that total.

The value of the insurance policy may then be computed by multiplying total compensation by the proper factor shown in the accompaning table prepared by the veterans bureau. The age of the veteran at the nearest birthday to the date at which the certificate is issued should be used. The policies would be dated Jan. 1, 1925, under terms of the bill.

Thus, a veteran who is 32 years old at the time his policy is issued and who would be entitled to the maximum amount of overseas service credit—$625—would be entitled to a policy equal to $625 plus $156.25 (one-fuorth of that sum) multiplied by 2.517 or $1966.

NO MONOPOLY OF RADIO

More effective governmental supervision of radio communication, including authority to prevent attempts to monopolize the ether, has been recommended to the House committee on merchant marine in Washington by Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce. Secretary Hoover gave his approval to the purposes of the White bill, now pending, to prohibit monopoly of radio communication, providing that the interstate commerce commission shall review the rates charged for such service, and laying down drastic regulations governing the issuance of licenses by the secretary of commerce for the operation of broadcasting stations.

"It is urgent", said Secretary Hoover, "that we have an early and vigorous reorganization of the law on federal regulation of radio. Not only are there questions of orderly conduct of the multitude of radio activities in which more authority must be exerted in the interest of every user, whether sender or receiver, but the question of monopoly in radio communication must be squarely met. It is not conceivable that the American people will allow this new born system of communication to fall exclusively into the power of any individual, group or combination."

WOMEN'S CLUB WEEK

Something new in summer conferences is heralded for the month of June, the first "women's club week" at the Massachusetts Agricultural college at Amherst, arranged by Mrs. Everett M. Willis, chairman of the home economics department of the State Federation, assisted by Mrs. Harry A. Burnham. The dates set are June 11, 12, 13, and 14.

The festivity, centering about the famous college of this pretty New England town, will open with addresses of welcome and responses on Wednesday evening, June 11, and an illustrated autochrome lecture on "Old and New World Gardens" given by Dr. Waugh of the college. The remainder of the week until Saturday noon will be given over to other fine addresses, several speakers from the English department of dramatic criticism participating, lectures on gardening given in the rhodendron garden, a trip to Mt. Tom, with dinner by sunset, and interesting excursions about the campus and to the college laboratories

Robert Frost is expected to give readings from his poems. The guests will be domiciled at the dormitories, where there are accommodations for nearly 100, and also in private homes nearby, and the splendid cafeteria at the college will supply delicious meals at inexpensive rates. The promoters of this alluring project anticipate much enthusiasm among club women who will welcome a brief change in the early summer. Mrs. Harry A. Burnham, 68 Brookside avenue, Newtonville, will supply information and make reservations for applicants in the order received.

NEAR EAST FIELD DAYS

Eleven of the Weymouth churches are cooperating in what will be the largest series of church field days in the United States in the latter part of March and early April.

Field workers of the Near East Relief will tell of their experiences in the Holy Land, Syria, Armenia and Greece and the work of reconstruction being done with 54,000 orphans.

The Near East Relief now has in its care about 60,000, the most of whom are promising children. As rapidly as possible the children from the orphanages are being placed in homes or apprenticed in industries. During the past year more than 10,000 have been thus placed or otherwise discharged. Constant search is made for relatives of children who are in these orphanages in order to place them with their own families. Some older orphans have been graduated from these orphanages to self-support.

In its constructive program which is the salvation of the children of the Near East and the best work the Americans have done in the world, the Near East Relief is the one outside agency or organization which is helping to restore the people to normal life and preserve and develop their basic industries. Agricultural projects are being carried on by special men under the Near East Relief auspices. Industrial training programs are well organized and going forward most successfully.

Twill Frocks for All-Around Wear

Time-Defying Material One of Most Satisfactory Among Fabrics.

"Yes, madam, that little twill dress will wear," the salesgirl may tell you as you look at "ready-mades."

And you are sensible, indeed, writes an authority, if you do decide on a twill weave, whether your dress is to be a ready-to-wear or a garment of your own concoction. For the object of twill weaving is not simply to produce cloths that are more fancy and attractive than the plain fabrics, but to make them heavier and stronger. Twills are almost always closer in texture than plain weaves are. Most twills have a diagonal appearance—the surfaces are covered with diagonal lines running across the cloth. If these lines are very plainly marked the cloth is known as "diagonal" rather than twill, but it should not be forgotten that diagonals are nothing but extremely clearly marked twills.

In twill weaves, the threads do not go over and under regularly, as they do in plain weaves. Instead, the threads are so woven that they go over one and under two, or over one and under three, four, five or six; or over two or three and under one, two, three or four; and there may be several other combinations.

By the use of yarn of different sizes, of different qualities and of different colors, many effects are possible. Again, weavers can vary the directions of the diagonal lines to almost any angle. The lines may curve, wave, be broken or go unbroken. When the direction of the diagonal lines is reversed, at short intervals, so as to form a zigzag line, the pattern is called "herringbone," because of a supposed likeness to the arrangement of the backbone in a herring.

Among the twills, those of cotton may be jean, ticking, drilling moleskin, canton flannel, twilled dimity. Linen twills include linen ticking, drilling, table and towel drills and marsella cloths. Among wool twills are serge, prunella, cashmere, buckskin, merino and thibet. Silk twills include silk serge, twill foulard and silk croise.

Of all weaves, twill is one of the most satisfactory. It is a firm, compact cloth which wears well and keeps its shape better than many of the other weaves do. Some people consider it better-looking. It has this one drawback: although twill cloth seems to stay clean longer than a plainly woven cloth does, because the dirt is not so immediately noticeable, it is harder to clean.

Even so, for all-around purposes, one does well to choose the time-defying twill.

Colorful Wee Frocks

Each season children's fashions emphasize the youthful charm of colorful little frocks whose inspiration is plainly derived from the smock of European peasants. There is nothing so becoming to the very small person as straight, simple lines, which, however, are given individuality and character by the choice of materials and by distinctive touches of exquisite handwork.

Suits Again Popular

The tailored suit has come into its own once more. It is shown in a variety of materials. A suit is made of a heavy white cotton material with a large figure, also of white, through it, strongly resembling the old-fashioned Marseilles spreads. The suit is strictly tailor-made.

IVERS & POND PIANO CO.

An incident of much interest in the piano business is the removal about April first of the Ivers & Pond Piano Company's warerooms and offices to their own new building at 258 Boylston street, Boston, which they will occupy exclusively.

For 29 years, the most active and productive of its corporate history, the warerooms and offices have been at 114 Boylston street and in that time the industry has seen the Ivers & Pond develop to its present high position among the world's best pianos; and its use in more than 500 leading educational institutions and 70,000 homes.

While many changes have come into the piano industry in that time and old names, once familiar, have lost significance, the policy and identity of the Ivers & Pond house remain the same—squarely committed to superlative musical quality, utmost structural integrity and proprietorship of the original interests responsible for its foundation and development.

TEST HOLDING POWER OF 4-WHEEL BRAKES

Leon T. Sheppler, automobile dealer of Los Angeles recently drove his car down the steps of the Third street tunnel to test the holding power of the four-wheel brakes.

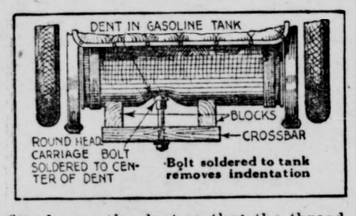

Good Driver Known by:

His skillful steering.
His ease of handling.
His thoughtfulness of pedestrians.
His properly adjusted steering apparatus.
His strict obedience to every traffic regulation.
His extensive and intelligent use of arm signals.
His use of the brakes before he gets to the curve.
His protection of his motor; his use of second and first speeds.
His alternate use of foot and hand brakes on long grades and in emergencies.
His avoidance of all obstacles, without endangering the occupants of his car, or any other car.
His respect for railway crossings; he stops, looks and shifts gears before he is actually on the tracks.

Repairing Dented Gas Tank by Simple Plan

If ever the gasoline tank of your car becomes dented, the tank may be repaired simply in this manner:

The first step is to fill the tank with water and drain it, to avoid any possibility of a gasoline explosion when solder is applied. A round-end carriage bolt is then soldered firmly to the center of the dinged portion of the tank. A crossbar with two blocks is fitted over the dent so that the threaded end of the bolt passes through it. By means of a nut and washer on the bolt sufficient pressure can be exerted on the depression to draw it out flush.

If the hole was made by a collision, the same method may be used and the opening filled with the solder left after the bolt is removed.—M. T., in Popular Science Monthly.

Window in Car Ahead Is Help to Avoid Crashes

The glass window light in the back curtain of the car ahead can be very useful. Through it a lot of dangers can be seen in advance, much to the advantage of the man who is in the wake.

Where cars are running abreast of each other so that the road cannot be seen by looking around the car ahead, it is best to drive just far enough in back of the other car to look through its window light and windshield at the street ahead. When a quick stop is necessary the stopping of the car ahead will not be unexpected—nor so dangerous.

In close congestion where cars are moving very slowly, and only a few feet at a time, the stop signal can be saved a lot of unnecessary flashing, and the battery current saved, if the driver would use his emergency brake.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

Backlash, when in the steering column itself, is usually due to depreciation of the gearing and wear in the various members which support the column.

A dynamo is a machine for converting mechanical energy into an electrical current; a starting motor transforms the electrical current into mechanical energy.

When spark plugs habitually become fouled with oil and soot it is a good plan to investigate and see whether they may not be projecting too far into the combustion chamber.

STARTING ENGINE IN ZERO WEATHER

Priming Is Probably the Best Way Out of Predicament —Warm Up Slowly.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

To start an automobile engine in zero weather is quite a problem, the difficulty of which depends upon the construction and size of the engine, the quality of fuel used, the strength of the spark, and, of course, the height of the mercury in the thermometer at the particular time.

As a first aid in starting, priming is probably the best way out of the predicament. There are many ways of priming an engine. The chief idea of priming is to get a rich explosive mixture that will fire the instant it touches the spark gaps. After the engine has been coaxed into starting it will—if so inclined—get up enough speed to run upon its customary allowance of gasoline. To make doubly sure it is advisable to pull out the primer a short distance to make the usual mixture slightly richer than normal until the engine obtains sufficient heat for average carburetion.

Take Time in Warming Up.

Take time in warming up the engine. Don't stamp your foot down on the accelerator and allow the engine to race like a brokendown Lewis gun, for with the poor lubrication, it usually results in serious damage. It is bound to have a bad effect if practiced regularly. Run the engine slowly for three or four minutes before setting it to work, and you can economize not only in repair bills, but also in oil and gasoline.

When you start your car on a cold mornings, have you noticed that the self-starter whirs a longer time than it did in summer before the engine starts? The self-starter is designed to start the engine and will, if the battery is in proper condition. But bear in mind that the current consumption is not by any means proportional to the time that the self-starter consumes to start the engine.

More Current Demanded.

The greater viscosity of cold oil in winter will make the starting torque so great as to demand three or four times the amount of current from the battery than it did in summer. Therefore, assist the starting motor by providing the rich mixture mentioned. All of this mixture does not reach the cylinders, as much of it will condense on the cold walls of the intake manifold. In doing this you remove a goodly portion of the burden that would otherwise be demanded from the battery.

Homemade Wrench Handy for Many Car Purposes

A monkey wrench is a very handy tool, but it has a bad habit of opening of its own accord, and sometimes results in bruised knuckles, says the Automobile Digest. A complete set of solid wrenches is frequently too expensive for the car owner to purchase; but with a little labor, every car owner can possess a set which will answer every purpose. A wrench can be made from a piece of old pipe, flattened either at one or both ends or in the middle. The flattening is done by heating to redness and hammering. As the common grade of piping has a seam, care should be taken to keep the seam in the center of the flattened portion, rather than near the ends. The opening is produced by first drilling and then filing to shape.

Cause of Dim Lights

Did you ever wonder why the engine does not show the accustomed pep or why the lights burn dimly or the ignition seems poor? Unfasten the wires and bars at the battery terminals and notice if they are clean. They must be clean if current is to flow freely. Scrape off with a stick any green or white deposit you see, and spread a little cup grease over the parts to prevent corrosion.

YOU are assured by Mr. Dollar Bill that it is a matter of saving dollars and sense to do business with us. We will tell you how you can prolong the wear of your tires and when you do have a blow-out we will vulcanize it as vulcanizing should be done. Our expertness only costs you the actual time and materials used on the job.

The shop that gives your dollar a long ride.

The company spends vast sums on co-operative work with us. When we retire, we get pensions.

So Studebaker cars represent the best that we, in combination, know how to offer you.

Some of us belong to management. If we do better than expected, we get 10% of the excess.

So every man among us does his best to make Studebaker cars supreme.

Our fine backing

Behind us is an honored name. For 72 years Studebaker has been the leader in quality and class.

We have $90,000,000 of assets. We have $50,000,000 in model plants. We have 12,500 up-to-date machines. So Studebaker cars are built by modern and efficient methods.

We have an engineering department which costs $500,000 yearly. That to maintain and develop Studebaker standards.

We subject Studebaker cars to 30,000 inspections. That requires 1,200 men. All told over 70,000 machine and hand operations are performed in manufacture of a Studebaker car. In so many operations, though each one is small, there is a great opportunity for economies and savings.

We have a $10,000,000 body plant, to maintain the Studebaker standard of coach work. There sons, fathers and grandfathers are working together, to build such bodies as Studebaker always built.

Those bodies are finished by many operations, including 15 coats of paint and varnish.

The open bodies are upholstered in real leather. The closed bodies in Chase Mohair. That is made from the silky fleece of Angora goats.

We pay for those extras — and others—out of savings. Building our own bodies saves you on some types up to $300 per car.

We never stint

The rule here is to give the utmost in every part and detail.

We have 35 formulas for steel. Each has been demonstrated best for its purpose. On some of these steels we pay 15% premium to get the formulas exact.

See how Studebaker gained top place

145,167 people last year paid $201,000,000 for Studebaker cars.

The sales have almost trebled in the past three years. Studebaker growth in fine cars is the marvel of this industry.

Go see the reasons. See the scores of extra values Studebaker offers.

There are 13 models. Prices start at $1025. They go to the highest price a fine car needs to cost.

Don't buy a car for years to come without knowing how Studebaker gained its amazing popularity.

All Studebaker models are equipped with Timken bearings. There are few cars in America, regardless of price, which equal ours on this point. In our Light-Six, for instance, we put more Timken bearings than are used in any competitive car, within $1,500 of its price.

We give unusual equipment. On some Big-Six models, for instance, we include two nickel-plated bumpers, one or two extra disc wheels with cord tires, a courtesy light, a motometer, steel trunk, etc.

How we do this

We give you these extra values through quantity production. We build 150,000 cars per year — more than any other fine-car builder. Our large expenses are divided by that enormous output.

We do it by building our own bodies, our own parts. Thus we save outside profits.

We do it because we have up-to-date plants, with all forms of modern equipment.

The results are these: Beauty, quality and luxury such as no maker can surpass.

Prices far below the usual. Our Light-Six, built by ordinary methods, would sell for from $200 to $400 more. Our Big-Six can be compared only with the highest-priced cars in the world.

Here are 13 models, from $1,025 to $2,685. Each of them offers scores of advantages over any comparable car. They offer such values that the trend toward Studebakers has become overwhelming.

Go analyze the reasons before you buy a quality car.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

Some Boston and Quincy papers announced Monday that daylight saving would be resumed March 30, but the law has been amended. As has been the case the last two years in Massachusetts, daylight saving will extend this year from 2 A. M. on the last Sunday in April to the same hour on the last Sunday in September. The period originally set by the general laws was from the last Sunday in March to the last Sunday in October. In deference to the wishes of the farmers, however, the law was amended in 1921 by eliminating one month from each end of the seven-month period.

FRAUDULENT ADVERTISING

A few years ago Massachusetts passed a law against misrepresentations in advertising, punishable by a fine. The electric cars from Quincy, via Quincy avenue, never did run to Weymouth Landing, although formerly they were operated as far as the railroad crossing, over 1000 feet from the Weymouth line. Now they do not run within 2000 feet of the Weymouth line, yet they display signs deceiving the patrons, announcing that they run to Weymouth Landing. Will someone call this to the attention of the district attorney?

—The Service League met at the house of Mrs. Lillian Gladwin on Tuesday evening. After the regular business meetings several papers were read on "Japan".

—Avery enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Miss Esther W. Tirrell, 20 Cedar street, when 23 of her young friends were entertained. The occasion was her 15th birthday. The house was prettily decorated in pink. Miss Esther received many dainty and useful gifts.

MONDAY CLUB

The regular meeting of the Monday Club was held last Monday, President Mrs. Jewell presiding. This meeting stands out as one of the high lights of the club year, not only as the annual musicale, but also as the afternoon when the Hingham Woman's Club and the Weymouth school teachers are guests of honor, and a very large attendance filled the rooms to overflowing.

Mrs. Jewell graciously welcomed the guests on behalf of the club. The program was given by the R. S. B. Trio, Emily Wardwell Russell, soprano; George Sykes, dramatic tenor; and J. Albert Baumgartner, pianist. Each of the members of this trio is a noteworthy artist, and the combination insured a program of unusual merit.

Mr. Baumgartner has pleased the club on previous occasions with his work at the piano. Particularly pleasing were the duet numbers. In the last group of songs Mrs. Russell appeared in victorian costume and made a charming picture. The program follows:

Duet, "A night in Venice" Lucantoni
Songs, Soprano
a—"The wind's in the south" Scott
b—"Pirate dreams" Huerter
c—"Far, far away" Tirindelli
Piano solos—Rigoletto paraphrase Verdi-Liszt
Songs, Tenor
a—"Love sends a little gift of roses" Openshaw
b—"Sunrise and you" Penn
c—"M'apparitutt amor" Flotow
Duet, from "Il Trovatore" Verdi
Piano solos
a—"Dream of love" Lizt
b—"March of the dwarfs" Grieg
c—"En courant" Godard
Duet, "Sing, sing, birds on the wing" Nutting
Songs, tenor
a—"The kingdom within your eyes" Penn
b—"Macushla" Macmurrough
c—"When shadows gather" Marshall
Songs, soprano (in Victorian costume)
a—"Rosalie, the prairie flower" Root
b—"Welcome, pretty primrose" Pinsuti
c—"Love not" Blockley
d—"The kiss waltz" Arditi

VILLAGE STUDY CLUB PLAY

South Weymouth is much interested in the original three-act comedy written by Freeman Putney Jr. "Wish you were here", to be presented under the auspices of the Village Study Club on Monday evening, March 31. The scene is laid in the office and lobby of a small summer hotel, and the cast includes:

Hannah, the housekeeper, Alice Wagner
Mrs. Bailey, who guards her brother Harriet Field
Aleck, the hired man, Prince Tirrell
Jed Hemphill, a retired garage man Freeman Putney Jr.
Minerva Morris, unmarried but hopeful Charlotte Craibe
Mrs. Kent, a designing widow Annie Deane
Hazel Kent, the widow's daughter Edna Gridley
Payne Van Sleek, a stock broker George Crowther
Bob Carleton, in love with Hazel Ralph Klingeman
Polly Pepper, a mischief maker Hester Crowther
Winnie White, another Muriel Sowden
Kate, with a doubtful past Helen Simpson

GEM THEATRE

"Fabiola", a magnificent drama, filmed from the story that millions have loved, will be shown at the Gem theatre on Thursday, March 27, at 8 o'clock.

"Fabiola" was produced in Italy. Most of its scenes were taken in Rome and its surroundings—in the actual work to secure accurate copies of localities represented in the story. Many months were spent in research costumes of that period. A fortune was lavished on this photoplay. Roman actors, real settings, which include the Coliseum, the Catacombs, the Thermae and the fountain of Treve, magnificent reproductions of homes of wealthy patricians of the time, costumes perfect as to graceful line and historical correctness—these are the few of the reasons for the realism of the photo-drama.

The powerful dramatic action of these scenes has a mightier appeal than any words can have. To the spectator who feels the excitement of the mob scene, the breathless suspense of the pursuit of Agnes, the rescue of the boy Pancratius by the mighty Quadratus, is revealed the stress of these times. To the spectator also is shown better even than the classic pages of the book has shown him, the high valor of those great-souled men and women who kept alive the white flame of Christianity in those fourth-century days.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express my sincere thanks to the many neighbors and friends for their beautiful floral tributes and kind acts of sympathy during my recent bereavement, particularly Weymouth Post, A. L., for its services, the Ladies Auxiliary American Legion, Gold Star Mothers, Philatheas, and others.

What People Are Saying

TUFTS LIBRARY WEYMOUTH, MASS.

Joseph Fitton says:—

"That was an interesting paper that you printed last week."

A Letter Carrier says:—

"The Gazette-Transcripts make a heavy load on Friday afternoon, but they are worth the trouble, for everyone is glad to see me."

A Husband says:—

"I am late tonight, but it will be all right, for my wife will be happy with the Weymouth Gazette."

A Boston man says:—

"Do you know I never get a chance at the Gazette-Transcript at home until Sunday. The other members of the family don't get through with it before then."

A High School Boy says:—

"The Gazette has done a lot for us, and we want your help in getting the town interested in an athletic field."

A Club Woman says:—

"I always turn to the Club and Social column and always find items of interest, especially to women."

A Business Man says:—

"All I know about it is what I see in the Weymouth Gazette. I can't get time to keep up with town affairs in any other way."

One Dear Old Lady says:—

"The old Gazette keeps me alive. It tells me what is going on all around me. I keep track of my friends, their children and their children's children, and everything is written in such a pleasant way, no sting or bitter taste to anything we see in the Gazette-Transcript."

A Well Wisher says:—

"How can you get together each day so many Birthday dates of prominent people? Hope to see more Weymouth residents included."

A Church Goer says:

"The Church page is one of the strong features of the Gazette-Transcript and helps the churches materially."

A Prominent Fan says:

"Glad to note that the Gazette-Transcript is giving more prominence to Sports, and some good write-ups too."

WHY A SUBSCRIPTION VOTING CONTEST

In the March Bulletin of the National Editorial Association published at St. Paul, Minn., is the following article on "Why a Subscription Voting Contest?" written by C. N. Marvin of the Sentinel-Post of Shenandoah, Iowa:

Why is a subscription voting contest?

In the Book of Proverbs, 30th Chapter, 19th Verse, I read as follows: "There be three things which are too wonderful for me, yea four which I know not: The way of an eagle in the air, the way of a serpent upon a rock, and the way of a ship in the midst of the sea, and the way of a man with a maid." If the sacred writer were living today he would no doubt add a fifth mystery too wonderful for him, the way of the country editor with his subscription list.

I approach this subject in a reminiscent mood and with a confession to make, for in the days of my callow youth in the newspaper game I fell for the glittering swindle of the voting contest, as many a wayfarer of the press had done before me and as many a one has been seduced by it since. That was 25 years ago and the scars of that memorable conflict remain with me yet.

For a season I hugged the sweet delusion to my soul that the gratuitous names added to my list and the money borrowed from the future at enormous interest outweighed the losses I suffered and the enemies I made, and a perusal of the files of my paper in the closing years of the last century would reveal abundant braggadocio and prideful testimonial as to the success of the voting contest in increasing the subscription list and the business of the paper. But alas, it was like the mushroom growth that springs up beneath the fog of a summer night and then withers away beneath the sun of the folowing noon day. The subscription thus gained melted away like a snowball in July.

The voting contest of 1890 lacked much of the spectacular fraud and intricate complexity of swindle of the 1920 variety, but the memory of it is sufficiently nauseous to bring back the blush of shame. Let me draw the curtain.

But be it known to you, oh novice, if such there be, who contemplate some get rich quick scheme in the newspaper field, that the publisher no longer sells the contest gold brick; he buys it of some sleek-tongued stranger who finds it easier than selling oil stocks in the Panama swamps. Let me recount to you briefly the method of procedure in this greatest of all swindles that are yet permitted to use the United States mails.

Picture in your minds, if you will, Publisher I. B. Hardup sitting in his dingy den wondering how he can meet the sight draft for his last paper bill. Unable to solve the problem, he listlessly picks up his morning's mail and reads a letter from the Messrs. Beat & Bunco, of Kalamazoo, managers of "Everybody Wins" Subscription Contests. The letter states that they are subscription builders of marvelous success and cause the shekels to flow in a golden stream into the newspaper coffers.

Accompanying the letter is a testimonial from a publisher in Kennebec stating that Beat & Bunco had recently concluded a subscription campaign for him and collected $13,647.25 in cash and added 5,342 subscriptions to his list and everybody was satisfied. Mr. Hardup and explaining their system, with no obligation whatever on They ask the privilege of calling on his part.

He throws the letter in the waste basket, but the get rich quick germ gets to working in his brain and by and by he fishes the letter out and reads it again and he says to himself: "I don't see any harm in letting those guys come and explain their scheme; I won't bite on it and I might get an idea or two that would help me in getting the county printing next year."

So he tells them to come, and from that minute he is lost. He never has a chance to escape. Beat & Bunco are the sleekest gold brick salesmen you ever saw. They hypnotize the editor. They make him believe that black is white, that lying is telling the truth, and that cheating is honorable. Before he realizes what he is doing he signs an agreement to let them run his paper for two months, so far as the contest is concerned, and atke forty per cent of all the income.

And then the campaign starts. A two-page announcement appears in the paper profusely illustrated with cuts of automobiles, gold watches, diamonds and scenery, stating that on a certain date two months later, Publisher Hardup, who has never been able to buy a second-hand Ford, will give three new high priced automobiles to the prettiest girls or most popular widows, or most deserving cripples; that athough he and his wife have never taken a pleasure trip farther than the Keokuk dam, he will pay all expenses for two young women to Alaska or the Hawaiian Islands; that although the best watch he can afford is an heirloom of 1876, he agrees to give to some of his patrons watches of the latest and best model; that although he cannot buy his wife a plain gold band ring he will scatter diamonds among the girls of the community; that although his bank account is usually in the red he proposes in two months to distribute cash prizes ranging from $500 down to $50 each to the young women of his acquaintance, and to all who do not win any of the major prizes he will give twenty per cent cash commission on all the business they get for him.

Do you wonder that when Editor Hardup reads in his own paper of his munificent generosity he is dazed, paralyzed, and concludes that the Arabian Nights was no dream, and that Aladdin's Lamp, with all its miraculous power, has been handed down to him to illuminate with golden rays the dingy poverty of his sanctum sanctorum?

The propaganda of Messrs. Beat & Bunco is conducted in the name of the publisher. Far be it from their purpose to conduct the contest in their own name or to bear any of the responsibility. Wherever they go the first step in their scheme is to secure a goat, and Mr. Hardup is IT.

The next step is to nominate the candidates for the contest, pretty girls, popular widows and deserving cripples preferred. The promoters scan the field for desirable candidates those who by reason of beauty or popularity or public sympathy would be most likely to extract money from the people in a gamble for an automobile or a trip to Jerusalem. If they do not seem inclined to enter the contest special inducement or encouragement is used privately to get them to enter. Each one is assured that by reason of her special pull, or her associations, she is welf nigh assured of success from the start. And then the promoters visit the neighboring communities and secure similar prospects. I heard of one instance in which a young woman was hired for fifty dollars to permit the use of her name with the understanding that if she won a major prize she was to decline it with the explanation that she preferred a cash prize. She won.

The success of the contest from the promoters standpoint, depends upon playing one contestant against another, and one community against another. It is a remarkable fact that the contest is always close—until the final count. First one girl and then another is ahead. That is part of the game. The promoters see to that If one of the contestants picked for a leader seems to be lagging behind or losing interest she is mysteriously helped by a few million votes that put her well toward the top. As the figures are published from day to day public is told that it is a neck and neck race, but each of the contestants are quietly assured that if she will just work a little bit harder she will be a sure winner of the grand prize. There are so many ways of figuring the votes and the scheme is so complicated that no one except Beat & Bunco know exactly how it is done.

The contest usually starts with several real honest-to-goodness contestants who really canvass the town and country for subscribers. They go from house to house and show the paper and make some people believe the paper is worth the price. They get a few bona fide subscribers in that way. They are honest and think everybody else is honest.

But as the end of the contest approaches this method is found to be too slow. Subscriptions enough to secure the money for the prizes and the rakeoff for Beat & Bunco must be turned in by blocks of fifty and one hundred, and for periods of two to six years. It is obvious that the whole populace will not rise up en masse and subscribe at once for any paper because of any inherent merit in it.

The canvassers who thought to sell the paper on its merits are quickly distanced by those willing to spend money to win or who have friends who will spend money that way. And so the contestants, some of them, go out into the highways and byways and take subscriptions at any old price, from ten cents up, agreeing to put up the balance of the subscription price themselves. All their uncles and cousins and brothers-in-law from Spokane to Key West are supplied with the paper from one to six years each.

But the last day and the last hour finally arrive and the contest settles down to feverishly writing names while the sports put up the money. When memories fails the directories are hastily consulted for more names for subscribers. Each contestant by herself or her manager gets a tip from some wireless source of how much more is needed to put her across. Last minute bets are made and the excitement rivals a horse race in Kentucky.

And then the contest closes. Three solemn visaged bankers open the ballot box, count the money and the votes announce the result and sign a statement that everything was on the square—so far as they were concerned. The girls who worked long and faithfully to sell the paper on its merits get a little commission and the others get the prizes. The promoters settle with their stool-pigeons and go on their way rejoicing; leaving the publisher with a little money for present use but with long lean years before him and a host of enemies. While the money lasts he imagines that the contest has profited him, not realizing that he has borrowed of the future at more than one hundred per cent interest.

After the orgy is over and the hypnotic spell is broken the editor settles down to normal newspaper life again and finds himself loaded down with a subscription list from which there can be no income for many a long month or year. It costs money to print thousands of papers and pay the postage to send them to the four winds of heaven. The only thing that saves him from bankruptcy is that the list melts away like snow in midsummer.

He finds that the contestants who consulted their memories and the directorfes for subscribers did not consult with each other and therefore familiar names appear on the list several times as subscribers, while others of his "new" subscribers have long been sleeping beneath the daisies.

Numerous official cards from postmasters shortly arrive reading as follows: "Your papers addressed to John Doe and Mary Roe cannot be delivered for the reason that they are unknown, dead, or moved away, address unknow." Then comes a second shower of official cards from numerous postmasters marked "Refused". Letters come drifting in by the score or hundred from persons who declare they did not subscribe for the paper and to please stop it as they will not pay for it. Friends of the defeated contestants call at the office one by one and in the presence of the lady stenographer politely tell the publisher that he is a damned crook and not to let his paper darken their door any more.

But he has enough names left on the list to make a contest for the county printing and his shameless competitors proceeds to pick his list to pieces. He presents affidavits of hundreds of persons whose names appear on the list declaring that they are not subscribers. He finds the families of Hardup's special friends over-supplied. He discovers that nine members of one family of seven, all living at home, are sworn to as bona fide yearly subscribers, residents of Wilson county. They are Bid Jones, J. B. Jones, John B. Jones, Mrs. Bid Jones, and five junior Joneses, and when Mr. Bid Jones, alias J. B. Jones, is closely questioned, he admits that not one of them paid a cent for the paper.

And so the case of Editor Hardup is laughed out of court, and the last stage of that man is worse than the first.

WAVES ARE MADE TO ORDER

Ingenious Machine Devised That Produces Billows and Whitecaps on Placid Lake.

It appears that "all kinds of waves" are now made to order and that one can order any one of a half dozen varieties of waves, produced by an odd-looking bit of machinery devised for the purpose.

Some of the six or seven varieties of waves are: The gentle, rolling billows; the short, choppy kind; the whitecap variety, and big ones resembling the ocean waves. Each of these, it is reported, can be manufactured at will merely by manipulating the four plungers of the machine in different ways. For instance, if you want the long, rolling billows all you have to do is to cause the four plungers to work in unison. They plunge into the water all at once and cause the big swells. If the short, choppy wave is wanted the plungers are worked independently of each other. Two up and two down gives the whitecap sort.

This curious machinery, which makes perfect waves, was invented to convert placid lakes at summer resorts into lakes with real live waves and make bathers think they were enjoying a real Atlantic or Pacific surf—at least while the machinery was working, for as soon as the electric motor is stopped the water resumes its placidity. It appears that these waves can be made all day long for thousands of bathers and at comparatively little expense. It is said that a dollar a day is the cost of operating the electric motor that drives the machine.—Washington Star.

QUEEN PHOTOGRAPHED IN BED

Marie of Jugo-Slavia Has Pictures Taken With Her Infant Son.

British women are deeply interested in the publication in all illustrated newspapers of pictures of the young queen of Jugo-Slavia lying in bed with her infant son, the heir to the throne.

This is the first time that a monarch's consort has been photographed in bed, and it is also the first time that a queen has been photographed with her hair flowing loose over the shoulders, and also the first time a king has been shown sitting at the royal bedside holding a baby in his arms.

Queen Marie, a beautiful young brunette, is seen wearing a nightie adorned with a costly lace necklet. She is also pictured with a magnificent pearl necklace as she lies in a plain brass bedstead with the infant crown prince pillowed in her left arm.

Another photograph represents the heir's grandmother, the queen of Rumania, fondling and kissing the Balkan prince.

What appeals particularly to society leaders here is that while stage beauties invariably are tastefully marcelled when subjected to the camera, in bed or out, the queen of Jugo-Slavia consented to admit the photographer before her maid had even brushed her hair.—Robert J. Prew, in a London dispatch to the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Deciphering Charred Documents.

In most detective stories incriminating papers are destroyed by being burned and the baffled detective or other interested person is therefore unable to learn their contents. But a method has now been discovered of reading the writing that was on a document. The charred paper is placed in contact with a fast or medium plate for a week or two in the dark and the plate then developed as usual. There appears to be an emanation that affects the plate except where the charred ink acts as a protective coating. It is curious that films need a much longer contact than plates, and that sometimes the effect is reversed unless the film is previously washed and dried.

Lady Book Agents.

Tradition tells us that the sibyl brought to Tarquin nine books of prophecy. These she offered him at a price which he refused to pay. She then burned three books and offered the remaining six for the same price. Again he refused and again she burned three books, offering the remaining three for the original price. Then he accepted.

"It's that way with lady book agents," declared Uncle Pennywise upon hearing this story. "Some has one scheme and some has another, but they always sell the books."

For Just One Hotel.

In furnishing a hotel recently erected, 37 miles of carpet were laid on the floors of the guest rooms and corridors, while 25,000 pounds of horsehair were used to stuff the bed mattresses. To obtain 7,000 pounds of feathers and down for the pillows, 90,000 geese were killed. If this number of living fowls were formed into columns four abreast, the line would be two miles long. Marching in "goose step," at a normal speed, the host would be three hours and forty-one minutes passing a given point.

Where the Surprise Comes In.

The stranger, after studying the fountain bill of fair intently, approached the proprietor and said: "I see that you advertise conspicuously what you call a Cantaloupe Surprise."

"Yes," admitted the druggist, "I do."

"What is the surprise?"

"The surprise comes when you cut the cantaloupe. I myself never know what it is going to be."

THE WRONG ROSE

By BETTINA HODGES

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"AND I'll wear a red rose, Uncle Harrie, so you will know me," wound up Niece Hazel's letter.

Uncle Harrie did not display joyous enthusiasm over the epistle. He growled to his office boy that he would be "out," and added informally that he didn't know when he would be back. Hastening from subway tube to racketing elevated, he reached in due time the enormous cavern into which the steam cars plunge from the bright world without. A despatcher directed him to the platform on which his niece's train was expected shortly. He paced glumly up and down past the closed grill.

He had only the vaguest recollection of Hazel Bush, his brother's eldest daughter. He had always considered her mother a silly woman to name the girl "for a nut," especially with the patronymic Bush. He recollected that Hazel had recently graduated from some institution of learning—Normal school, he thought it was—a school ma'am!

The choking cloud of engine smoke and a plunging stream of passengers apprised the business man that it was time to look for a red rose—strangely romantic symbol for a bespectacled school teacher. Even as he made the uncomplimentary picture in his mind, a brilliant flash of color appeared far down the platform. It approached rapidly, a single, long-stemmed rose fastened cleverly to the white silk sweater of a rather tall, slender young woman in a summer silk frock, with a becoming, close-fitting hat.

She was not in the least the Hazel of Uncle Harrie's memory, but his reason was not working; the more emotional part of his intelligence reacted so strangely to this attractive vision that incongruities were swamped. He stepped forward, lifting his hat as he questioned, "My niece, Hazel Bush?"

"Oh, Uncle Harrie!" murmured the wearer of the red rose, in an oddly shy tone.

A large woman in well-tailored clothes came hurrying toward them, but the newcomer laid a slim hand on Harrie Bush's arm and imperceptibly guided him away from that place and the large woman. Outside, he asked her if she wished to go sightseeing or proceed at once to the hotel.

"Let us taxi around just a bit," said she. "I am particularly anxious to see the region back of the State House."

In a taxi they slowly drove up and down steep, quiet streets, shaded with century-old trees; peeped into gardens demurely edged with clipped box, and through narrow slits between coy curtains in old-fashioned windows, while every now and then they caught enchanting glimpses of sparkling water at the foot of this closely inhabited hill which they were exploring.

Never before had Harrie Bush enjoyed a ride so much. His young companion was not only a delight to look at, but her mind matched her charming person; she was well-read and well-bred. Again and again a queer twinge seemed to twist Harrie's subconscious mind: How could this be the unattractive child of his unsuccessful brother? Could he have forgotten more than he supposed?

At last it was time to drive to the well-known hotel at which Uncle Harrie had engaged a room for his niece. She grew very quiet as they approached the portals. Scarcely had they entered when a distinguished looking man, whom Harrie recognized as the owner of the establishment, rushed toward them.

"Dorothy!" he cried, "what in the world happened to you? My secretary came back from the station and said you disappeared just as she was coming to meet you!"

"Why, you see, uncle, my friend, Mr. Bush, met me, and asked me to make that expedition to the State House right away, and as you know that was one of my reasons for coming here—to revisit the capital of my native state—" she broke off as an official summoned her uncle to an urgent call upon the telephone.

Harrie Bush felt as if the floor were giving way under him, but before he could speak, a boy paged: "Mr. Bush, Mr. Bush!" and he reluctantly put out his hand for the telegram.

"So sorry," it said. "Had to return home. Position. Left train at Springfield. Thank you for all your trouble. Hazel Bush."

He looked up from reading this to see a pleading glance from the eyes of his late companion.

"Please forgive me," she said. "I was sitting next your niece, and we got to talking, and she told me about meeting her Uncle Harrie. She seemed to have forgotten you entirely, for she spoke of you as 'a cranky old bach.' When she showed me the rose she intended to wear, I felt sorry for you, and then the telegram from her home came, urging her to hasten back to secure a position. She rushed off at the next stop, and I saw she had left the rose. It seemed too bad to—to waste it. Are you vexed with me for wearing the purloined flower?"

The young people had walked slowly together into a private drawing room as Dorothy spoke. Harrie Bush found that he had no room amid his manifold emotions for chagrin, or reproach, or even for embarrassment.

"To me," he said, earnestly, "a flower which you wear can never be the wrong rose."

WILBUR THEATRE, BOSTON

A new comedy called "In Love With Love" is proving a big hit at the Wilbur theatre, Boston. Lynn Fontanne and Ralph Morgan head the cast and the play, one of the best comedies produced in several seasons, is by Vincent Lawrence, who also wrote "Two Fellows and a Girl", a play similar in theme. Both were produced in New York at about the same time and both were well received by Broadway theatregoers. Coming at a time when the stage is too extensively devoted to eroticism, sometimes misnamed drama or tragedy, it is consoling to be assured that this new play is "as clean as snow and as humorous as love itself". This is the description broadcasted this way by those who have seen the show and others who are not entirely unselfish in their estimations. In any event it is apparent that "In Love With Love" is precisely what the title suggests, a clean, wholesome comedy plotted with characters who act and think and behave like real human beings.

SHUBERT THEATRE, BOSTON

The New Winter Garden production "Topics of 1923", introducing the French star, Alice Delysia, will be the attraction at the Shubert theatre beginning Monday evening, March 24, coming here direct from the Winter Garden, New York. Boston is the only city to see the newest and best of all musical extravaganzas produced at the famous home of froth and frolic. "Topics of 1923" comes direct to the Shubert for an engagement of three weeks only. "Topics of 1923" has been staged by J. C. Huffman and produced under the personal direction of J. J. Shubert. The current production is the 36th made for New York's famous home of musical comedy and extravaganza. Unlike many of the Winter Garden offerings, "Topics of 1923" contains a continuous story. Some of the best successes made at the Winter Garden were with books which were in reality musical comedies done on a huge scale. This is particularly true of the three Al Jolson pieces, "Robinson Crusoe, Jr.", "Sinbad" and "Bombo", likewise "Monte Cristo, Jr." and "Cinderella on Broadway". The book and lyrics of "Topics of 1923" are by Harold Atteridge and Harry Wagstaff Gribble, and the music by Jean Schwartz and Alfred Goodman.

SOUTH SHORE YACHTING

The following yacht clubs in this vicinity have become charter members of the South Shore Yachting Association:

Squantum Yacht Club
Wollaston Yacht Club
Quincy Yacht Club
Hingham Yacht Club
Wessagusset Yacht Club
Boston Yacht Club (Hull Div.)

Fred G. Schaerer, ex-commodore of the Wollaston Yacht Club, was elected temporary chairman, and Thomas F. Smith was elected secretary-treasurer, pro tem; Ralph Winslow, naval architect, was appointed official measurer and advisor to the association on the plans for the one design class to be adopted.

It was voted to have three race days during the coming summer, the clubs doubling up in running these affairs as follows:

Quincy Y. C. and Wessagusset Y. C at Quincy Yacht Club.

Hingham Y. C. and Boston Y. C. (Hull Div.) at Hull.

Squantum Y. C. and Wollaston Y. C. at Wollaston Yacht club.

Another meeting will take place at the Wollaston Yacht Club during the week of April 20 to adopt bylaws, elect permanent officers and arrange racing dates.

PLEASE OBSERVE

It is necessary to emphasize the fact that notices of births, engagements, marriages and deaths, positively will not be accepted for publication in the Gazette-Transcript unless there appears on the notice the full name and address of the person contributing same with telephone number, if any. In the case of birth announcements, if it is not possible to give a telephone number, the name of the attending physician or hospital must be included. This regulation is enforced to protect the public from false announcements.

ATTRACTIVE CANE

Some weeks ago the editor of the Gazette-Transcript found a demolished umbrella with an attractive handle. This handle he recently presented to Comrade Waldo Turner, who has made himself a good cane. It is suitably inscribed with dates and the word "Fecit". May it help him to win that literary endurance contest at the meetings of the Grand Army.

WHY THAT LAME BACK?

That morning lameness—those sharp pains when bending or lifting, make work a burden and rest impossible. Don't be handicapped by a bad back—look to your kidneys. You will make no mistake by following this Weymouth resident's example.

Mrs. Nellie Condrick, 177 Broad street, says: "I used Doan's Pills some time ago when suffering from an attack of kidney complaint. My back was lame and sore and I had a constant, nagging ache in the small of my back. My kidneys felt sore and heavy and didn't act right. I was advised of Doan's Pills and got a few boxes. In a short time they completely rid me of the attack".

COMRADE LORING
Comrade Charles H. Loring of Reynolds Post, G. A. R., was relieved of his sufferings on Thursday, March 13. Until a few months ago he was a street railway man, having entered the employ of the Braintree & Weymouth Company in April, 1895, running the first car from Weymouth Centre to the Braintree depot. He was a member of Carmen's Union 253, and also Reynolds Post, 58, G. A. R., and is survived by his wife, six sons and daughters.

Mr. Loring was born in Braintree March 19, 1844, the son of Benjamin J. and Elizabeth (Gunning) Loring. He attended the public schools of Braintree, and at the age of 18 enlisted as a private in Co. H, 35th Massachusetts regiment, serving from August, 1862, to June 9, 1865. Then for thirty years he was a shoe worker.

Funeral services were held at his home on Sunday at 2 P. M., Rev. Earl E. Story of the Methodist church officiating. A delegation of Grand Army men were in attendance and he was buried with military honors, Francis A. Bicknell commander and Bradford Hawes chaplain. The honorary bearers were Comrades William Litchfield and Maurice Cleary of Reynolds Post, and George H. Walker and John Gannon of the Carmen's Union. The pallbearers were his sons, Amos J., George B. and Lewis W. Loring; his grandson, Charles H. Loring, and Alton J. Blanchard and John House, sons-in-law. Interment was in the Village cemetery.

—The mission services at the Immaculate Conception church will close Sunday. Last Sunday afternoon the papal blessing for the women was imparted, which marked the close of the mission for the women.. The men of the parish were favored with better weather than was the case last week for the gentler sex. Weather conditions were almost ideal this week. But as Father Brendon, C. P., said, anything that was worth striving for or obtaining demanded sacrifice. All the services, both early morning and evening have been well attended. There were two masses for the men one at 5 and the other at 6 A. M. Fr. Brendon and Fr. Daniel both expressed their pleasure at the religious fervor manifested by all the members. It was especially inspiring to them to see a large body of men assembled at services exclusively for them. Both priests have saintly countenances, but Fr. Brendeon and Fr. Daniel, C. P., exorator than is Fr. Brendon, who is of a more even voice, never rising above a conversational tone. Both have the gifts and sterling qualities that have been characteristic of the Catholic Church since ancient days. Fr. Daniel will go to Lowell to conduct a mission there, while Fr. Brendon will go to Washington, D. C. Their work is of an arduous nature. They are compelled to arise at 4 A. M. and almost continuously busy till after 10 o'clock. Their work is a severe tax upon their vitality, demanding much self sacrifice in the service of God and humanity.

MYSTERY WHIST
A novel and interesting social was held in K. of C. hall on Tuesday evening by Weymouth Circle, Daughters of Isabella. The affair consisted of mystery whist and many mysterious voices announced the order of playing which was interspersed with a mystery favor march. The Leap Year mystery man, which, with coat and mask removed, proved to be an electric bridge lamp and was won by Miss Julia Looney. Miss Looney also won the first honor in whist; the other whist honors being taken by Miss Ella O'Connor of Weymouth, Mrs. Margar t Coughlin of East Weymouth, Mrs. Margaret Perrow of Weymouth Heights, Mrs. Helena Hughes of South Braintree and Mrs. Mary Moriarty of Hingham. The affair was in charge of the entertainment committee.

GOLDEN WEDDING
Mr. and Mrs. Dana Elmer Goding observed the 50th anniversary of their marriage at their home 388 Washington street, Wednesday afternoon and evening, and a large number of friends called and extended their congratulations, and left many handsome reminders of the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Goding were married in Lynn, March 19, 1874, by Rev. Mr. Brackett of the Baptist church in that city. They later lived in Randolph, Vermont; Malden and Whitman, coming to Weymouth a year ago.

Mr. Goding has been a Christian Science practicioner for 37 years.

They have two daughters, Mrs Grace C. Holstein and Miss Marguerite Goding of this town, and a son, Eddy M. Goding of Malden.

A Nice Night for a Dance

By JANE OSBORN

(©, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

On his way back from the tailor's and shoemaker's, Tom Danvers stopped at the corner stationer's to buy a magazine. It was a mild evening in late winter and he had not buttoned his overcoat.

"Good evening, Mr. Danvers," a pleasant young voice sounded at his side, and Tom looked up to face Kate Harlow, the daughter of his employer. Tom gave a quick tug at his coat, but apparently it was too lote, for he felt the eyes of Miss Harlow upon him. He was sure she had observed his tuxedo. He hoped that she hadn't noticed his thin-soled dancing ties. He did not want to appear an utter fool to her. It seemed very odd to him that she had spoken to him with such an air of cordiality, when on other occasions she had barely noticed him. Perhaps the tone of cordiality was really only one of amusement.

"It's such a nice night for a dance," went on the persistent Kate. And then she added with surprising familiarity, "Be good, and have a good time."

"But I'm not going to a dance," stammered Tom.

"What are you going to do?" queried Kate, whose frankness and outspoken manner were her most striking characteristics, and who rather prided herself on her easy familiarity with all young men.

"I'm going home to read this magazine," said Tom. And then she caught sight of his pumps and he wished devoutly that he had lied. If he had only let her think that he was going to a party it might have been all right. Now she would guess the truth.

Not that Tom cared at all what Kate Harlow thought, but absurdly enough, he did care what Kate's younger sister, Miss Madge Harlow, thought. He had only seen her occasionally in her father's office, but in the wildest of his dreams when he pictured himself a junior partner in the Harlow concern, he also pictured acquaintance with Madge Harlow. He imagined himself being asked to the Harlows' for dinner, and always pictured himself seated next to the golden-haired Madge.

But, of course, there were absolutely no grounds for such day-dreams. He was one of the least likely of some fifty or sixty aspirants for such honors in the concern of which Mr. Harlow was chief owner. Naturally of an inventive mind, and mechanical bent, he had hoped to take a course in engineering in college, but it was only through the most careful economy that he had managed to get through high school. So he had taken a job—any job—with Harlow, hoping that somehow he would have a chance to display his mechanical talents. But the job that turned up was one of filing clerk. To be sure, it gave him an excellent chance to learn certain details of the business, and he devoted his leisure moments to following a correspondence course on the subject of his choice. But Tom Danvers lacked the tongue and the personal aggressiveness that seemed necessary to force himself upon the attention of any of his superiors. They looked upon him as no more nor less than a conscientious and careful clerk.

Tom Danvers knew this and yet he dreamed of better things. And now he had given Kate Harlow a chance to laugh at him. She would probably describe his appearance to her father, to Madge. They would all laugh at him. Hang the tuxedo, anyway, thought Tom. It was all a mistake getting it, anyway. He would have sold it long ago if he had been able to get any sort of figure for it, but so long as he had only one suit it did serve its purpose. Tom had bought that tuxedo back in his last year in high school in anticipation of the senior dance. He had worn it once. Too large for him then, it was a fairly good fit now, and it had served a purpose to a man who never indulged himself with more than one business suit at a time.

On this late winter evening he had put on his tuxedo, as he had on other occasions, so that he might carry his one and only business suit to the tailor, and as his one and only pair of shoes had to go to the shoemaker's, he had donned his dancing ties. Slipping back and forth from his little boarding-house room, no one would notice, he thought. Then he had made the fatal mistake of stopping at the stationer's to buy the last issue of a mechanical magazine he found helpful, and there he had met Kate Harlow. And now Kate was laughing at him and his chances for success with the all-important Harlow were less than nil.

For a week Tom Danvers was cast into a state of dejection and gloom, and in this state of dejection he somehow hated Kate Harlow and pondered unreasonably on the charm of Madge Harlow.

Then Mr. Harlow called him into his office one day, and Tom felt quite sure it was for the purpose of discharging him, though, of course, Mr. Harlow would never have taken the trouble to discharge so unimportant a person by personal interview. To Tom's surprise Mr. Harlow asked him if he thought he would be able to get up a report on a certain phase of the work with which he might have become fairly familiar as filing clerk. Mr. Harlow wasn't at all sure he had this familiarity. He was simply taking a chance. It happened that Tom Danvers knew the subject better than any man in the concern, and his report, complete and accurate, was ready within a few hours. Mr. Harlow smiled pleasantly when Tom brought it to his office.

Two days later the busy Mr. Harlow called Tom in to compliment him on his work and, as he was leaving, he said: "If you haven't anything else to do this Saturday you might come up for dinner. My daughter is having a little dance that evening. Kate says she knows you." Tom stammeringly accepted the invitation and then, as he was about to depart, Mr. Harlow added: "Of course, it's a sort of dress party. If you happen to have a tux you'd better wear it."

And so began Tom Danver's friendship with the Harlows. None of the other young men in Mr. Harlow's employ were similarly honored. Why should he be chosen? This question Tom asked himself again and again. Meantime, though not very glib, Tom had occasional opportunities when riding home beside Mr. Harlow in the Harlow's car to converse with his employer and to show something of his deep and intelligent interest in the work he was doing. This led to his rapid promotion. But even more rapid was his promotion in the good graces of the Harlow sisters. It was Madge who blustered when he came and Madge who sat beside him at dinner, just as he had dreamed in those seemingly absurd dreams of his. It was Madge who obviously loved him as he loved her. But it was Kate who showed a deep interest in his work in her father's concern, Kate who warned him against overwork and overstudy. She was the same outspoken, aggressive young person that she had appeared to be that night in the stationer's store. But Tom was beginning to like her.

Kate was the first one to congratulate him after he became engaged to Madge.

"And it's all my doing," said Kate. "If it hadn't been for me you'd never have been invited out here. Or rather if it hadn't been for your tuxedo. Do you remember that night I met you in that little magazine store? Well, you were wearing a tuxedo and I thought you said you weren't going to a party. That seemed too good to be true. Madge and I have always thought men ought to dress in the evening, even when they were going to stay home, and when I found out that you did I decided we ought to know you. I told dad I wanted him to give you a chance. I said that any young man who was well-bred and particular enough to dress for the evening, even when he was going to stay home, was worth giving a chance. Most men are so careless."

"Yes," stammered Tom. "I'm everlastingly grateful, and I'll always continue to be grateful to you."

"And your tuexdo," added Kate, who always wanted to have the last word.

Merchant Used Novel Device to Get Trade

Everybody who goes into a department store isn't obliged to make a purchase. Many do not care for the merchandise and take themselves off. To counteract this tendency a store manager of Hamilton, in Canada, says Le Petit Parisien, recently had a notice posted in his establishment which reads as follows:

"If our gentlemen customers are not satisfied they might possibly gain a fresh viewpoint by flirting with the pretty blond in charge of the glove counter."

This innovation met with striking success and numerous were the gentlemen who availed themselves of this privilege. The manager realized that he had managed very adroitly, for very few of the gentlemen left the glove counter without buying something.

The novel advertising dodge, which doubtless at first appealed to the little salesgirl as an entertaining pastime, struck a snag, however, one day, when a customer with a face like a hatchet became a little too assiduous in his attentions. She made a complaint, but was informed that as she had taken on the job she would have to see the thing through. So she went to court about it and the court, deciding that the office of salesgirl did not impose the obligation upon said salesgirl of receiving advances from every flirtatious Tom, Dick and Harry in Ontario, promptly awarded the plaintiff damages to the amount of $1,500.

Retail Stores Increase

During the last ten years the number of our retail stores has increased 41 per cent, now giving us one retail store for every ten urban families; their operating expense has increased 112 per cent; their delivery and package cost 126 per cent, and population —the buyers—only 21 per cent.—McClure's Magazine.

New Road Dressing

For dressing the surfaces of roads a rubber planter in Ceylon has invented a solution of scrap rubber and bark from rubber trees, which is heated and spread while liquid.

Light Used for Bait

The light organ in a luminous fish found in Philippine waters is removed by fishermen and used as bait for night fishing, lasting long after its original owner's death.

Builds Locomotives

Four locomotives of a more powerful type than any heretofore constructed in Japan have been built in the shops of the government railways.

LOVELL'S CORNER

—On Tuesday evening the Lovell's Corner Improvement Society held their monthly business meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Inkley. A debate on the subject "Resolved, That Prohibition has been a failure". Bradford Hawes and Charles Turner were on the affirmative and Ethan Rogers and Bowdoin B. Smith on the negative. Refreshments were served by Miss Edith Inkley.

—Mrs. Edward Hughes has been visiting relatives in Mattapan the past week.

—Mrs. Lydia Holmes attended the funeral of her sister, Mrs. Charles Alden at Everett on Sunday.

—A very successful entertainment was given by talent from West Quincy at the Porter church last Friday evening. A three-act play entitled "The Sisterhood of Bridget" was given for the benefit of the Sunday School. The sum of $57 was cleared. This money will be used for buying Bibles for the children graduating from the primary class. Ice cream, cake, candy were on sale.

—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pike of Weymouth spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Belcher of Washington street.

SPORT NOTES
Weymouth defeated Plymouth at basketball last Friday 47 to 21. On Monday, however, Plymouth won 2 to 11.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY
Last week's storm prevented the trip to the hospital, so it was made this week. Mrs. Draper, chairman of welfare, was accompanied by Mrs. Denbroeder and Mrs. Mowry of South Weymouth and T. J. Terry of Middle street furnished the car and made the trip unusually comfortable. Many boys were away at an entertainment but those in the wards seemed much more cheerful than the last time a visit was made.

Owing to a case of scarlet fever in Curtis ward, those patients could not be visited, but of course they had a big share of all the good things. This time the Pratt and Pond schools furnished the fruit, candies, jellies etc., and the Legion boys the smokes.

The Auxiliary has lost two of its members recently and is saddened by the loss and will miss their help. Mrs. Bettincourt's kindly face will be missed at the meetings and her ready offer of assistance at all times. Mrs. Connell was not able to attend the meetings, but in other ways she always helped with all the activities of the unit. They shall remember them and their sympathy goes out to the families.

On Saturday March 22, is the next Norfolk County council at the Army and Navy club, 10 Park Square, Boston, and Mrs. O'Brien, State president, and Miss Whitaker, State secretary, will speak. All members are wanted.

CARD OF THANKS
We desire to express our sincere and heartfelt thanks to the several Organizations, Friends, Neighbors, telephone Operators and little Pupils of Jefferson school who so cheerfully ministered to our needs during our recent bereavement.

Large Class Initiated By American Legion

Tuesday evening, March 18, Weymouth Post No. 79, American Legion, initiated a large class of new members

The new Legion ritual was used and the ceremony was conducted by Commander Francis Nugent and staff of Somerville Post of the American Legion.

The large group of candidates and the manner in which Commander Nugent (known better in Weymouth as "Pat") and his officers carried out the ritual, made a lasting impression on the old members present and as for the new ones,—well, the least that can be said is that it thoroughly sold them the Legion idea.

No man or woman could listen to the inspiring words of the ceremony and remain unmoved at the magnitude of the Legion and the sincerity of its principles. Each Legionnaire's duty to his country and his Post was clearly and forcibly set forth in the various charges delivered by the officiating staff.

At the close of the initiation, Commander Johnson made a few remarks, welcoming the new comers and telling them something of what Weymouth Post is planning for the future.

The ceremony was held in the upper hall at Legion headquarters (G. A. R. hall) and the room attractively decorated with the national colors added considerably to the dignity and beauty of the exercises.

Following the close of the meeting the Post adjourned to the lower hall where the Post band was gathered. This band, raring to go, let loose with some snappy semi-military airs, which immediately charged the air of the entire hall with a spirit of comradeship that soon had the fellows holding a general hand-shaking and "Glad to see you here" contest.

The entertainment committee announced a wrestling match between the two Legion champs, Basil Warren and Fritz Brunnel. These two huskies pulled, slapped, pushed and threw each other around the mat for fifteen minutes, neither one seeming to be able to gain any advantage over the other. Needless to say the assembled members including by the way, four yoemen (F) were kept on the edge of their seats all during the 15 minutes of struggling between the two men.

Just as the timer announced that the bout was at an end, the refreshment committee sounded chow call. One could immediately see that although nearly seven years have passed since the gang formed the old chow lines the "know how" of it has not been forgotten. They still answer chow call with the same old pep and enthusiasm.

During the entertainment Somerville Post showed that its activities were not confined to doing a good job at initiating new members. Two of the staff entertained with songs and piano solos that were very much appreciated by the gathering.

It was a great pleasure to Weymouth Post to have such a fine initiation ceremony and especially to have as the initiating officer one of our own charter members who has attained the office of Commander in another Post, "Pat" Nugent.

More selections by the band and a general get together acquaintance meeting and the gathering broke up at about 11 P. M.

Weymouth's Post's first initiation was completed and the membership of the Post increased to such an extent that at the present time it ranks first in percentage in Norfolk county, which county by the way, ranks first in the state. So figure it out for yourself.

Making walls and woodwork white and clean as tile

SOAPY water—lather—the splashing from tub, shower or spray—they make smooth, washable bathroom walls a necessity.

Barreled Sunlight is a white paint made by a special process which produces a lustrous, even finish that can be washed like tile. It costs less than enamel, requires fewer coats and is guaranteed to remain white longer.

Anyone can apply Barreled Sunlight. It flows readily and leaves no brush marks. For interior woodwork throughout the house it has all the advantages and none of the disadvantages of an enamel. It is easy to keep clean yet does not produce that hard high gloss so glaring to the eyes.

For every interior where light and cleanliness are desired—use Barreled Sunlight. Comes ready mixed in cans from half-pint to five-gallon size—barrels and half-barrels easily tinted where color is wanted.

A THOUGHT

He that giveth unto the poor shall not lack; but he that hideth his eyes shall have many a curse.—Prov. 28:27.

The miser, poor fool, not only starves his body, but also his own soul.—Theodore Parker.

THANKS, MR. JUSTICE

At the Union church recently the pastor, Rev. J. Caleb Justice, paid a tribute to the Weymouth Gazette-Transcript. He called attention to the fact of the large space devoted to the churches and their doings and the splendid newsy way in which the various clubs are reported. He asked the congregation to compare this feature of the Gazette with any other paper published in this vicinity and they would find the Gazette excels them all. He said, "If you want to know what is going on in Union church subscribe to the Weymouth Gazette".

STUDEBAKER PLANS

Directors of the Studebaker Corporation, South Bend, Indiana, have called a special meeting of stockholders April 1, to approve an increase of capital from $75,000,000 stock of $100 par to 2,500,000 shares no par and to distribute two and one-half shares for each present share.

The call for the meeting followed a special session of the directorate in South Bend. The stockholders will meet at Jersey City, N. J. It is proposed to place the new stock on a $4 basis.

Immediately after the close of the meeting of the directors A. R. Erskine, president of the Studebaker Corporation, issued the following statement:

"A special meeting of the stockholders of the Studebaker Corporation has been called at Jersey City, N. J., April 1, by the directors who held a special meeting at South Bend, to approve their recommendation that the charter of the corporation be amended to change the character of the outstanding common stock from $100 par value to $40 no par value, which would mean that present, common stockholders would receive two and one-half shares of new stock for each share of old stock now outstanding.

"It is intended to increase the authorized common capital stock to 2,500,000 shares, although only 1,875,000 shares will be needed to retire the present outstanding common stock of 750,000 shares. The remaining 625,000 shares of new stock will not be issued at present.

"The object in reducing the stock to a $40 basis is to permit broader investment in it by Studebaker employees, dealers, and car owners, and generally to give it a wider distribution.

"Under the present 10 per cent common dividend rate, each new share of common stock will receive dividends of $1 quarterly or $4 per annum.

"The new plan will become effective provided it is approved by the stockholders at the special meeting of April 1 as already stated.

"Stockholders are aware of difficulties attendant on a wide distribution of high priced common stocks selling in the market above $100 a share.

"While Studebaker common stock is fairly well distributed the directors feel that a much wider distribution among employees, dealers, car owners and investors generally will follow the splitting up of the stock and this feeling is responsible for the plan which they now recommend to the stockholders.

"Wide distribution of our stock will prove of great advantage to the corporation. Every stockholder of a corporation, no matter how small his holdings, is a friend of that corporation and will exert an influence in its behalf in his community. Other corporations in the automobile industry competing with our corporation have many more stockholders than Studebaker has and the directors desire to correct this situation.

"They believe that many more employees of the corporation in addition to the 3000 who now own its stock, as well as thousands of car owners and dealers, will be able to buy stock in smaller units."

WILLING SACRIFICE

"Mamma," said little Elsie, "I do wish I had some money to give you for the poor children."

Her mother, wishing to teach her the lesson of self-sacrifice, said: "Very well, dear; if you would like to go without sugar for a week I'll give you the money instead, and then you will have some."

The little one considered solemnly for a moment and then said: "Must it be sugar, mamma?"

"Why, no, darling, not necessarily. What would you like to do without?"

"Soap, mamma," was Elsie's answer. —Boston Transcript.

Giving Something in Return

By BERTHA McDONALD

(©, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Rodney Curtis was bored to tears. Every summer he felt the call of duty to spend at least a portion of the season with his beloved sister at her summer home in Lake Forest.

Not that he loved his sister less, but because he longed for an outing in the North woods more just then, was he suffering this boredom. The small coterie of visitors at Meadowlands was hopelessly uninteresting and the weather had been impossible for days.

Thus it was that he welcomed the necessity for a trip to the junction for incoming express that afternoon, in spite of the approaching storm. The laborers about the estate were all busy at other tasks, the express was badly needed, so Rodney volunteered to go after it.

With his car carefully curtained, his skid chains working, he rounded the bend at the edge of the estate adjoining Meadowlands and saw ahead of him a girl carrying a suitcase, hurrying as though trying to make the train at the junction. Stepping on the gas a trifle, he overtook her and asked her to ride. She accepted the invitation with alacrity, but asked to sit in the tonneau, because of the lightness of her attire.

They reached the junction just ahead of the train. Curtis got out, but stopped to blanket the radiator before proceeding to uncurtain the tonneau. Inside he found only a cap, an old raincoat and a girl's slipover apron.

"I'll be darned!" he exclaimed aloud.

He lifted cushions, peered under the seat, then visited the other side of the car. Finding those curtains loose, he decided that his erstwhile companion had changed her clothes en route, had made a hurried exit while he was covering his radiator and was now a passenger on the train which was beginning to move out of the station. "I will be darned!" he repeated.

Rodney's keenest recollections, after his brief view of the girl, were a pair of the most come-hither, melting gold-brown eyes he had ever looked into and two shining rows of the most perfect ivory teeth a bewitching smile ever disclosed.

All the way back to Meadowlands the incident was uppermost in his mind. By the time he reached there he had decided that the girl must have been running away from something or somebody and, although the clothes she had left undoubtedly were those of a maid, he found it impossible to associate those gold-brown eyes and that marvelous smile with the dull routine of housework.

Retrieving the clothes from the car, he procured a spade from the tool house and buried them behind the garage. For some unknown reason, he was prompted to say nothing of the incident to any one.

The following morning, when he went down to breakfast, he found the entire household laboring under the greatest excitement.

"The Stevensons, our next-door neighbors, have been robbed—with a private detective right in the house, too!" his sister explained. "They suspect a new maid—a short slender girl, with light hair and brown eyes. She disappeared yesterday!"

Rodney was conscious of a sharp twinge somewhere in the region of his heart. "If that girl is a thief," he argued with himself, "she's been forced into it by something she couldn't help. Probably one of a gang, acting under brutal compulsion. She needn't worry about what I know anyway."

Two months later Curtis was a member of a house party on a lovely old fruit farm in Michigan. Among the guests was Miss Anne Forester. To every one but Curtis, Miss Forester was just a charming young girl; to him she was a combination of melting gold-brown eyes, beautiful teeth and a bewitching smile, which he had never forgotten.

Undoubtedly Anne and the combination were one and the same, but beyond the merest lingering when their eyes met, she greeted him exactly as she did the others. Later, when they were sitting together on the veranda, she asked casually. "Haven't we met before?"

"I've been waiting for that question," he answered quietly, "just to assure you of my loyalty. I've never mentioned that affair and your secret is safe with me, but won't you tell me what led you into it?"

"Why—what do you mean?" gasped the girl. "I haven't the slightest idea what you're talking about."

"No cause for alarm. I realize fully there must have been extenuating circumstances and I want to give you an honest, friendly offer of support, in case you ever need it."

"Good evening, Mr. Curtis. I've no notion of remaining longer in the society of a madman!"

Something which he labeled pity took possession of him as the girl left him. He would force her into a confession, persuade her to let him make good the losses, then he would take her away—any place—where she could begin life anew.

He realized now that she must have masqueraded as a maid merely to gain access to the Stevenson home, but even so he could not bear to think of any one half so lovely as Anne Forester being branded as a common thief. That his own heart had been touched by light fingers he never once suspected.

The next morning the hostess announced that Miss Forester had been called away suddenly by telegram. That afternoon Curtis was irresistibly drawn to take the train for Lake Forest.

At his sister's home he made casual inquiry for further news of the Stevenson robbery and learned that the jewels had been mysteriously returned less than 36 hours after their disappearance. Then she had repented. A surge of thankfulness possessed him.

Next day, sauntering past the Stevenson estate he saw a young girl ahead of him the outlines of whose figure were vaguely familiar. At the sound of his footsteps the girl turned and once more Curtis was drowned in the depths of a pair of melting gold-brown eyes. A wave of apprehension swept over him.

"Miss Forester—Anne!" he cried out impulsively, neither of them noting, apparently, his familiar use of her name. "Why did you subject yourself to the danger of a return?"

"There isn't any danger—really;" she answered, reddening.

"Then why did you slip from my car to the train that afternoon, with jewels in your possession that you returned in less than 36 hours after you stole them?"

"I only hid in the bushes on the other side of the train. Surely, you must know that I intended to return those baubles almost immediately, don't you?"

"How should I know?"

"Oh! Please—Mr. Curtis I—I'm not a thief. It was just a foolish wager. The detective uncle hired to live in the house was so cocksure of himself he finally got on my nerves. I thought his pride ought to have a good jolt, so I made a wager a burglary could be committed under his very nose without his discovering it until the thief had flown. The new maid resembled me so strongly that I bribed her to leave suddenly. Then I donned some clothes she left, took a few jewels from auntie's wall safe, some of my own clothes to return in—the rest you know—except—I'm not a bit proud of the escapade, now that it's all over."

"But you were a thief that day, just the same, little Anne," Curtis whispered, drawing her hand lovingly through his arm. "You stole something of mine which I never expect to get back. I wonder if you know what it is."

"I—I think so. Will you call it even if—if I give you something of mine—something just like it—in return?"

Downfall of Etruria Is Laid to Luxury

Like Rome, Etruria fell victim of her sin. Diodorus wrote: "Their country was so fertile they derived therefrom not only sufficient for their needs, but enough to supply them with luxuries. Three times a day they partook of elaborate repasts at which the tables were decked with embroidered cloths and vessel of gold and silver. The servants were noticeable for the richness of their attire. In fact, giving themselves up to sensuous enjoyments, they had naturally lost the glorious reputation their ancestors had won in wars.

Etruscans are supposed to have entered Italy from the Po region. Whether they came from Macedonia, the home of Alexander the Great, or whether they were a colony established by Greece in the days of her grandeur, may be decided by the remains of a lost city discovered near Ferrara.

Romulus, founder of Rome, suckled by a she wolf, according to legend, found the Etruscan people firmly established when he began Rome. Legend gives them a league of 12 cities thriving on the rich, fertile plain, to which Egypt, Greece and Africa paid bounteous tribute in gold, silver, scarabs, rare vases and priceless gems. Pisa, famous today for its leaning tower, was a small village of rich, extravagant voluptuous Etruria. All the great cities have vanished—National Geographic Magazine.

That's How He Shook

Sam had passed through a harrowing experience. He had seen a ghost. While his audience listened with bulging eyes, he related the details of his adventure.

"Ah jes' come out of de cowshed," he said, "an' Ah had a bucket of milk in mah hand. Den Ah hears a noise by de side of de road an' de ghost rushes out."

"Good heavens!" interrupted one of his listeners. "Did you shake with fright, Sam?"

"Ah don't know what Ah shook wid. Ah hain't sayin' for suttin Ah shook at all. But when Ah got home Ah found all de milk gone an' two pounds o' butter in de bucket."—Life.

Some Musical Gems

The prima donna's life is a sing-song affair.

The violinist is always up to his chin in music.

By harping on one string you are apt to get out of tune with the world.

A violinist reproved his daughter for using paint and she retorted that she used it for the same purpose that he used resin, to help in drawing her beau.—Boston Transcript.

Repays Loan With Cake

A Hamburg capitalist lent 10,000 marks to a baker on a mortgage several years ago. Recently the baker paid off the loan with a 7-cent cake.

HIGH WATER MARK

NEVER in the history of the Gazette-Transcript has the circulation exceeded that of 1924, over 2600 copies being printed and distributed every issue. Everybody wants the Gazette-Transcript.

NEVER has the amount of advertising averaged higher for January, February and March than in 1924, over 943 inches every week. Gazette advertising brings R-E-S-U-L-T-S.

EVERY ISSUE of the Gazette-Transcript has over 12,500 readers, a total rarely reached by a country weekly. Weymouth should be proud of its home paper.

EVERY ISSUE of the Gazette-Transcript reaches more readers than 10,000 circulars supposed to be distributed house-to-house. No better medium than the home newspaper.

WHEN a person invests $1 in a Gazette "Ad", the cost is only eight cents per 1000 readers. A ridiculously low price, yet some hesitate and miss a big opportunity

For $8 (contract rate) or $15 transient rate one can obtain a column "Ad" in the Gazette-Transcript, BUT 10,000 flyers printed and distributed, to reach the same number of readers would cost much more. It's a fact.

THIS WEEK we were forced to print 16 pages to contain all the news, the features, and the up-to-date announcements of our merchants. The white paper alone costs about four cents per copy. Mr. Reader—It is the advertiser who pays for your paper.

WINDOW CARDS and flyers are expensive compared with the cost of an announcement in the Gazette-Transcript. Every entertainment, fair, festival, whist party or food sale conducted to raise money should be advertised in the home paper. No doubt about the returns from the investment when you can reach 12,000 readers.

Advertising in the Gazette-Transcript is worth much more per inch than some other papers, because it reaches over twice as many readers. It is circulation that the Advertiser buys, not mere inches.

INCHES OF ADVERTISING

The Post Office Department requires all newspapers to report weekly the amount of Advertising in the issue. Here's what the Gazette figures show:

January 4, number of inches	810
January 11, number of inches	876
January 18, number of inches	892
January 25, number of inches	1159
February 1, number of inches	937
February 8, number of inches	964
February 15, number of inches	924
February 22, number of inches	926
February 29, number of inches	847
March 7, number of inches	980
March 14, number of inches	1058
	10,373

THE AVERAGES

Average inches, 11 weeks	943
Average, same weeks in 1923	829
Average, same weeks in 1922	762
Average, same weeks in 1921	724
Average, same weeks in 1920	667

An average gain of 276 inches of Advertising per Week over four years ago,—about 14 extra columns.

Evidently some merchants believe in Newspaper Advertising, and they are our most Prosperous Business Men. "'Nuf Sed."

Comrade Moran is improving, but is still in the hospital and he enjoys receiving postals from the members of Corps 102.

Corps member Mrs. Annie Fisher has been in Brockton hospital.

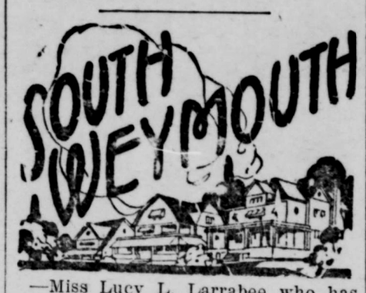

We are glad to welcome back to Weymouth Corps member Mrs. Abbie Jordan who has been spending the winter in California.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE, QUINCY
Two photoplays screened from the novels of two masters of English literature—Sir Anthony Hope and Sir Hall Caine—both of whom were knighted for their notable contributions, are secured for next week's program at the Quincy theatre. It comes about through one of those rare chances in the theatrical world that sometimes offer unusual opportunities.

Hope's "Hupert of Hentzau" shows Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is the sequal to "The Prisoner of Zenda", and was made famous on the legitimate stage by that prince of actors, James K. Hackett. Unlike most stories, the hero does not carry the title role, but leaves it to the villain, portrayed by Lew Cody. Elain Hammerstein appears as Queen Flavia.

The plot throughout holds the interest of the most blase, inasmuch as there is not a moment's lagging in the film. Every producer making pictures believes that once in a life time he can overcome all obstacles and make a perfect picture. Myron Selznick and Victor Heerman are happy to say that as the directing forces for Rupert of Hentzau, they feel that they have achieved the acme of perfection.

On Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, Caine's story "The Master of Man", is presented under the title "Name the Man". It stars Mae Marsh, Patsy Ruth Miller, Creighton Hale, Conrad Nagel, Hobart Bosworth. In the words of the reviewers "it is one of those immortal masterpieces, everlasting because it is built of the heart and soul of humanity".

—Miss Lucy L. Larrabee who has been ill at her home, 721 Main street is convalescing in the Weymouth Hospital.

—Harry Beede of Forest street, formerly of Atlantic, is convalescing at the Weymouth Hospital from an operation for appendicitis.

—Funeral services for Charles H. Clapp, a member of the Board of Assessors, was held from his late home 78 Hollis street, Saturday afternoon. Rev William D. Veazie, pastor of the Second Universalist Church, and Rev. L. W. Attwood of Abington, a former pastor conducted the service. Mr. Clapp is survived by his widow, two brothers and two sisters. Interment was in the Lakewood cemetery on Pond street.

—Charles S. Jackson, formerly superintendent in the Lynn Schools, delivered the address in the Association Building on Sunday evening at the usual Sunday night meeting conducted under the auspices of the Pond Plain Improvement Association. Mr. Jackson's subject was "Education."

—The funeral of Mrs. Ella B. Churchill, wife of Charles E. Churchill, who passed away at the Weymouth Hospital on Thursday after a few hours illness, was held from her late home, 42 Bates avenue on Sunday afternoon, Rev. William D. Veazie, pastor of the Second Universalist Church officiating. Besides her husband, Mrs. Churchill is survived by a daughter, Doris, a son Earl, and her mother, Mrs. Sampson. Interment was in the Elmwood Cemetery.

—Mrs. Frances Keene of Hollis street is confined to her home by illness.

—The property at 691 Main street ormerly owned by Mrs. Irene Sprague, has been transferred to A. W. Brown of Watertown, who buys for investment.

—Miss Alice Welch of Union street, formerly manager of the Adams store in Rockland, has taken a position at Stone's store in that town.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Edward J. McCarty to Louis A. Cook Jr. dated the seventeenth day of October, 1917, recorded at Norfolk Deeds, Books 1414, page 53 will be sold at public auction at the office of Louis A. Cook, No. 111 Pleasant Street, South Weymouth, Mass., on Saturday, April 12, 1924, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular, the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely: A certain parcel of land known as Hawk Island lying in the Weymouth Great Pond in Weymouth containing one half acre, more or less, and bounded easterly by land formerly belonging to Josiah Quincy Torrey and Noah W. Torrey of Weymouth and Caroline T. C. Whitcomb, wife of Jacob Whitcomb of Holbrook; northerly and westerly by the water and southerly by land formerly belonging to sons of J. V. Bates. The division line is a continuation of a line commencing at the northwest corner of the cemetery on Pond Street and running westerly in a straight line to the west of said island. Also a certain parcel of land situated on the westerly side of Pond Street in said Weymouth, bounded and described as follows: beginning on Pond Street at the southeasterly corner of the parcel hereby conveyed at a stone on the northeasterly corner of the land of the Lake View Cemetery Association; the line runs in a westerly direction along an old stone wall and land of Abbie L. Arnold to the first described parcel; thence turning and running northerly sixteen feet; thence turning and running in an easterly direction parallel to the first mentioned line by land of Lillian A. Hatch to said Pond Street; thence turning and running in a southerly direction by said Pond Street to the point of beginning.

Said premises will be sold subject to a first mortgage of $800 and any unpaid interest thereon given by said Edward J. McCarty to Stephen E. Jeffers, dated October 17, 1917, recorded in Norfolk Deeds, Book 1414, page 51, and any unpaid taxes thereon; $250 in cash will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale, balance in ten days from date of sale on delivery of deed at office of said Louis A. Cook.

PLEASE OBSERVE

It is necessary to emphasize the fact that notices of births, engagements, marriages and deaths, positively will not be accepted for publication in the Gazette-Transcript unless there appears on the notice the full name and address of the person contributing same with telephone number, if any. In the case of birth announcements, if it is not possible to give a telephone number, the name of the attending physician or hospital must be included. This regulation is enforced to protect the public from false announcements.

THE DIFFERENCE

If a doctor makes a mistake, he buries it

If a merchant makes a mistake, he crawls out of it

But if an editor makes a mistake, he puts it on a sheet of paper for the world to look at, and in every community there are cranks who think they are models of wisdom because they occasionally discover one.

MARKET REPORT

As a guide to the busy housekeeper the Gazette-Transcript will publish the prices in the Boston market as of Tuesday of the week the Gazette-Transcript is printed.

At the vegetable counter—Spinach, new cabbage, leeks, bunched beets and carrots, cauliflower, native hothouse lettuce and onions.

Many of the stores are having special sales on Florida oranges. Bananas are of particularly good quality; large size 50c dozen. Native hothouse rhubarb retails mostly 20c lb. Strawberries are scarce and higher, retailing mostly 75c quart basket.

At the meat counter—Lamb is higher; veal is lower. Beef and pork prices remain the same.

Due to the storm last week and continued windy weather very little fish has been brought in this week, causing considerable increase in fish prices. Haddock 15—18c lb. Smoked fillet 22—25c lb. Fillet of sole, flounder variety, 30—35c lb. Fresh dressed flounders retailing at 28c lb. are higher than they have been for years.

California asparagus, bunches of small stalks 90c, 48c ½ bunch. Giant stalk, one lb. bunch 75c. Peas 40—50c lb. String and wax beans 35—40c lb. Beet greens three lbs 45c. Dandelions 30—35c lb. New potatoes 15c lb. Texas bermuda onions 20c lb. Sweet potatoes are higher two lbs for 25c.

Statistics show that for seven of the past ten years wholesale prices of nearby eggs have sold at the lowest point during the last three weeks in March. Five years out of ten this lowest price has extended through the first or second week of April. Already prices of nearby eggs have reached lowest prices of last year 47—49c dozen.

Today's recipe, Haddock Souffle—2½ lbs. fish, ½ cup rice, (measured before boiled), ¼ lb. cheese, two eggs 1½ cup milk. Boil and flake fish, separate eggs, beat yolks with 1½ cup milk. Put in buttered baking dish alternate layers of fish, cooked rice, cheese, until dish is filled, then pour over milk and egg yolks. Sprinkle top with cracker crumbs and spread whites of eggs over it with salt, pepper and butter.

GEM THEATRE

Gladys Walton, the charming star, will be seen at the Gem Saturday in "The Wild Party". The ever popular Hoot Gibson in "Thrill Chaser" will furnish fun and excitment for both young and old.

The most sensational picture in years, "His Children's Children" at the Gem Sunday, the cast including Bebe Daniels, Dorothy Markaill, James Rennie, George Fawcett. Are we giving too much time to the almighty dollar and too little thought to our children? A sensational exposure of New York's wealthy families and the kind of lives their children lead. Few pictures are so tremendously gripping, so brilliantly acted, gorgeously produced,

Travel Letters of Weymouth People

St. Petersburg, Fla., Mar. 15, 1924

People go somewhere nearly every day for the fun of it, and of course many buy. We never saw anything like it. I saw a list of over one hundred subdivisions listed a short time ago, and there have been a great many more opened up since then. If anyone has a piece of land, old pasture or grove, someone is after it. They will put in streets, sidewalks, plant trees and so forth in the better places; of course marking it off into house lots, advertising it well, giving it a nice sounding name and prepare to make money. Some of them are surely making money.

Many of the lots are sold for two or three thousand dollars. Everyone is crazy! Why they will stop you on the street and try to sell land to you, and even do as one did to us. We were sitting on our piazza. An auto stopped in front of the house. A well dressed man got out, came up to us; said he was giving away something for nothing, and invited us to go to Oldmar. We told him we did not think we would invest any money here. However, he was very anxious to have us go. So we went. It is over 30 miles from here. They came to the house after us, took us there by auto, gave us a very good lunch, brought us home again; an all-day trip. We had a lovely time. Found Oldmar a pretty place, and if we had wanted to invest would have bought a place there.

I think there are thousands of real estate salesmen and saleswomen here. Some of the development companies here have nearly a hundred salesmen and all of them have quite a number.

Now about the city. It is very well laid out, with Central avenue, as the name implies, being the central and main avenue. Central avenue, which is seven and one-half miles long, extends from Tampa bay to Boca Ceiga bay, dividing the city north and south.

North of Central avenue are the venues running in the same direction, east to west, in regular order by number. South of Central avenue the same system is followed. The streets run north and south, starting one block from the bay in numerical order and paralleling the waterfront. The waterfront street is called "Beach Drive". There are ten parks, several having places for games of different kinds. In Mirrow Lake park there are places for lawn bowling, shuffle board, and other sports, 90 apartment houses, 70 hotels, eating places without number, and hundreds of small houses of three or four small rooms, some even smaller. Two large tourist camping grounds full of people in autos with camp outfit, the largest city hall in the state, a Carnegie library, three hospitals, three ice factories, good schools, ten churches besides the Catholic and Christian Scientist. The churches are so crowded that unless you get there nearly an hour before time for the service to begin, you must take a back seat. A lady told me that she went to four churches one Sunday, getting there early before she found one she could get into, and at present there are also two tents each holding several thousand where they are having meetings. There are some large churches here; one holds 1800, another 1300, and some others that are large, but I do not know how many they will hold. One of the Baptist societies has just started to use their new church. They are still under a $75,000 debt. Last Sunday they raised nearly $18,000 towards it. One of the Methodist societies is out for a $300,000 church which they hope to build this summer. Miss Brown is to give a concert soon, the money to go toward the building fund.

Many of the streets are very wide, with grass plot between the sidewalk and street, with trees and shrubs in the plot, making a pretty city. The trees are all so different here. Even the pines grow very tall, with no branches until near the top, and even then they are not so thick. The pine needles are very much larger than they are on the trees at home. The folks make some beautiful baskets of the pine needles. The pine trees being more open trees, it makes them look beautiful by moonlight. The royal palm, we call the bottle palm. In shape it is like a tonic bottle with the lower or full part gray colored, the neck green, the bark smooth and out of the top the cluster of leaves. It grows very tall and is a striking looking tree. Then there are the Palmetto palms, the Date palms, and others, the Camphor tree, the Guava, the Mango which is a pretty shaped tree and makes quite a good shade. A very pretty tree when in bloom is the Mountain Ebony; it has a beautiful flower, much like an orchid, and there are many others that we do not know the names of. Then there are also many flowering vines ; one they call the flame vine; it has an orange colored blossom similar to our honeysuckle but larger. We saw a fence about 200 feet long and 4 feet high with several arches still higher just covered with it. When it was all in bloom it was a very beautiful sight.

There is hardly anything in bloom now on account of the cold weather we had the last two months. I am told it is the dormant season, but it is getting warmer and things will begin to grow and bloom. We have a rose bush in bloom on our grounds. It has three lovely roses in full bloom and many buds.

I must not forget to tell you of the mocking birds. They sing so sweetly even in the night sometimes especially when it is moonlight. Everyone loves the mocking birds.

Another thing I nearly forgot to tell you about are the green benches all along Central avenue which is about twenty feet wide. There are benches painted green also on some of the other streets and on the parks. People from all over the world sit on those seats. It is one of the favorite pastimes to sit on the benches and see the people strolling by and everyone is friendly and talks with his or her seat mate. This should really be called the "Friendly City". You are almost sure to sit beside someone from another part of the country making it very interesting. Another thing here that amuses us is the bead stores. Everyone is making or wearing beads. Shell, cone or seeds all help to make a chain. One man we know made his wife a chain of shells and beads that was very pretty. This could also be called the "Bead City". We often see Mr. and Mrs. Pierce, our neighbors at home, and also Mr. and Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, who lived on Pond street until recently. Could tell you much more if I had time and space.

W. JOHNSON QUINN, President

THE FIRST EVACUATION DAY

March 17, 432

Over the plain came the stranger
To the council on Tara's hill;
King Logaire had heard of his coming
And he and his lords sat still.

He and the lords and the sages,
The druids that guarded the land
From a thousand unseen dangers,
Were here at the king's command.

They were here to question the stranger
And with dread in their hearts when they knew
This god of the world of the Romans
Was come unto Midhe too.

Up from the plain came St. Patrick
With the crucifix raised in air
And as he paused at the threshold stone
He lifted his eyes in prayer.

Then he spoke, "I am come to you, brothers"—
And his deep voice rang like a bell
"To show you the glad gates of Heaven
And save your souls from Hell."

"I am ready to meet your questions,
I challenge your druids wise
To show me the writ of life's riddle
And the pathway to Paradise."

Forth tottered the oldest druid
At a nod from the king he spoke,
"In the woods I have learned the secrets
From the moondrops on the oak.

"I ever have taught my pupils,
That what clung to the oak spoke true
Now they tell me your God was nailed on the oak
And partook death's pallid hue . .

"Listen! Fate is a horrible serpent
And human kind is a bird;
We are weak tho we feel triumphant,
Fate is swift as an iron sword.

"Where the serpent's venom strikes us
Therefrom blood seeps ceaselessly
Men slaughter men—it is so, has been
And will be to eternity.

"The bird enthralled, it flutters and cries,
Yet it cannot turn away;
The serpent coiled all potent lies
And gloating waits its prey.

"Safe only is the bird in the skies
In the ideal bright;
Dread danger lurks in the glint below
Where the tall oaks bar the light.

"That is the lair of the serpent
And of mortal's danger fell;
Each of us fall when on earth we light
Like the first pair (our forbears) Anu and Bel.

"The triune god is a dread one
And death's in the serpent's wile
We only, his priests, the druids,
Escape for a little while."

He was silent. St. Patrick answered,
"But listen, wise men and kings,
Tho 'tis but the truth he utters
I can tell you of happier things.

"Your triune god is a demon
And born of the serpent's spume;
But do not forget the bright heavens
Are open to call us home.

"The sun is bright in the heavens;
Should the bird but look to the sky
Twould never sink prey to the serpent
For when can a serpent fly?

"And the triune God of the Christians
Has never forgotten His own,
And the Son has been made mortal
To for all our sins atone.

"Let us slaughter and drive out the serpent
His ilk and his worshippers all;
My triune God will be with us,
And He let's not His followers fall.

"I call upon you, O druids,
And I call upon you, high king,
Let us lower the groves with our axes
And the light of heaven let in."

The druids bowed dumb-founded
And the monarch of Ireland all
Thundered, "Aye, thou sage, I am with thee
And my clansmen are at my call."

Then woe was the day for the serpents
And the oaks with their mistletoed boughs,
They hacked them and burnt them and drove them
From hillocks and plains and sloughs.

And they planted the cross as a symbol
And they made the kil bells rings
In the whole of the land they feasted
St. Patrick and the king.

This is why on the soil of Erin
There's never a serpent seen;
But the blue of the vault of heaven smiles
O'er the shamrock's answering green.

GOLD MEDALS AWARDED

Miss Agnes Healy and Miss Ethel Monroe were awarded the Remington gold medal, both writing at the rate of 60 words per minute. The Royal Typewriter Co. awarded these young ladies a gold pin for passing the 60-word-a-minute test on the Royal typewriter. Miss Alice Doherty was awarded a gold pin by the Royal Typewriter Co., passing a 55-word a minute test. Miss Alice Hogan was awarded a certificate of proficiency by the Remington Typewriter Co. These classes have made wonderful progress both in shorthand and typewriting. The awards are on exhibition at the school.

Do You Pay Your Bills?

Being One of a Series of Talks on Bills and the Prompt Payment Of Them. Do you owe any Bills That Are Overdue?

"LET'S HAVE AN UNDERSTANDING"

No credit man will turn a debtor down who tells the TRUTH. For TRUTH is the foundation of CREDIT.

YOU owe an account—YOU have owed it for several months—it is long past due—You want to pay it—circumstances, perhaps, have been against you—then in all fairness to the credit man make a frank statement of your conditions.

You will find the credit man willing to help the honest debtor, if he can. More often his hands are tied. The debtor will not make any attempt to make PROMPT PAYMENT of his account. He, there-fore, can not expect any consideration at the hands of the Credit Man.

If you are not willing to make a "clean breast" of your actual conditions, you have not good reason for thinking you will receive any consideration ot the hands of the credit man.

It is useless to dodge the issue for every credit man in Plymouth, Norfolk and Barnstable Counties are acquainted with your method of paying credit obligations. He knows just how you stand with every firm doing business in both counties.

If you don't pay—if you won't be honest enough to give facts—if you don't make any effort whatever to reduce your indebtedness, you may be sure that the credit man is "GOING AFTER" the money due his firm.

Sometimes drastic measures are necessary to collect an account. You can save yourself lots of trouble and much embarrassment by paying your bills promptly, or by giving the credit man valid reasons for your delinquency.

Don't let your bills accumulate!

THE JOHN HANCOCK CO.

The John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company of Boston has just announced further increased death benefits on weekly premium policies issued by the company.

This is the third great retroactive increase in benefits to weekly premium policies which has been made by the company, beginning with 1916. In fact, before that, beginning in 1908, the company started a consistent policy of readjustment and equalization of insurance benefits.

President Crocker states that this means more than $90,000,000 of benefits added to the company's weekly premium policy holders on this account alone. In 1923 the additions to the insurance payable to small policies without additional cost to the policy holers was approximately $30,000,000.

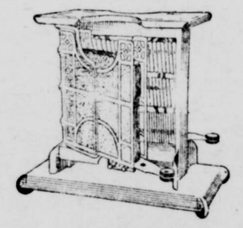

As a result of these increased benefits the company has laid aside large amounts of additional reserve. The total amount of these additions placed in reserve since 1908 was $23,000,000, of which amount approximately $2,000,000 was added in 1923. Besides this, the company since 1908 has paid cash dividends to weekly premium policy holders of more than $11,000,000

Whereever broader benfits have been granted to new policy holders, President Crocker states, it has been the policy of the company to extend this to the old policy holders, and it is this equalization of benefits which caused the additional reserves, which, of course, has greatly strengthened the company and made its position in this respect unique.

Two New Assessors Daly and Burgess

When the Board of Assessors organize this evening two new members will be present. Charles W. Burgess, the present sealer of weight and measures, will take the place of Frank H. Torrey, who has served on the board faithfully and earnestly for a number of years. The vacancy caused by the death of Charles H. Clapp will be filled by D. Frank Daly of 792 Main street.

Mr. Daly, who is well known and popular in South Weymouth, is a Weymouth boy. He was born and spent his early boyhood near the present Pratt school. He attended the Weymouth schools, and was graduated from High school. This was followed by a business course at Bryant & Stratton's. Mr. Daly has a family and an attractive home, two daughters now attending school, and a son a recent graduate of High school, is now associated with his father in the leather business.

For over ten years Mr. Daly was treasurer of the Weymouth Agricultural and Industrial Society. Since the starting of the Weymouth Trust Company he has been one of their directors. He is also president of the South Weymouth Cooperative bank; a member of its board of investment; likewise a member of the board of investment of the Trust Company, which two positions have particularly fitted him for his new work on the Board of Assessors.

Mr. Daly is very enthusiastic about Weymouth, and says that people little realize what facilities and opportunities we have within our bounds. He spoke of the extensive waterfront, yet undeveloped, and the many opportunities that exist for people to buy a cosy little home or build one that would be near good stores, banks, places of entertainment, churches, schools, with transportation such as can be found in the Weymouths.

Mr. Daly realizes that a public official is more or less open to criticism, and while he feels the new task before him is not an easy one, he is anxious to get around and to do the best he can for all. He said that Weymouth is growing fast; that there are a lot of improvements to old property; that many new homes are being built. He felt the Board of Assessors should be in closer touch with these improvements. A man can do his duty and be fair to all. A man having a home in Weymouth is more interested in the town; is interested in what the taxes are and will help all he can. He felt that the town was indebted to several who from their own resources had built streets and laid out property that was a valuable asset to the town. He believed Weymouth was destined to grow, which would mean more local business and prosperous times.

Mr. Daly spoke with enthusiasm of the growth of the co-operative bank of which he is president; how it had grown in number of shareholders and increased its surplus.

Probably no man is more interested in helping to get young people started owning their own homes than Mr. Daly. He is a worker, a believer, a strong advocate of co-operative banks, and says there is no reason why any young couple should start paying rent. By using the co-operative banks they can own a little home of their own, and instead of their money being paid out in rent it goes into their own home, making them home owners and interested in their community and better citizens.

One of the new members, Charles W. Burgess, was born in Weymouth in February, 1888, the son of George and Ruth Burgess. They moved to Hingham when he was five years old and was educated in the Hingham public school, graduating in 1908 from the Hingham High.

Soon after graduating he entered the employ of the Nantasket Steam Boat Co. working as clerk at the Nantasket office.

At the opening of the World War Mr. Burgess enlisted in the 3d Reg. Co. A, 7th Inf. and trained at Camp Greene, North Carolina. In February, 1918, he went across where he remained for some time in active service.

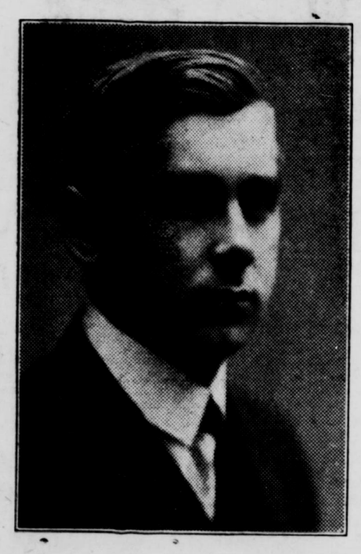

After peace was declared Mr. Burgess returned to North Weymouth to live taking up his residence with his aunt, Mrs. Frank Spear of Pearl st.

Having passed a civil service examination he served as letter carrier in the Boston postal district for several years.

For two years he has been sealer of weights and measures.

The other members of the Board of Assessors are John F. Dwyer, Clayton B. Merchant and Richard Halloran.

The outside duties of the Assessors begin next Tuesday, and the board will probably pay an early visit to the new Edison plant to see how far it has advanced.

NEWSPAPER ADS BEST FOR UTILITIES

"There is no royal road in public utilities advertising, but you will find the advertising columns of your own town newspaper the direct avenue to the minds of your customers" said Arthur W. Hawks Jr. ,manager publication and advertising department, Consolidated Gas, Electric Light and Power Company, Baltimore, Maryland, in an address delivered at Atlantic City, October 17 before the American Gas Association.

He followed up by saying "it pays better to advertise in newspapers and costs less than any other way we know". He also says "advertising dollars go further and bring back more than any other place we put them, if you use this newspaper space to tell your customers the truth about your company".

Stetson Employees Present a Style Show

To welcome home their treasurer, who has just returned from a business trip to Cuba, the employees of Stetson's shop put on, in their new addition, a snappy tie style show. Over 200 gathered last evening. For a couple of hours they listened to several snappy songs, and saw how some thirty styles looked when worn by pretty girls.

Among the invited guests were Frank W. Hough of the Chicago Stetson shop, Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Marsh of Wagoner Marsh Shoe Co. of Akron, Ohio; the entire shoe department of a large Boston store, over fifty in the party, headed by their merchandise manager; and all the managers of Stetson shops in New York city, Springfield and Boston.

The program opened with a song "Welcome home to our treasurer", sung to the tune of "Keep the home fires burning" as follows:

Our Treasurer, we greet you,
And our welcome's hearty too.
Oh! You don't know how we've missed you
Since you've sailed the ocean blue.
We have kept the home-fires burning,
And we've tried to do our best—
So we hope we'll stand inspection
When you give us now the test.

Refrain

We bring words of greeting
At this Style Show meeting,
To the one who's been away
A-journeying.
Welcome we are bringing,
For a thousand singing,
Who are glad to greet you back
To the Stetson Shoe.

Then followed chapter one of the history of the development in five parts of the new two-eyelet shoe, that is proving so popular among the Stetson shoes. Next the present styles of four numbers. Then a song by the "Snappy Tie Revue" headed by Thomas Cuthbert. Too much credit cannot be given to these seven young ladies the Misses Alice Melville, Anna Melville, Aina Jerpi, Alice Coyle, Marjorie Thomas and Marion Sweet, all employees of the factory or in the office who skillfully displayed the new models with grace and all the appearances of one having long experience in the work.

Then followed ten numbers of summer and sport styles, with the fall group of twelve styles. The closing number was moving pictures of the 47th semi-annual sample feste and style show held at the factory early in March. These pictures were interesting in that they gave many of the actors in the audience a chance to see themselves as others see them and brought forth bursts of laughter from many.

Mr. Heald spoke with enthusiasm of his recent trip and says that on the island the Stetson shoe are popular. E. H. Stetson, ever alert to please the wearing public was present and his never failing interest to his salesmen was apparent when suggestions of new styles were made.

The evening proved a very pleasant one for those that could be present

Remarkable Production of Photoplay "Fabiola"

A capacity house at the Gem theatre last evening greeted the production of that powerful photo drama "Fabiola" under the auspices of the Sacred Heart School Association and much credit for the success is due to the committee of arrangements, which included Mrs. Byron Hall, Mrs. Edward Mulligan, and Mrs. George Dunning. Mrs. Ellen Hall was in charge of the music and a solo by Mrs. Rand and duett by Mrs. Rand and Mrs. O'Connor added to the production.

"Fabiola" is an Italian film version of the famous story by Cardinal Wiseman, telling of the martyrdom of the early Christians in Rome. It is both religious and historical in production, presented with sincerity and reverence for its subject.

The persecutions of the Christians and the brave manner in which they faced their fate, form the theme of the picture. The leading characters are two Roman girls of patrician rank Fabiola and her cousin Agnes. Agnes is secretly a member of the Christian sect, and her dream is to convert Fabiola to her belief.

The arch-enemy of the Christians is Fulvius, a spy, who had sold his own sister into slavery when she embraced the Christian religion.

The steadfastness of the little band of Christians, who met and worshipped secretly in the Catacombs, their quiet defiance of the Roman order to worship the state gods, their exalted bravery in the face of death or torture, is vividly brought out in the picture.

The stupendous ensemble scenes, in which thousands of extras are used and which were filmed on the very locations in Rome where they were enacted centuries ago, are excellent and give a vivid picture of the Eternal City at the time of the persecution of the Christians.

SURPRISE AND PRESENTATION

Wednesday evening Daniel E. Goodwin of 1046 Pleasant street, East Weymouth, was surprised by about thirty of his young friends, who tendered him a farewell party and presented him with a purse of $35 as a token of their esteem and friendship. Mr. Goodwin left the following evening for Garrison, N. Y., where he will study to become a missionary father of the Franciscan Order.

He also received two other purses before leaving, one from his neighbors and the other from his fellow workers at the Old Colony Trust Company, Boston, where he has been employed for the last three years.

He is a graduate of the grammar school at Wakefield, where he formerly lived, and of the Weymouth High school, class of '20. He is very proficient in music, having studied at the New England Conservatory. He was a member of the Immaculate Conception choir of East Weymouth and also gave music lessons and played in a local orchestra during his spare time.

He will be greatly missed by all his friends, but they wish him the best of success and happiness in his chosen work.

COLLECTION OF GARBAGE

At the annual town meeting it was voted that a committee of one from each ward in town be appointed to consider the collection of garbage in Weymouth, and report at some future town meeting. Moderator George L. Barnes has appointed the following:

Ward one—Lottie F. Sampson
Ward two—A. Herbert Pratt
Ward three—Patrick Casey
Ward four—Gertrude C. Andrews
Ward five—Guy W. C. Hartt

WOMEN IN COURT

A North Weymouth woman was arraigned in the Quincy district court Wednesday on charges of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor and of drunkenness. Her case was continued until Thursday (yesterday). Early Wednesday morning an automobile operated by the woman on North street, North Weymouth, was in collision with one operated by Joseph Delory. Patrolman Robert Hunt, after an investigation, arrested the woman and her companion, also a woman; the latter was found guilty of intoxication and paid a fine of $10.

The operator was fined $100 and sentenced to a month in the house of correction; appealed.

BLUE MONDAY?

One Dollar Will Change The Color!

Like the youngster hesitating on the spring-board because the water's c-o-o-o-ld, so you've been stuttering along trying to dig up courage enough to save just a bit of each week's pay check.

Monday Morning--blue Monday again--and most of Saturday's dollars gone the way of last week's and the many many weeks before that.

Just a single dollar bill would have pried open the lid and started you on the road to a real future.

This Bank is glad to help you. It accepts accounts as little as one dollar simply to help you "get the habit".

TUFTS FUND CONCERT

The town of Weymouth has a great many music lovers, as was shown by the capacity filled hall at the Gem theatre last Friday evening, when the third entertainment was given under the Tufts Fund Course. The Boston Symphony Sextet of wind instruments, Albert Sand director, rendered a program, varied to suit the tastes of all. The clarinet solo, "Valse Triste" and the last selection, "Marche Militaire", seemed to be the general favorites. Many present who had not before attended any of these concerts spoke with appreciation of the Tufts Fund which enabled the townspeople to hear such fine music without cost. The Gem Theatre was also spoken of as being a very attractive hall for a gathering of that kind.

The program:

Sextet ..... Quef
Allegro
Andantino
Rondo Final

Quintet ..... Mozart
For Oboe, Clarinet, Horn Bassoon and Piano
Allegro
Adagio
Andantino con Variazioni

Clarinet Solo
Romance (from the second concerto) Weber

Valse Triste ..... Gliere
Albert Sand

Melodie ..... Rachmaninoff
Hymn to the Sun (from the Golden Cockerel') ..... Rimsky-Korsakow
Marche Militaire ..... Schubert
(The last three pieces arranged by Albert Sand)

Well Known in Musical Circles

The death of William C. Cuff, the manager of the moving picture shows in the Fogg Opera House, came very suddenly at his South Braintree home early last Friday morning. He was apparently in his usual health the evening before, but was stricken about midnight and death was due to heart failure, induced by an attack of acute indigestion. Services were held at St. Francis church at South Braintree Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock the pastor, Rev. Patrick T. Higgins, officiating, preceded by prayer at the home at 1.30. The cortege proceeding from the home to the church headed by Milo Burke's band of thirty pieces of Brockton, of which the deceased was a member, with the veteran drum major Andrew Grant, leading. The floral tributes nearly filled a large automobile.

Rev. Fr. Higgins delivered an eloquent eulogy of Mr. Cuff, citing his many good qualities and sterling character. There were duets by Joseph Ecker and Virgio Cappalin, with John Herrick at the organ and a most impressive selection, "Nearer My God to Thee" played by B. Milo Burk, cornet, and Mr. Herrick, organ. The church was filled, a large number being unable to gain admittance. Among those present were many of Mr. Cuff's musical associates from Boston and Brockton.

Mr. Cuff's widow was Miss Mary Reidy of South Weymouth. He leaves also, two sons, William R., a student at Thayer Academy, and Norman; two brothers, John W. of South Braintree, Joseph V. of Chicago, and a sister, Miss Helen Cuff of Braintree.

CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

Mrs. Horace R. Drinkwater is chairman of the ladies committee interested in rebuilding the Children's Sunlight Hospital at Scituate destroyed by fire last summer. The approximate expense is $25,000, which, with the running expenses of $5000 will bring the 1924 budget up to $30,000.

With the idea of offering the best opportunity to carry on the sunlight treatment, or heliotherapy, the hospital was opened in 1917, and has been a valuable medium for restoring to health many unfortunate children. It is expected all lovers of children, especially those sick and in need, will wish to help in the restoration of the hospital.

This season temporary quarters can be arranged, but for only part of the summer. Treatment will be given children suffering from after effects of infantile paralysis, bone tuberculosis, and other chronic diseases, as well as a group of adult girls convalescing from operations or long illness. Patients are received from the social service department of Boston hospitals medical organizations in or near Boston, and from individuals.

William C. Reynolds is president of the board of directors.

STATE FEDERATION ITEMS

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president of the State Federation, sent the following message to the Squantum Women's club, Mrs. Wendell Phillips Shore president: "Greetings and best wishes from the State Federation to the Squantum Women's club in your new undertaking. We know the Bulletin will bind you closer together as a club and so increase your usefulness in the community.'

The bulletin of the club, its first issue appearing this month, is called "The Pukwana." The name is takén from Longfellow's "Song of Hiawatha" and signifies the smoke from the "Peace Pipe" that calls the Indians to council.

The editor is Mrs. Roy Lothrop of 64 Vercluld street, Quincy, with a group of associate editors. Its leading article is "Loving greetings to club members by the president." There are other greetings and suggestions from various committee chairmen, and short notices of events to come.

Mrs. Frederick S. Davis, 146 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, has received nearly $1,000 towards the $2,000 fund for the Marion Chase Baker fellowship, for the MacDowell Colony at Peterboro, N. H. This amount will enable some worthy person who needs leisure for some creative work to pass three or four weeks each year in this delightful quiet place.

Mrs. MacDowell will gladly give her services to any club desiring to have a benefit recital the latter part of May and through June. The Waltham Women's Club is to have such a recital on May 22.

PAINTING SMALL CAR BY AMATEUR

Cost of Renovation in Various Cases, Apart From Time, Is Not Heavy.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

Car painting by amateurs is quite the fashion nowadays. Small car owners will be glad to hear that the cost of renovating a car in various cases, apart from the questions of his own labor and time, is not at all heavy. For a one-coat job the cost of enamel, brush and cleaning materials is well under $5, while a complete renovation (three-coat work) or changing the color need not cost very much more and leave a good quantity of material over for retouching purposes. This figure is on the ample side and allows for the very best material. Car renovation is a case where only the best materials should be employed, and the amateur should insist upon obtaining first-class enamel.

Wide Range of Colors.

The work is easily carried out, and excellent results may be obtained. As to the choice of color, a very wide range is available, including the popular grays, blues of all shades, greens, reds, dark browns, yellows, whites, creams, and black. In the majority of cases where car renovation is necessary it will be found a very simple matter. When cars have been stored, it may be found that the paint work has entirely lost its gloss and presents a dull and dirty appearance. Provided the surface is in fairly good condition, all that may be necessary is to give the car one coat of enamel.

The body work and chassis should first be cleaned with turpentine or gasoline to remove any grease. Prepare a pail of hot water to which some common washing soda has been added (not too much soda should be used, about one ounce to a gallon of water being sufficient.) Take a piece of flat felt and dip it in the hot soda water and then in finest pumice dust, and scour down well with this, doing about three feet of the body work at a time until the car is completely rubbed over. All pumice dust should be removed with clean cold water and a chamois.

Touch Up Dents.

When dry touch up any scratches or dents with paint and fill in with a suitable stopping paste. After the stopping paste is dry it should be rubbed over smoothly with a piece of fine sandpaper and all dust washed off. A coat of gloss enamel should be applied and the job is completed.

Wabbling Hind Wheel Is "Eyesore" to Any Driver

If there's one thing that's bound to catch the eye of any driver, no matter how unobserving otherwise, it's a wabbling hind wheel of a car ahead or the crippled front "roller" of a machine approaching. All who witness these premonitions of danger prophesy trouble ahead for the owner.

But the owner seldom learns the truth about the condition of his own wheels because he is busy speculating about the crooked courses the wheels of passing cars are taking.

Early and Late Sparks Are Designation Terms

Early spark and late spark are merely terms to designate how the spark is timed by manipulation of the spark control lever, early spark meaning spark occurring a trifle before the beginning of power stroke of each piston, caused by advancing the spark lever; and late spark meaning spark occurring at the beginning or a trifle after beginning of power strokes and caused by retarding the spark lever.

Bluing Metal

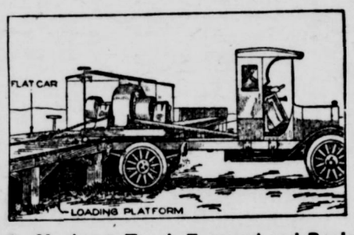

Small bright metal objects, such as screws, may be blued by the simple process of placing them on a piece of sheet metal and holding it over a fire until the parts being treated have assumed the desired color.

Pedestrians Urged to Face Traffic on Road

The Pennsylvania Motor federation sent to its 62 affiliated clubs a circular urging pedestrians walking on the highways, especially at night, to face the traffic by walking on the left side of the road. After a careful study of the situation, it has been found that in most of the cases where cars strike persons on the highways at night the driver is partially blinded by the headlights of approaching cars and, swinging to the right, fails to see pedestrians. It is contended that if persons walking on the roads would face the traffic they would be better able to avoid being struck, and also would be seen sooner by the drivers of cars aproaching in the opposite direction.

Unloading Heavy Machine From Platform to Truck

A man who had the job of unloading heavy machines from a truck was confronted by the shortage of labor, and employed a method which made use of the power of the truck for moving machines. On backing the truck up against the loading platform, the machine was moved by means of levers, so that the base of it projected about 10 inches from the rear end of the truck. It was raised slightly, so that a roller could be placed under it. —Maury Robinson, Paris, Tex., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

By Moving a Truck Forward and Back Under Its Own Power, Heavy Machines Are Unloaded From It on Rollers, and Pushed Onto Flat Cars.

Plan to Test Defective Valve for a Slow Leak

To test a defective valve for a slow leak, turn the wheel until the valve stem is at its highest point—as far from the road as possible. Remove the dust cap and hold a glass of water so that the mouth of the stem is submerged beneath the liquid. Small bubbles of air will form and rise to the surface of the water if the valve is leaking. When such trouble is experienced, the cause is usually eliminated by screwing down the seating of the valve or replacing with a new plunger.

"Price Class"

the mysterious stranger in the motor industry

Does a difference in price indicate a difference in quality? Why is one car priced 25% to 50% higher than another of the same quality? The 4 questions that a buyer should ask when considering any car.

HERE are facts based on world's engineering authority. If you have any intention of buying an automobile, you are urged to read them.

No "Price Class"

There are only two kinds of automobiles today. Economically produced cars which give you more for your money. And cars which are not, and give you less.

Price does not indicate intrinsic worth. But an individual maker's cost of production.

Hence two cars may show a price difference of $400 to $1,200 and more. And be of the same quality.

The difference in price simply shows that it cost one maker more to make this car than the other. Judging value on price, this is folly. Price class is a myth.

Where the Difference Comes in Studebaker, producing 150,000 cars yearly, has reduced engineering cost to $3.33 per car.

This is based on a total engineering cost of $500,000 a year, which is the least on which any manufacturer can maintain an efficient engineering department.

Thus a manufacturer producing but 20,000 cars a year must add $25 per car for engineering, or eight times as much as Studebaker.

Other fixed overheads have been reduced proportionately. And these influence Studebaker prices.

A set of body dies costs $100,000. It will produce many thousand sets of body stampings, each one as perfect as though there were only a dozen made.

By building 50,000 bodies from a single set of dies, Studebaker reduces the die cost per body to only $2.00.

The average small manufacturer whose volume will enable him to build only 5,000 bodies from a set of dies in the same time in which Studebaker builds 50,000 has to charge each body $20 for die cost. The difference of $18 is in the price but not in the body. The customer pays it but he gets nothing tangible for it. It is one of the penalties of uneconomical manufacture.

Thus a car priced at $1,200 to $1,400 can be sold as low as $1045 when produced economically in quantity. Such a car is the Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car, at $1045. A clear difference of between $155 to $355.

The uneconomical manufacturer is not profiteering. He is unfortunately situated, that is all.

Equalled Only by Costliest Foreign and American Makes

All Studebaker models are equipped with Timken bearings. There are few cars in America, regardless of price, which equal ours on this point. In our Light-Six, for instance, we put more Timken bearings than are used in any competitive car, within $1,500 of its price.

We subject Studebaker cars to 30,000 inspections. That requires 1,200 men. All told over 70,000 hand and machine operations are performed in the manufacture of a Studebaker car. In so many operations, though each one is small, there is great opportunity for economy and savings. 15% premium is paid on many steels to insure Studebaker specifications instead of "commercial run" used in cars many times Studebaker price.

Why Studebaker excels the world in body building

For 72 years Studebaker has been a builder of quality vehicles.

This historical tradition has been inbred in generation after generation of coachmakers. And the Indiana city of South Bend is known as a world-Mecca of artisans of this craft.

In the modern $10,000,000 Studebaker body plants, there are sons and fathers and grandfathers working side by side. Their religion is fine coach building. And this is reflected in their work.

As fine body builders, Studebaker stands supreme. No other maker has the experience of Studebaker. No other the Studebaker traditions to inspire him.

See a Studebaker—Then Decide

Buy no car until you've seen a Studebaker. Go over it, point for point. Consult any unbiased expert. Ask your banker. And you will own a Studebaker.

Get an Answer to These 4 Questions Before Buying Any Car

1—Is this an assembled car? Or "partly" assembled. Insist on this answer. Assembled cars pay a profit to from 75 to 100 parts makers alone.

2—What sort of bearings? Studebakers are Timken-equipped. Everlasting smoothness and quiet performance result.

3—How many cars a year does this maker produce? Small productions mean either a higher price or cheaper car.

4—What sort of upholstery? Studebaker closed models are done in Chase Mohair, the finest material for this purpose known. Open models are upholstered in genuine leather.

CLUB and SOCIAL

—The marriage has been announced of Carl Kidder of 14 Pearl street, North Weymouth, to Miss Marion Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Evans of Neponset avenue, Dorchester. The ceremony took place Monday evening at the parsonage of the Second Congregational church of Dorchester and was performed by Rev. Vaughan Dabney. A reception took place at the home of the bride following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Kidder are to reside at 14 Pearl street.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, 16 Union street, South Braintree, announce the engagement of their daughter, Olive Clarke to Roland Hawes Torrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis B. Torrey of 239 Pleasant street.

—In honor of her approaching marriage to Charles P. Sheppard of Chelsea, thirty friends of Miss Grace Taylor tendered her a miscellaneous shower at her home on Cedar street March 20. An enjoyable evening was spent with vocal and instrumental music. Refreshments were served. Miss Taylor received many beautiful and useful presents.

—Miss Virginia Magner of Park Rd. is confined to her home with the chicken-pox.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Knecht Jr. of Boston spent the week-end in South Weymouth with Mr. Knecht's brother, Herbert P. Crooker of 634 Main street.

—Mrs. Frank Holbrook of Torrey street and Mrs. Georgie Grundstrom returned Monday from a trip to New York and New Jersey.

—The Women's League of the Old South Union Congregational church held their March meeting in the church vestry on Thursday when Mrs. Horace Norcross read a chapter from "India on the march" and Miss Sarah Tirrell read an interesting letter from Miss Mary Thayer who is travelling in Cuba.

—The Ace of Clubs met Wednesday March 19, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Buker. Prizes were awarded to Mabell Swanson, Arnold Swanson, Ruth Hersey and Charles Jackson. Luncheon was served by the hostess.

—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Shores of 384 East street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Edith Lillian Shores, to Haskett D. Blanchard of 1 Norton street, North Weymouth.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Whitman of 16 Union street, South Braintree, announce the engagement of their daughter, Olive Clarke Whitman, and Roland Hawes Torrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis B. Torrey of 239 Pleasant street, South Weymouth.

—The Weymouth Catholic Club at its meeting in Sacred Heart hall Monday evening was delightfully entertained by Rev. Fr. Condon Dalton of Somerville with a talk on "The Irish in Ireland". Vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. Grace Cote, assisted by Miss Ellen Hall.

—Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fearing entertained the Merry Twelve at their home on Water street Saturday evening. Whist was played, high scorers being Mrs. Lillian Hollis, Mrs. Ruth Howe, Mrs. Eva Fearing, Ebed Litchfield, Edward Howe, and Frank Abrams. The usual social hour with refreshments was enjoyed.

—Mrs. Gertrude Smith of East Weymouth is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William McCarthy of North street, North Weymouth. Mrs. Smith has just returned from an extended visit with friends in North Carolina, Dubuque, Iowa, and Montreal. In Montreal she was the guest of her son Norman, a student at Loyola college.

—Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clapp (Doris Torrey) of Richie road, Quincy, former residents of North Weymouth, are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son.

—Weymouth was represented at the entertainment and dance in the State ball room at the Copley-Plaza on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Eastern Star Clubs of Massachusetts, attended by 1100 ladies and gentlemen.

—Relatives and friends read in the Gazette-Transcript that Conductor George H. Walker was going to have a birthday March 25 and on Tuesday evening he was surprised to receive calls from a large number who came to congratulate him, and they did not come empty handed. It was an enjoyable evening for all.

—Miss Agnes Holbrook of South Weymouth and Miss Daisy Bartlett of Somerville have just returned from a ten days trip to Jacksonville, Fla.

—Mrs. James I. Peers of East street entertained friends at whist Tuesday evening. Mrs. Jeanette Markarian took first honors; Mrs. Bertha Maynard second; Mrs. Alice Horton third; and Mrs. Agnes Abbott the consolation.

—Mrs. Roland Watson of Main street entertained the H. P. M. Whist club on Monday evening, Mrs. Carl Sherman and Mrs. Louis P. Curtis having the high scores.

PLEASE OBSERVE

It is necessary to emphasize the fact that notices of births, engagements, marriages and deaths, positively will not be accepted for publication in the Gazette-Transcript unless there appears on the notice the full name and address of the person contributing same with telephone number, if any. In the case of birth announcements, if it is not possible to give a telephone number, the name of the attending physician or hospital must be included. This regulation is enforced to protect the public from false announcements.

TRAVEL LETTERS

From South Weymouth to Puerto Castilla by Mrs. Gertrude C. Andrews.

Since we were not landing at Santiago de Cuba for more than a few hours visit we escaped the rollcall and doctor's inspection. The boat's freight had to be unloaded by lighter and towed in, which meant an all day job. We were informed that 4 in the afternoon would be the ship's time of sailing.

What a wonderful day we could have ashore. One of the men hailed a launch (there are about ten launches to the individual passenger), "jewed" the pilot down to forty cents apiece and in seven minutes we were landed on the shores of Cuba.

Like the majority of these tropical cities the first impression is far from pleasing. You are horrified at the filth and squalor. The natives are satisfied to live by the day and won't work if they have a dollar extra in their pockets. We speedily left the waterfront and climbed the steep hill to the upper part of the town—the stores, hotels, churches, etc.

An obliging guide took us to a roof top so that we might see Santiago in panorama. The city is essentially Spanish—square, prim, stiff; walls, gates, barriers—you think it is a warehouse, but no, it is a dwelling, the patios or courtyards concealed between.

And while waiting for our lemonade someone passed along to us a little folder on Santiago de Cuba. On opening it about the first thing that greeted my eyes was the most familiar insignia of the Stetson shoe—and where to buy. Just like a letter from home.

Not so much do they advertise the merits of the shoe as they do its style. Let me quote, "Al Ways Latest, in Style. Very fine—the Preference of the Society of Elegance of Santiago de Cuba, Proprietor Famous Mark Stetson Shoe, Used by Distinguished Gentlemen of the World."

I was quite ready to agree that it was a pretty "nifty" looking shoe at that and if it had been necessary could have testified lustily as to its wearing qualities.

The stores here are practically out of doors. It seems so strange to be able to view the entire interior from the sidewalk. It was winter in Cuba (but a hot summer day to me) and the merchandise displayed was velvet, hats, beavers, furs, etc. I had presumed that the people would dress according to the climate—but no, the eternal feminine "Style".

After visiting the postoffice and a nearby ancient cathedral, strictly Spanish, very old, very stately, very beautiful, we decided that what we as Americans wanted to see the most was San Juan Hill. And particularly so since a Massachusetts delegation had arrived on the Santa Marta the same day to set up a tablet and hold a commemorative service for our Spanish War heroes.

This delegation was received with much gusto—Cuban warship in the harbor, Cuban troops as escort to the hostel, bands playing, flags flying and masses of flowers—a veritable holiday, and beneath the American flag fluttered the flag of our own Commonwealth—Massachusetts. And such babel—everyone saying something at the top of the lungs, but it meant nothing to us.

It was only about twenty minutes ride out to San Juan and on the top of this hill stands a red brick tower commemorative of the battle. Only can the extent of the victory be appreciated by viewing the landscape and realizing the hazards. The captured guns still remain—a silent tribute.

And near the foot of the hill is the "Peace Tree", a silky cottonwood, scarred by bullets. It is surrounded by a fence made of the guns surrendered by the Spanish, bayonets forming the top. And inside of the enclosure are the bronze tablets with the names of all the soldiers and sailors, Cuban and American, who were lost in this war—one hundred by fever to one in action.

It was here that we had our first glimpse of the ponsetti in full bloom. How beautiful it is! We came back through the residential section—the houses are of concrete, back from the street and concealed by much foliage of tropical growth, new and strange to us all but cool and attractive. This is presumably where the wealthy choose to live and makes one more reconciled with Santiago as a city if one may live outside like this.

Back in the city, the streets were very narrow and traffic congested. I would never dare drive an auto there. Fact is I saw no women driving anyway and few on the streets except the poorer class. We had lunch at one of the hotels. The menu was in both Spanish and English, but that did not help a whole pile as even then we did not get what we expected, but were hungry enough to eat anything. But nowhere do they have ice cream as we have in America, and coffee, never! I am entirely broken of the habit.

After lunch we prowled around a bit in the stores buying postcards and a few little things that we needed to supplement our trip—down the hill to the wharf, found our aimiable boatman of the morning looking for us and at 3.45 were back on the Limon with fifteen minutes to spare.

The purser checked us up to be sure we were all on board and at sunset we were again passing Morro Castle. I do not know whether it is more beautiful at this hour or at the early morning hour when we first saw it but as we passed through the narrow channel out to sea, the light from the watch tower on the hill beamed forth wishing goodnight and a safe voyage.

Since we were to be in Kingston on the next morning, everyone disappeared directly after dinner to write their letters and rest. On awakening Friday morning and looking out, I was amazed at the topography of Jamaica. Cuba was simply hills, Jamaica was mountains, the tops lost in the clouds. Kingston, like the rest of these southern ports was tucked away and while we sighted Jamaica early, it was after 10 o'clock when we arrived. This port is essentially British and English dignity was quite a contrast to the Cuban laxness, I assure you. I had thought it was hot in Santiago, but it wasn't compared with Kingston. The latter city was scorching.

We only had four hours here and could do little but visit the shops, but one hardly wanted to do more than that. We were most agreeably surprised at the price of things—much more reasonable than in Cuba and summer dresses at less than in Boston. We were not long in buying ourselves hats once around. I know that a wide rimmed hat is not the least bit becoming, but you simply have to have the shade. By the time we had gotten the hats, had had an ice cream (atrocious) and been to the postoffice, we were obliged to start back towards the boat.

As we had hoped, we were able to secure tangerines. I bought a little basket full for 50 cents and found afterwards that it contained over three dozen with the basket thrown in. I did want to see the Myrtle Bank hotel, but time was too short and I was too exhausted to look it up. Aside from the dirty waterfront and the begging natives, Kingston is most attractive—is laid out prettily—you can buy all that is necessary for your comfort and probably about whatever you wish. There seems to be plenty of American and English people there. There is boat service to all points. If it gets too hot in the city, one can go back in the mountains and if one must live in the tropics this would doubtless be the preference.

We left Kingston at 2.30 in the afternoon headed for Belize, British Honduras, and since we were not to be there until Monday settled down comfortably to ship life again.

Meeting of The Selectmen

At the meeting of the board of of Selectmen Monday afternoon Mr. Dasha was chairman in the absence of Theron L. Tirrell who is confined to his home by illness.

William C. McKay of May terrace, South Weymouth, was drawn for the April term of the grand jury.

A petition was received asking that a day officer be placed in Jackson Square. It was so voted and the chief of police was instructed to place an officer there. George Smith is to be the man and he was voted a six months provisional appointment. Charles J. Hollis and John Santra were appointed special police.

Henry C. Ford of Norwell and Julian R. Merchant of South Weymouth were granted licenses to peddle fish, vegetables and fruit. Harry Hall of 176 Union street, South Weymouth, was granted a victualler's license.

The board adopted the following resolutions on the heroism of Albert Goodworthy, who on Jan. 20, 1924, saved from drowning in Whitman's pond, Vera Vesta. It is the third life Mr. Goodworthy has saved and he has been presented a medal by the Massachusetts Humane Society. Be it resolved that we feel and wish to recognize this heroic act as one of the greatest displays of undaunted courage, that wherein this man did willingly and fearlessly risk his own life in order that the "flame of life" might not be extinguished by such a terrible death as drowning. We deeply appreciate this act of heroism and wish to add our respects as a tribute of faithfullness and sincerety to him and his family.

It was voted that a copy of the resolutions be sent to Mr. Goodworthy.

At a joint meeting of the board and the assessors, D. Frank Daly was chosen to fill the vacancy in the board of assessors caused by the death of Charles H. Clapp.

The matter of the sale of the Howe School, lockups in Wards 2 and 5 and Charlotte Orcutt estate on Pond street, the matter of advertising the sale at public auction was left with the clerk of the board.

PROMPT RETURN

E. W. Frost says: "I don't know what time the Gazette goes to press, but I got the invalid's chair for which I advertised before 4 P. M. on Friday."

The Gazette went to press at 12 noon, but the letter carriers did not start out until after 2 P. M. Friday. How is that for prompt results?

SPORTS

It is expected that Merriman 2.01½, lasts year's champion four year old gelding will get to the races this season in the stable of John G. Leonard, former South Weymouth reinsman. Merriman was raced last season by Tommy Murphy for his owner, Claude E. Sudington of Syracuse, N. Y. after finishing fourth and sixth at N. Randall and Kalamazoo, he won at Columbus, copped two races at Windsor Ont., and was second at Toledo. He finished in front at N. Randall's second meeting, also at Hartford and Syracuse. Two first monies was his share at Columbus, at Lexington he closed his Grand Circuit campaign by winning both the 2.06 class and the Phoenix 2.04 pace. For the next few weeks he was busy at the meetings of the North Carolina Grand Circuit, annexing five firsts in as many starts over the twice arounds. The addition of this sterling pacer to the formidable stable Jack is gathering at Woody Hill Stock Farm should assure this well known driver another successful season.

—Some of the locol basketball fans have been outspoken in their criticism of two of the Weymouth players. Those who pay their way certainly have the right to criticise; still we cannot help but wonder how much interest would be displayed in a team composed solely of Boston stars.

—Illness has prevented Joe Mahoney from taking his regular place in the lineup the last few games.

—Ralph J. Brett of Abington, one of the best known athletes in this section, was last week re-elected as a selectman of Abington. "Bretty", as he is known to a host of friends in this town, received one of the largest votes ever given a candidate in the town.

—"Bob" Hyatt, former Weymouth High and Weymouth White Sox player is a candidate for the nine at Bridgewater Normal.

—Costello is out of the Plymouth lineup with an infected hand due to an injury received in the game played Friday night at Weymouth.

—Each team has now won a game in the Plymouth-Weymouth series. The deciding contest will be played on some neutral floor, probably Music hall in Brockton, will be the scene of the deciding tilt between these bitter rivals.

BAY STATE CIRCUIT

The Bay State or Short Ship Circuit, an association of race tracks originally confined to Massachusetts, but now extended to Rhode Island and Connecticut, has since its inception some ten or twelve years ago, done a great deal to advance the cause of the trotter in the New England states. Perhaps it may more properly be said that the circuit has done a great deal to help the first flight or star half-mile track performers.

The ordinary steed for whom a mile around 2.20 is his best has very few places nowadays in which to race. Not all of those who own race horses are fortunate enough to pick out the stars. The majority of owners thruout this section are compelled to either matinee for ribbons or watch their favorites trail in behind the flag while some crack pacer or trotter from the big stables gets the money.

Provision should be and is going to be made for the second flight harness horse. An earning capacity must be created for those who fall short of being high class. The Grand Circuit stewards have recently recommended that the members of their association inaugurate classes for colts who are not fast enough to compete with the crocks.

Horsemen who are interested in the sport as conducted by the fall fairs in this section are at present agitating a departure from the usual plan of making up a race program. In putting forward their plan they specify the situation at Marshfield Fair in particular, saying that for many years the horsemen of the South Shore were standard bearers in keeping the Marshfield track on the trotting map; that their friends by the hundreds paid their way into the grounds for no other purpose but to see the local horsemen race their steeds at the first of the fall fairs. At the present time with the down country track a member of the Bay State Circuit, little provision is made for the local supporters of the light harness sport; they are forced to race against the bearcats from the big stables, many of whom are able to win on the Grand Circuit.

One of the plans suggested to remedy this condition is to follow in the footsteps of some of the county fairs in Maine, where each year the invasion by Boston horsemen precludes the possibility of locally owned horses winning a race. This situation was met by establishing classes to which a horse to be eligible must be owned by a resident of the county in which the fair takes place. Many enthusiastic horsemen in this section believe that if the racing committee of the Marshfield Fair would adopt a similar step, by scheduling a slow trot and a green pace to be open only to horses owned in Plymouth, Norfolk and Barnstable counties, at least thirty days prior to the closing of the entries the response from the owners in this section would be liberal enough to warrant a sizeable purse. The interest displayed in this district in other sporting events of a decidedly local character warrants some concession of this sort to the horsemen of southeastern Massachusetts.

—Display space used with a proper illustration has both an attention compelling force and a selling angle that is possible in no other form of copy. The person who questions the selling value of display space is hardly worth wasting time with. They are driving a one-horse shay, eating bulk oatmeal, bathing when the water gets warm in the creek, and depending upon the pony express to give them rapid transportation.—Exchange.

A COMING BOXER

Editor Gazette-Transcript:

In Jimmy McGonnigal Weymouth has an athlete who bids fair to put this town on the boxing map again. In the last three weeks Jimmy has won three gold watches and came within an ace of winning a fourth one, being robbed of an easy win in the B. A. A. on Wednesday night over A. Cooper of Lynn. Truly a remarkable performance when one knows this boy.

He is not what you would think looked like a "scrapper", turning the scale at 140 lbs., he fights in the 147 lb. class, which means that he has to be prepared to give nine pounds away to all opponents, as boys are allowed to fight in this class weighing 149 lbs.

One does not need to be a brutalized prizefighter to watch Jimmy in action, as he is not the kind of fighter that makes up the 99 percent of the men in the game, trusting neither to a "terrible punch" nor a strong back to beat his opponents, but coldly studying them and outboxing them, using his boxing brains to the utmost.

It is a really big handicap for Jimmy McGonnigal to just have to put all his stuff into three rounds, as he is just feeling his opponent out at the time the fight is over, but this will not hurt him when he turns professional, as the fights are mostly of eight or ten rounds, when brains and stamina are required and less actual strength.

Jimmy will turn professional next fall after he has fought in the New England and the National championships in Boston in May. And great things are expected of him then. He will help to keep himself in good condition by playing soccer, as he plays with the New England champion soccer team, Roxbury, having also won three medals playing this great body building game.

Anyone, young or old wishing to take an interest in boxing is welcome to come to the gym where Jimmy trains opposite the store owned by his brother-in-law, Louis Vallas, who is a great sport fan down at Washington Square. Jimmy is managed by his brother Bill, and they have a very fine little gym in that part of the town with a good ring and all the necessary equipment for teaching and training boxers.

DAN

BOY SCOUTS

Owing to unexpected delays the returns from the recent annual campaign for funds are not yet complete, but are expected to total a satisfactory amount.

Deputy Commissioner Arthur A. Eddy attended a meeting of one of the Braintree troops last week and hopes to be able to obtain the services of the speaker, who was very interesting for some of Weymouth council troops.

At the meeting held in the headquarters last Monday Doctor Carr gave the boys a short talk on the subject, "What I have learned through experience". He put greatest emphasis on the fact that one must work in order to "get anywhere". The boys enjoyed the talk greatly.

Scouts Carr, Merrill, Gannon and Drown were complimented by Scoutmaster Allen for their commendable actions during the storm Tuesday, March 11. During the height of the storm these four boys directed traffic in Washington Square, sending motorists over other roads and keeping them from going up Washington street, where many live wires were laying about in the slush, endangering life and property. Officer Baker, who was on duty in Lincoln Square, guarded that end of the danger zone until the wires were repaired and then he relieved the boys. He said that he knew that they were Boy Scouts because they took charge of the situation so well.

TUFTS LIBRARY TRUSTEES

The trustees of Tufts library have organized with Dr. C. P. Whittle, chairman; Dr. W. H. Drake, clerk. Abbie L. Loud was appointed librarian and Phyllis Palmer, assistant, at Tufts library, and Mrs. Mary M. Dingwall, librarian at the North Weymouth branch. Franklin N. Pratt and Winslow M. Tirrell were appointed a committee to carry out the vote of the town to establish a branch at East Weymouth.

IMPORTANT APPOINTMENT

Joseph R. Parker, who has just been appointed to the principalship of the New England Institute of Anatomy, Sanitary Science and Embalming, takes over his active duties April 1. One of his first acts in his new capacity was the appointment of Undertaker Calvin C. Shepherd of this town to his staff of instructors. Mr. Shepherd will serve as demonstrator of practical embalming. For more than ten years, before opening his offices in this town and Wollaston, he was an embalmer for J. S. Waterman & Sons of Boston, and during that time he personally embalmed more than three thousand cases. More students are prepared for New England States board examinations at this institute than at all others in the United States combined.

QUINCY THEATRE

"The Eternal City" filmed in Rome with all the beauties of that historic city displayed in its scenes, with 20,000 people in the cast, with Barbara La Marr, Lionell Barrymore, Bert Lytell, Richard Bennett, Montagu Love, portraying the fiery ecstacy of Roman loves, opens next Monday at the Quincy theatre.

It is from the story of the same name by Sir Hall Caine and was filmed entirely in Italy. King Victor Emmanuel participated, as did Mussolini, the Savoy Guards. It pictures the romantic ruin, the Colosseum where several scenes were staged.

It's the story of the loves of the ancient city of folly, where today Facisti rise where Caesars fell—columns stand to mark ages of pageantry and passion that kindle the blood—here in the daring and all powerful the glories of Rome are the wonders drama of a man who risked all and lost—of a woman who lost but was gladly lost in the all consuming love of a hero. It's a big, gorgeous, grand spectacle that unfolds reel after reel "the most dynamic love story ever written".

The picture is a brilliant spectacle, superbly acted and makes an unusual offering the first half of the week.

This paint washes like tile

All dirt quickly removed from walls and woodwork painted with Barreled Sunlight

NO matter how hard you scrub the dust and dirt from ordinary paint some trace or smudge will remain. Washing seems to make much of it "sink in" still further.

The reason is that the surface of ordinary paint is not really smooth but full of tiny pores—of little holes and crevices—the naked eye cannot see. In this porous surface dust and dirt, smudges and finger-marks cling.

Barreled Sunlight is a white paint made by a special process which produces a smooth, lustrous finish that can be washed like tile.

It costs less than enamel, requires fewer coats and is guaranteed to remain white longer. Anyone can apply it with ease. It flows readily and leaves no brush marks.

For every interior where light and cleanliness are desired — use Barreled Sunlight. Comes ready mixed in cans from half-pint to five-gallon size—barrels and half-barrels. Is easily tinted where color is wanted.

100% Attendance At Rotary Club

The Rotary Club of Weymouth had 100 per cent attendance at their first meeting since organization held on Wednesday noon at Pythian hall. Lunch was enjoyed at 12.15 with 25 members of the Brockton Club as guests. It is enthusiasm that contributes to the success of Rotary Club.

By request the meeting was conducted by the officers of the Brockton Club, with George Gordon, a past president presiding. The speaker was Barney Saxton and the song leader Frank Beals. John R. Jones contributed solos.

At the meeting next Wednesday noon the Quincy Rotary Club will be in charge. All Rotarians are invited.

Judge Loyed E. Chamberlain is a favorite with Brockton Rotarians and he recently made a hit at Bermuda.

"One particularly important lesson taught by Judge Chamberlain was that Rotary should never aim at usurping the place of existing institutions, but by giving its support to every worth while movement should endeavor to further the cause of good citizenship.

"Among the outstanding ideals of Rotary he instanced good fellowship and a broader human sympathy with an understanding of one's fellow man. To further this latter ideal Judge Chamberlain said that in the Rotary Club of Brockton, Mass., they had adopted the practice of inviting at intervals some of their own members to tell the story of their own lives —their successes, their failures, their aims and ambitions and the incidents, sometimes trivial, which had helped in the shaping of their destinies. Thus do men realize, said Judge Chamberlain, how much they have in common and how absorbingly interesting may be the life of our next door neighbor."

It was Rotary night at the First Baptist church at Brockton Sunday evening and a congregation of 1500 persons crowded the edifice to hear Rev. Thomas S. Roy, the pastor, preach a sermon appropriate to the occasion. Rotarians attended in goodly numbers. In addition to the strong sermon, there was special music by the Suwanee River male quartette, an agggregation of colored songsters.

Rev. Mr. Roy's sermon on "The Wheel of Fortune", was in part as follows:

"Your emblem of the wheel has suggested to me my subject, and the subject has suggested the text and the subject matter. Though the wheel of fortune may not be in very good repute, Rotary has given a new and a real wheel of fortune to the world. It is a wheel of fortune in which everybody wins. No group can give to the world your motto, 'He profits most who serves best' without giving a great contribution to the world. And no man can attempt to give without hope of return, without enjoying the richest experience within the capacity of the human heart.

"But I do not need to tell you men that belonging to a Rotary Club does not make a man a Rotarian, or that organizing a Rotary Club in a town will not necessarily bring the Rotary spirit to that town. Rotary is an idea that has expressed itself in a definite organization. But it is the way of life to have 'an idea create an organization, and then have the organization choke the idea'. The wheel of fortune suggests thoughts of that which is back of Rotary, and that which is necessary to keep it going.

"Rotary is built on the spirit of adventure. When that is lost all is lost. That adventure began with a new discovery. Rotary did not discover a new world, but it found that a world which had been discovered centuries ago was fit to live in. It was the keenest mind which ever grapled with life's problems, and the greatest soul which ever touched the life of the world that gave expression to the words: 'Whosoever would become great among you shall be your minister, and whosoever would be first among you shall be servant of all'. That was the discovery of a new world into which the world looked, but dared not enter."

GEM THEATRE

The West in 1876! Who could tell of it better than Zane Grey? Who could bring it to the screen to finer advantage than Paramount? "The Heritage of the Desert" at the Gem Saturday with Bebe Daniels, Ernest Torrence, Noah Berry and Lloyd Hughes. A tale of the West at its wildest and wooliest. With the killing of Snap, the dissolute son of August Naab of "The Oasis" ranch, the long kindling feud between cattleman and rustlers breaks into flame. It's a battle to the death—with Navajo Indians collecting scalps for the ranchers. But why go on? Let the radio alone for one night and see it.

"Thundergate' at the Gem Sunday. The romance of an American masquerading as a Chinese lord. Roaming through the harem of the Chinese palace, he finds a little white girl, kidnapped and sold as a slave bride. Mysterious rites, strange secrets, unseen dangers, untold horrors are revealed in this strange tale.

Here's excitement for you!

In the March Bulletin of the National Editorial Association published at St. Paul, Minn., is the following article on "Why a Subscription Voting Contest?" written by C. N. Marvin of the Sentinel-Post of Shenandoah, Iowa:

I suppose that nearly all human beings will buy a gold brick at least once in their lives, if it is made sufficiently plausible, and the subscription contest is the disguise used most frequently to swindle the newspaper sucker.

I regard it as a colossal fraud from every standpoint, unprofessional, immoral and dishonest, no more justifiable than the Louisiana lottery or the Panama oil swindle.

It is a swindle on the competitor.
It is a swindle on the advertiser.
It is a swindle on the contestants.
It is a swindle on the government.
It is a swindle on the publisher.

I can tell why it is a swindle on each of these—or I can quit here.

The subscription contest is a swindle on the competitor because its purpose is to undermine and destroy him by unfair methods if possible. Newspapers generally have united in an effort the past few years to develop and encourage a spirit of cooperation and good-will among the merchants and the other business and professional men of a community. Ad clubs , commercial clubs and Kiwanis clubs all stress the importance of this attitude among business men. The merchant who uses untruthful or unfair methods to build up his business at the expense of his competitor is frowned upon, ostracised, and if he keeps it up is posted by the vigilance committee of the ad club.

To the unscrupulous newspaper man alone is left the privilege of sending out an army of Amazons to try to destroy his competitor. What would be thought of the dry goods merchant who would employ a score of popular young women to make a house-to-house canvass to wheedle the whole countryside into an agreement to trade only with him for the next year or six years, basing their plea not on the superiorty of his goods or the better prices offered, but to do it as a personal favor to the young women and thus help them mayhap to secure an automobile for joy-riding or to get a free trip to Atlantic City?

It is a well known failing of masculine human nature that the average man would rather stab a friend in the back than say no to a pretty girl. Beat & Bunco capitalize on this frailty of men to the limit. I can think of nothing in the whole realm of competition more dishonorable. The newspaper publisher might with less dishonor employ some one to steal the office secrets and records of his business rival.

The subscription contest is a swindle on the advertisers for its purpose is to make it appear to the advertiser that the publisher has a valuable circulation far in excess of the facts. Any experienced advertiser knows that the value of a medium is determined by other considerations as well as the number of papers printed or mailed. The whole purpose of a merchant in placing an advertisement in a paper is to get it read by his possible customers. The 500 subscribers of the Smalltown Herald are worth more to him than the millions of subscribers of the New York World or the Saturday Evening Post.

The papers mailed over distant states as a result of the contest are absolutely worthless to the home merchant. The duplicate subscriptions are worth nothing to him. A million papers scattered over a town of 1200 families would be worth no more than 1200. The two papers received by Brown or Smith, one at his office and one at his home, are worth only one to the advertiser, and the nine going to the home of Bid Jones are worth only one. The papers marked "unknown, dead, refused, address unknown," etc., are worth nothing to the advertiser.

Furthermore the so-called subscriptions for which the recipients paid nothing are worth but little to the advertiser, for they are not appreciated and rarely read, particularly if the recipients think their names have been used to take somebody's chestnuts out of the fire. The average man or woman resents the idea of being "worked" for somebody's else benefit, and when he gets a paper that he never ordered he concludes there is a colored gentleman hidden somewhere in the woodpile. The paper he reads regularly is the one he paid his good money for because he wanted it. One paper looked for and grabbed for and read by the family is worth more to the advertiser than a thousand lying in the wastebasket.

The subscription contest is a swindle on the contestants because it promises them impossibilities. The daily propaganda put out to each contestant is: "You can win the grand prize if you just work hard enough." Common sense should convince each one that if all the contestants work as hard as they can, only one can win, and the experience of hundreds of contests should convince each that the prize is not won by the one who works hardest, but by the one who puts up the most money, and often by a stool pigeon of the promoters. In many instances it is a game of loaded dice or marked cards in which the honorable contestants have no chance. The contest is rarely if ever decided by the long weeks of labor by the contestants who think that is the way to win, but is decided by the money put up in the last hour.

Furthermore, the whole appeal of the contest from first to last is an appeal to the gambling instinct which the governments of our state and nation have been trying to curb. Each girl who enters the contest knows that she can only win by defeating others who may work just as hard as she does, and that her success if she wins will be at the expense of others. The promoters base their hopes of a big pot of money on the gambling instinct by getting a lot of women to work for them for nothing and them at the last to put up money on the chance of winning.

The subscription contest is a swindle on the government, because the publisher as a result thereof sends through the mails at the pound rate papers which should pay third class postage rates. Beat & Bunco know this and that is one reason why they always make the publisher stand the responsibility of the contest. They monkeying with Uncle Sam.
don't want to take the chance of

Section 419 of the postal laws and regulations defines what is a legitimate list of subscribers. Briefly summarized it is to the effect that subscribers are such persons as have subscribed for the publication for a definite time, either by themselves or by another on their behalf, and have paid or agreed to pay for it a sub-
WHY A Subscription—Galley Five
advertised subscription price. Gift copies must be duly accepted by the persons and given for their benefit, and not for the benefit of the donor. It is clear that the numerous so-called subscriptions donated by the candidates and their friends are not subscriptions under the law because they are given for the benefit of the donor and not of the subscriber. Also it is clear that the subscriptions secured by the candidates at a low or nominal rate, the candidates agreeing to make up the balance of the price, are not subscriptions under the postal laws and regulations. The publisher often gets by with such fraudulent list because nobody asks the department for an investigation.

But the subscription contest is a greater swindle on the publisher himself than on anybody else because it puts him clearly in the class of suckers, one of whom is born every minute.

Any experienced newspaper man knows that the money he receives for his paper at the regular price scarcely pays him for the blank paper, the ink, the postage and the unavoidable losses and waste in the printing of his paper; yet the commission given to the promoters in a contest, and the publisher's share of the expenses of the campaign, reduce his income from the subscriptions to less than cost, about one half the advertised price. His folly would only be equalled by a clothing merchant who would buy a ten thousand dollar stock and then immediately sell the goods for $5,000 in order to get ready money. The publisher might much better mortgage his plant to the limit and borrow the money he needs from the bank at 8%.

The lure of ready money that induces the publisher to mortgage the future at 100 per cent is similar to the lure that induces the bank teller to take the bank's money hoping to put it back later. It is a question which commits the greater folly.

The folly would not be quite so great if the publisher could save the money to pay the expenses of the lean years which follow the contest, but newspaper men are about like other men: nine-tenths of them cannot refrain from spending the money in sight. They have a few weeks of a mad orgy of spending and then they are broke again and their old friends, their bona fide subscribers, from whom they formerly received a steady yearly income on subscription, are all paid ahead from one to six years.

They are like the prodigal son who could not wait for his inheritance but begged of his father to let him have it in advance and then went out and spent it in riotous living.

The subscription contest can only be likened to a financial debauch.

In conclusion, my friends, let me say there is only one enduring method of building a newspaper in the rural districts, only one that will stand the test of time, and that is to make just as good a paper as you possibly can every week of the year, studying your field and giving the people the kind of reading matter the worthwhile element of your constituency want using industry, economy and fair dealing day by day.

Some of us are growing old in the harness. We lose the energy and enthusiasm of youth. We grow weary and are prone to sit by the wayside and watch younger men pass us in the struggle up the mountainside. We find it easier to stay in the ruts of yesterday and to slide along than to

EVERY WEEK IN GAZETTE-TRANSCRIPT

In our issue of March 14, the Publishers stated that they were "Rather Proud" of the paper, and added :—

"Anyone who really feels that he is not getting 10 cents worth of news, can return the paper to the office of publication and collect a dime."

It was rather a bold stand to take, but the Publishers had confidence in the Gazette-Transcript, and it proved well placed, for NO ONE among our 12,500 readers asked for a refund of ten cents.

The publishers are connected with NO OTHER PUBLICATION, but are giving all their time and energy to issuing a first-class weekly paper for the Town of Weymouth—a champion of good government and home trade; interested in the progress and prosperity of the town, and success of her idustries, her institutions and her merchants.

We find it requires twelve pages every week, and oftentimes sixteen pages, to print all the news and announcements in which Weymouth is interested. Space in the 12 or 16 pages will not permit us to print in detail the news of Braintree and Hingham, but every week there is a South Shore column of interest.

A "chain newspaper" is not wanted in Weymouth. It is not individual; it would be of no more value to the town than the "chain stores" which may sell a few articles cheaper, but which are never interested in the town, her institutions, her churches, or her progress. Why put out of business merchants who have contributed to the upbuilding of Weymouth, who believe in Weymouth, and have investments in Weymouth? The long established groceries and markets sell reliable goods usually under a guarantee. Their greatest failing perhaps is that they are not progressive and do not advertise enough.

The most prosperous merchants are the biggest advertisers, and every year the Gazette-Transcript is carrying more inches of advertising, now over 1,000 inches per week on an average.

Advertising in the Gazette-Transcript is worth much more per inch than some other papers, because it reaches over twice as many readers. It is circulation that the Advertiser buys, not mere inches.

Weymouth and East Braintree

—Last Sunday was a perfect spring day and there was a large automobile traffic. If the weather continues fair and warm Chief of Police A. H. Pratt will place the traffic officers on duty.

—Mr. and Mrs. Homer Dyson of New Bedford, former residents, spent the week-end with her father, Charles B. Trask of Summit street.

—State President Dennis J. Slattery with fifty members of Div. 6, A. O. H., went to Hyde Park on Sunday where the degree team of Div. 6 worked the degrees on 100 candidates.

—Edward Donovan of Franklin street is out after a threatened attack of pneumonia.

—Phillips Hunt is confined to his home with an attack of the grippe.

—Chester H. Rogers has purchased the property on Commercial street known as the Rhines estate which he has occupied for several years. It adjoins his theatre property and he intends making extensive alterations and improvements. He is to erect several stores on the property.

—Elmer Burrell of Elisabeth, N. J., was in town over the week-end, being called here by the death of his aunt, Miss Mary Burrell. He was born and resided here for years. He was the guest during his stay in town of Lawrence Caulfield of Broad street.

—Dillon M. McCormack, 62, died at his home, 5 Liberty street, East Braintree, on Friday. He is survived by his wife and a daughter. He was a member of Boston lodge of Elks. For some years he conducted a general store on Liberty street. The funeral took place from his late residence on Monday afternoon. The service was conducted by Rev. J. Caleb Justice, pastor of Union Congregational church Interment was at Woodlawn cemetery, Everett.

—Miss Helen Caulfield, who underwent an operation for appendicitis a few weeks ago, is able to be out.

—Miss Mary Burrell was found dead at her home in Hingham last Friday. She was born in Weymouth 62 years ago, a daughter of the late Waterman Burrell. She resided here up to a few years ago when she went to Hingham. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon at the chapel in Village cemetery. Interment was in the family lot.

—The special meetings which are being held each evening at the First Baptist church, are being well attended. The boy evangelist, Rev. Carl Schultz, is the leader, assisted by the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Allen.

THEY ALL ADVERTISE

By Ellis Hayes

A hen is not supposed to have Much common sense or tact,
Yet every time she lays an egg
She cackles forth the fact.
A rooster hasn't got a lot
Of intellect to show,
But none the less most roosters have Enough good sense to crow.
The mule, the most despised of beasts,
Has a persistent way
Of letting folks know he's around
By his insistent bray.
The busy little bees they buzz,
Bulls bellow and cows moo,
The watchdogs bark, the ganders quack,
And doves and pigeons coo.
The peacock spreads his tail and squawks,
Pigs squeal, and robins sing,
And even serpents know enough
To hiss before they sting.
But man, the greatest masterpiece
That nature could devise,
Will often stop and hesitate
Before he'll advertise.

—Says an advertisement: "Every child should learn to play the saxophone." Well, certainly not on our street.—Boston Transcript.

LOVELL'S CORNER

—Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Butler of Worcester spent a few days last week with Rev. and Mrs. Ethan Rogers.

—A whist party was held Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Richards on Washington street. The first prize was won by Mrs. Helen Richards.

—There will be no services at the Porter church next Sunday on account of the district conference held at Providence.

—Miss Lillian Harvey of Brockton spent Sunday as the guest of Miss Mildred Richards of Washington street.

—Mrs. Harry Sample, who has been seriously ill at her home on Washington street, is improving.

—Lee Miller of Durham college spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller.

—Under the direction of Charles White the minstrel show given last month was repeated with a good audience present on Monday evening.

—Mrs. Frank Reed, who has lived for a number of years in the house owned by the late Mrs. Ellen Pratt on Washington street, has gone to live with her niece, Mrs. Gerald Kelso.

—Miss Mildred Ellis and Miss Doris Hughes are making plans for the children's concert to be held at the Porter church on Easter Sunday afternoon. It is the plan of the board to present the Bibles to the classes at that time.

—Mrs. Maud White, who has been ill for the past two months, is able to be about the house.

—The yearly canvass of the Porter church was made last week.

—George Smith who has been confined to his home by illness, is able to be out again.

—The Semper Fidelis Whist club held their weekly whist party at the home of Mrs. Joseph Richards Jr. on Washington street Saturday evening. The favors were taken by Mrs. Helen Richards, Julius Thorpe, Martin Markarian, Mrs. Carrie Blanchard, Mrs. Edith Henson, Mrs. Eleanor Kelso.

—Arthur Newcomb has erected a garage at his home on Washington street.

—Miss Almerta Spiers is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Willie Tirrell of Washington street.

ST. JAMES THEATRE

The Laurette Taylor success "Peg O' My Heart" which enjoyed wide popularity on stage and screen will be the offering of the Boston Stock Company at the St. James next week. The play, a comedy of youth and love, is from the pen of J. Hartley Manners.

"Peg O' My Heart" is the story of an uncultured Irish girl who leaves her father and is suddenly plunged into the midst of a family of the most exclusive English aristocracy. Her speech and manner offend the Lady Chichester and her haughty son and daughter, but they consent to keep the girl for a month in accordance with the provisions of her uncle's will; the uncle was Lady Chichester's brother. Needless to say Peg proves impossible and soon the household is in a state of chaos.

Miss Mason will appear as Peg and Mr. Gilbert will take the part of Jerry; they will be supported by the other talented members of the company.

—Now is the time to become an annual subscriber of the Gazette-Transcript, and have the paper sent by mail every Friday noon. Less than 5c per copy by the year.

IN MEMORIAM

The service at the First church on Sunday morning was in memory of the late Bertha C. Nash. The sermon preached by Rev. Stanley Marple was most fitting as well as helpful; the floral tributes were a basket of yellow carnations and blue iris; also carnations and an Easter lily. The music was a solo "Face to Face" rendered most effectively and beautifully by George B. Bicknell.

The service was symbolic of the life that had just passed on to her reward; one of beauty and loveliness, and the choice memory of the departed youth will be an inspiration to both young and old; her memory and works will live long in the minds of her friends and spur them on to greater efforts to accomplish the purpose for which she had devoted her life.

SMELTS COMING UP

It isn't so spring-like that we are trying to spade gardens or plant early flowers, but spring must be in the air, else the smelts and alewives wouldn't be getting ready for their annual pilgrimage up stream for spawning. Saturday night the smelts began to nose their way from Hingham bay up into the streams, which shows that they already know that spring is just in the offing. It won't be long now before the alewives, which are beginning to gather off shore, will be heading up towards the ponds.

Because of the open winter it is believed that both the smelt and alewife runs will be early this year, the smelts making a fairly early start, while indications along the coast are that alewives will be on their way to the ponds within a couple of weeks. Of course it depends upon the weather but these fish are ready and waiting for the signal and have reported earlier than common.

As in other years the State makes careful watch over both these migrations. In the case of smelts a good deal of work is being done to bring them back in their great numbers of other years. Fresh and Weir rivers in Hull have been fairly well cleared of obstacles so that spawning grounds in those streams will be free. This has been done through the efforts of the selectmen of that town.

The Brockton Enterprise says: "The Weymouth selectmen have not given their aid in the work the state has sought to have done and there are obstacles in Fore river that will interfere with the smelt run this year, it is said. Provisions have been taken to stop the illegal taking of smelts while they are running.

Within a week or so it is expected that the first of the alewives will be pointing their way up stream and then the work of planting them in some of the ponds in this section will begin. This is part of the project to restore the fish runs for which several new fishways have been built. As this is the fourth spring since the planting began it is expected that some of the alewives that were hatched in the ponds hereabouts will come back to deposit their eggs, as herrings always return to spawn in the ponds where they were hatched.

—Brockton Enterprise

BERTHA C. NASH

In laying the late Bertha C. Nash to rest, age 28 years, 11 months, who passed away on March 19, a prayer service was held at her late home, 491 Commercial street, Weymouth Heights, on Saturday, March 22, at 1.30 o'clock.

Funeral services were held at the First church in Weymouth at 2 o'clock, Rev. E. J. Yaeger of Saugus and Rev. Stanley Marple officiating.

The service was one long to be remembered for the beautiful life which had passed on to its reward, left behind choicest memories of a life of trust, or peace, and of faith, and the atmosphere at the service was in keeping. Everything was in harmony and the sweet pure life in her pure and spotless church, amid masses of magnificent floral tributes was an inspiration to everybody, and the memory of it will be most impressive and uplifting.

"Jesus, Lover of My Soul" (MacDougall) and "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" (Ambrose), two favorite selections of the deceased, and so often sung by her, were beautifully rendered by Mrs. F. Adelaide Whitton.

The presence of a throng of friends and relatives paid a loving tribute to the departed one, and it was evidence of the respect and esteem in which they held her.

The six young men as bearers, namely, George B. Bicknell, Walter Gaffney, Fred Lunt, R. Edward Bates, Edwin Farren and Marshall Ries by the side of the departed one, was most pathetic.

At the grave of the deceased in the family lot at the Weymouth Heights cemetery, Rev. E. J. Yaeger officiated at the committal service.

Those that mourn the loss of the deceased one find consolation that her life was a beautiful inspiration to all her friends and although she passed away to her reward so soon, her memory and works will live long in the minds of her friends and spur them on to greater efforts to accomplish the purpose for which she devoted her life.

Tribute to Alex Morrison

Alexander F. Morrison was born in Weymouth, Massachusetts, February 22, 1856. He lived nearly his whole life in San Francisco, for he went there with his parents in 1864, when he was eight years old. There he received his common school education. He graduated from the Uuiversity of California in 1878, and from the Hastings College of the Law in 1881. One of his classmates at the university was Miss May B. Treat, whom he afterwards married, April 27, 1893. He died at Singapore, November 13, 1921, while on a pleasure trip to the Orient. During forty years he practiced his profession in San Francisco. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. May T. Morrison, and his sister, Dr. Mary Morrison Staples.

Mr. Morrison was an eminent lawyer; he was a profound scholar in many branches of learning outside of the law; and he was a man of great nobility of character.

His practice of the law won for him wide reputation and financial success. Men of large affairs, early in his legal career, discovered his fidelity and rugged honesty, and placed their business in his care. Their confidence in him was entire. People in the humbler walks of life, as well, felt his great personal kindness and sought him out as friend and adviser. A client once gained, invariably became his friend and remained his client and friend ever afterwards, the bond between them growing stronger with the years. And so it came to pass, that in the forty years of his practice at the bar, he built up a large clientele—one of the largest and best in San Francisco.

During the last few years of his life Mr. Morrison devoted much of his time, taken from a busy practice, toward promoting reforms having to do with the improvement of the administration of justice; he also gave with enthusiasm much of his time to the affairs of the Bar Association of San Francisco and toward increasing its membership and usefulness. At the time of his death he was a member of its board of governors and its senior vice-president.

But fortunate is the busy professional or business man who has a hobby and avocation. Mr. Morrison's hobby was his library; his avocation, the reading of good books. He possessed one of the finest private libraries in San Francisco. And thru his extensive reading in all of the important branches of learning he became a widely read and deeply cultured man. His studies brought his keen and truth-loving mind into contact with the ultimate realities of life and gave him that wonderful balance and that wisdom which were his predominating intellectual qualities, even as his honesty, modesty and generosity were his outstanding moral characteristics.

Altho the profession of the law brought him reputation and riches, and his taste for cultural reading increased his personal happiness, yet his plendd achievements in these two exacting professions of the law and general literature are not what most distinguished him from other men. His most distinguishing characteristic was his nobility of character.

For character is higher than intellect; and life itself finds its highest culmination, as it did in his case, when the apartments in the soul of man are tenanted by truth and wisdom, beauty and love, goodness and service to one's fellowmen. Wealth and commerce, people and nations, are born and die, but truth, beauty and goodness, and their translation into the language of human service and human happiness, are eternal.

The name of Alexander F. Morrison will ever remain enshrined in the hearts of his friends, and when these friends, too, have answered the last summons, his spirit will yet survive, an example of God's most noble handiwork.

Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding.

For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold.

She is more precious than rubies; and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her.

Length of days is in her right hand; and in her left hand riches and honor.

CHARLES A. SHURTLEFF,

WHY A VOTING CONTEST?

continually scale the heights where younger men delight. But wise is he who can realize the infirmities of age creeping on and call to his assistance young men and young women of the press, who are eager to put their shoulders to the wheel.

But I would say to each of them: Young man, young woman, I will give you a free hand within the limits of honor and safety, but remember that honesty and truth, and courtesy and square dealing are enduring virtues in the newspaper business, essentials that never grow old or out of date. Hold firmly to these principles and your paper will remain a citadel high up on the mountain—let those who will build upon the sands of dishonor below.

—The empty bottle put on the shelf may be thrift, or it may be just accumulating junk which will never be used. It all depends.

—Hey, there, Winter! As you were!

—Only one-third of the world's population is white.

—Jesse James may have been all they say about him, but he never charged $17 for a short ton of anthracite.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

—If a man doesn't read the papers and hasn't sense enough to form an opinion, he isn't fit for anything except a juryman.

A TALK WITH A WEYMOUTH MAN

Mr. Napoleon Bennett of 55 Vine street, tells his experience.

There is nothing like a talk with one of our own citizens for giving hope and encouragement to the anxious sufferer from the dread kidney disease. We, therefore, give here an interview with a Weymouth man:

"I was suffering with an attack of kidney trouble", says Mr. Bennett. "My back got mighty lame and sore and it was all I could do to stoop over, for when I did, I had a sharp twinge in my back which felt as though someone were piercing me with a knife. My kidneys were sore and pained. I had to pass the kidney secretions too often and they were painful and scalding. I heard of Doan's Pills and decided to try them. After I had used a few boxes, the pains left my back and my kidneys became normal. I haven't been troubled since".

"The Best Looking Home in Your Neighborhood"

IT isn't so much a matter of design, but of appearance. If the paints and stains are fresh-looking and rich in color—if they harmonize well—your home will be the best-looking one in your neighborhood.

And you can get this result by using Lowe Brothers High Standard Liquid Paint. It's fine paint, finely made for long satisfaction and true economy. It goes on smoothly and evenly. Its rich, even colors retain their original freshness of color. And it surely does withstand the wear of long weathering. That's why it's so economical.

APRIL

(This month's readings are the eminent sayings of eminent persons)

1. "Five years ago I came to believe in Christ's teaching, and my life suddenly became changed. I ceased desiring what I had wished before, and began to desire what I had not wished before. What formerly had seemed good to me appeared bad, and what had seemed bad appeared good. The direction of my life, my desires became different: what was good and bad changed places."—Tolstoy
   Daily Reading, 1 Tim. 6:12

2. "To live content with small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury, and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy, not respectable; and wealthy, not rich; to study hard, think quietly, talk gently, act frankly; to listen to stars and birds, babes and sages, with open heart; to bear all cheerfully, do all bravely, await occasions, hurry never; in a word, to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious, grow up through the common—this is my symphony."—Channing
   Daily Reading: Matt. 5:16

3. "Be noble! and the nobleness that lies in other men, sleeping, but never dead, will rise in majesty to meet thine own."—Lowell
   Daily Reading: Matt. 25:35-37

4. "All that I have written, every greatness that there has been in any thought of mine, whatever has been done in my life, has been simply due to the fact that when I was a child my mother daily read with me a part of the Bible and daily made me learn a part of it by heart."—Ruskin
   Daily Reading: Joel 2:32

5. "I am not bound to win, but I am bound to be true. I am not bound to succeed, but I am bound to live up to the light I have."—Lincoln
   Daily Reading: Gal. 6:9

6. SUNDAY
   "I hold it truth with him who sings
   To one clear harp in divers tones,
   That men may rise on stepping stones
   Of their dead selves to higher things."—Tennyson
   Daily Reading: 2 Pet. 3:18

7. "Oh, do not pray for easy lives. Pray to be stronger men! Do not pray for tasks equal to your powers. Pray for powers equal to your tasks! Then the doing of your work shall be no miracle. But you shall be a miracle. Every day you shall wonder at yourself, at the richness of life which has come to you by the grace of God."—Phillips Brooks
   Daily Reading: Col. 3:23

8. "In 1917—1918 I studied the history of all the races of the earth, and became convinced that the sole solution of the evil of the world is the transformation of human souls, that this cannot be brought about except by means of religion, and that the most perfect and suitable is that taught by Christ."—Giovanni Papini.
   Daily Reading: Is. 11:4

9. "Cheered by the presence of God, I will do at each moment, without anxiety, according to the strength which he shall give me, the work that his providence assigns me. I will leave the rest without concern; it is not my affair. I ought to consider the duty to which I am called each day as the work that God has given me to do, and to apply myself to it in a manner worthy of his glory—that is to say with exactness and in peace."—Fenelon
   Daily Reading: 1 John 5:12

10. "Half the world is on the wrong scent in the pursuit of happiness. They think it consists in having and getting, and in being served by others. It consists in giving and in serving others."—Luke 4:18
    Daily Reading: Isaiah 40:11

11. "People will endure their tyrants for years, but they will tear their deliverers to pieces if a millennium is not created immediately. Yet these ancient wrongs, these present unhappinesses are not to be remedied in a day or with a wave of the hand. What I seem to see—with all my heart I hope I am wrong—is a tragedy of disappointment."—President Wilson on his way to Paris
    Daily Reading: Rom. 12:18

12. "A good newspaper and Bible in every home, a good school house in every district and a church in every neighborhood, all appreciated as they deserve, are the chief support of virtue, morality, civil liberty and religion."—Franklin
    Daily Reading: Matt. 6:33

13. SUNDAY
    "For what are men better than sheep or goats,
    That nourish a blind life within the brain,
    If, knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer,
    Both for themselves, and those that call them friends."
    —Tennyson
    Daily Reading: 1 John 5:14

14. "I am determined, God helping me, that no man shall rob me of my faith. I won't hide it away. I'll keep it right around with me, if I can. I will see it gets exercise. I will feed it all I can, so that it shall not starve. I won't force it if I can avoid it, and make it weedy and weakling. It shall say nothing it does not believe. When in real danger, I will go to someone stronger than I to help keep it safe. But when that necessity arises, to whom shall I look for help? Surely, directly to Him who, I believe, gave it to me. For I know whom I have trusted, and I am persuaded he is able to keep it against that day."—Grenfell
    Daily Reading: Ps 98:1

15. "To be glad of life because it gives you the chance to love, and to work and to play, and to look up at the stars: to be satisfied with your possessions, but not contented with yourself until you have made the best of them: to despise nothing in the world except falsehood and meanness, and to fear nothing except cowardice: to be governed by your admirations rather than by your disgusts: to covet nothing that is your neighbor's except his kindness of heart and gentleness of manners: to think seldom of your enemies, often of your friends, and every day of Christ; and to spend as much time as you can, with body and spirit, in God's out of doors—these are little guideposts on the Footpath to Peace."—Van Dyke
    Daily Reading: Mark 2:27

Do You Pay Your Bills?
Being One of a Series of Talks on Bills and the Prompt Payment Of Them. Do you owe any Bills That Are Overdue?

"LET'S HAVE AN UNDERSTANDING"

No credit man will turn a debtor down who tells the TRUTH. For TRUTH is the foundation of CREDIT.

YOU owe an account—YOU have owed it for several months—it is long past due—You want to pay it—circumstances, perhaps, have been against you—then in all fairness to the credit man make a frank statement of your conditions.

You will find the credit man willing to help the honest debtor, if he can. More often his hands are tied. The debtor will not make any attempt to make PROMPT PAYMENT of his account. He, there-fore, can not expect any consideration at the hands of the Credit Man.

If you are not willing to make a "clean breast" of your actual conditions, you have not good reason for thinking you will receive any consideration ot the hands of the credit man.

It is useless to dodge the issue for every credit man in Plymouth, Norfolk and Barnstable Counties are acquainted with your method of paying credit obligations. He knows just how you stand with every firm doing business in both counties.

If you don't pay—if you won't be honest enough to give facts—if you don't make any effort whatever to reduce your indebtedness, you may be sure that the credit man is "GOING AFTER" the money due his firm.

Sometimes drastic measures are necessary to collect an account. You can save yourself lots of trouble and much embarrassment by paying your bills promptly, or by giving the credit man valid reasons for your delinquency.

Don't let your bills accumulate!

MARRIAGES AND DEATHS
SEE PAGE EIGHT

—Miss Catherine Huff of Pine street has resumed her studies at school after an absence due to the mumps.

—Mr. and Mrs. George Lemander of 236 Pleasant street, have moved to Brookline where they are to make their home.

—Miss Doris Grogan of Randolph street has been entertaining her uncle, Fred Poland, who was spending a few days here during the presence in Boston of the huge steamer Leviathan, on which Mr. Poland has a position.

—Arthur B. Sanborn of West street has concluded his duties with Jordan-Marsh Co. of Boston.

—The March supper and social of the Ladies Social Circle connected with the Second Universalist church was held in the church vestry on Thursday evening under the direction of Mrs. Calvin C. Shepherd chairman. Supper was served at 6.30 o'clock, followed by a two-act comedy entitled "One on Dick", Miss Grace Gay, Miss Olive Ralph, Miss Lucinda French, Mrs. Gertrude Elsner, Miss Adele Shepherd and Miss Ellen Roberts presenting the entertainment.

—Frederick W. Hilton principal of the High school, was the speaker at the meeting in the Association Building on Pond street Sunday evening, conducted under the direction of the Pond Plain Improvement Association.

—The many friends of Mrs. William C. Cuff extend their sympathy in the death of her husband, who passed away suddenly at his home, 1010 Washington street, South Braintree, on Friday morning, March 21. Funeral services were held from his late home on Sunday afternoon, followed by services in the St. Francis Xavier church in South Weymouth at 2 o'clock. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery at Randolph. Mrs. Cuff was formerly Miss Mary Reidy of this town.

—Thomas J. Welch, a native and former resident of this town, was arrested in Toledo, Ohio, and is being held for the Brockton police, who held a warrant for him charging him with forgery, uttering and larceny in four counts. The amount specified is $425 and the apprehension of Welch terminates a two-year search for him which has been conducted by the Brockton police. Upon his arrival in Brockton it is expected that other complaints will be lodged against him. Welch at one time resided on White street in this town.

—The Misses Elsa and Elma Logan of Boston have been recent guests of the Misses Effie and Grace Kelley of Pond street.

—B. Frank Whitman of Union street has returned from the Corey Hill Hospital where he has been a patient for several weeks having submitted to surgical treatment.

—An officer has been stationed at Stetson's Corner to afford protection to the pupils of the Edward B. Nevin school from the heavy traffic which passes this point on the state road. OH BOY!

—When you've been doing your durndest to meet your accounts promptly to build up a good rating, and trying to hold down expenses by taking cash discounts, and meeting your pay roll on the dot, —And when a lot of perfectly good fellows didn't appreciate the courtesy rendered for which you have to pay promptly, and when all these good fellows' small accounts together run into the thousands,
—And when you'd about decided these felows didn't appreciate the courtesy you'd shown them in carrying their accounts way past a reasonable time, when you were on a cash basis with all but a few good friends,
—And THEN, one Tuesday morning, you get a check in full from each of these good fellows, and know they DO appreciate and that you can still count on them—
—Oh Boy! Aint it a Grand and Glorious Feeling?

S. OF V. AUXILIARY

Auxiliary 31, S. of V., observed its 28th anniversary in G. A. R. hall Monday evening. At 6.30 o'clock 125 sat down to a turkey supper. An entertainment followed, consisting of selections on violin and piano by William Blakney and Frank Allen; quartette singing by Mr. and Mrs. Eddy, Mrs. Philbrook and Mr. Kilburn, and a Russian dance by Miss Ruth S. Cushing. There was dancing until 11 o'clock. The guests of honor were: president of Auxiliary 31 Mrs. Almina Robinson and Mr. Robinson; Commander Camp 36 Irwin B. Hawes and Mrs. Hawes; President of American Legion Auxiliary Mrs. Philip Haviland and Mr. Haviland; President W. R. C. Mrs. Estelle Richards; President of D. of V. Mrs. Amy Severance.

AMERICAN LEGION

There was one item which should be of interest to every ex-service man in town left out of last week's Legion notes, because of the initiation. That was the Norfolk county council meeting at Dedham Sunday, March 16. There was quite a good sized delegation went from Weymouth. In fact, when the roll was called Weymouth reported the largest number of members present. Thus the meeting started auspiciously. The purpose of the meeting was the discussion of the coming state wide membership drive by the Legion which starts April 6.

Comrade Bryan Leonard of Weymouth Post is chairman of the Norfolk county council and he introduced the principal speakers of the afternoon, including Department Adjutant Leo Spillane and Department Vice Commander Frank Good. Both of these comrades spoke at some length on the membership "raid", as the committee calls it. They explained the lineup of the various committees in such a way that it left no doubt in the minds of the Legionnaires present that there's going to be something doing from April 6 to 19.

The raid starts by a radio barrage and the zero hour is 7 o'clock Sunday evening. Stations W. N. A. C. and W. B. Z. are co-operating in broadcasting the All Legion concert which will last from 7 until 3 A. M. Monday morning. The artists who will take part in this radio barrage are all Legionnaires and Weymouth members will be interested to learn that our own band is signed up for a performance that evening.

Just make a note on your calendar now to set aside Sunday night, April 6, until as late as you want to, to listen to the Legionnaires of the state do their stuff. If you haven't a radio or if your girl's father hasn't one, come to Legion headquarters G. A. R. hall and listen in on our set. Bring the girl, too. Some day she might want to join the auxiliary.

While we are on the subject of membership drives we might say that Weymouth Post was congratulated by the 75 Legionnaires gathered at Dedham on the success of its drive.

There's lots of good times to be had at these council meetings and the next one, which will be in Franklin, probably the second Sunday in May should be a whirlwind. Weymouth Post is going to attend this one in strong numbers and if everything goes well, our live and up and coming band will come along to make things hum. We're out to raise the devil in Norfolk county. We can do it. We can make Weymouth the livest Post in the county, with the assistance of all the Legionnaires in town.

I'll close now,—but don't forget the zero hour—7 P. M. April 6.

Market Report for the Week

As a guide to the busy housekeeper the Gazette-Transcript will publish the prices in the Boston market as of Tuesday of the week the Gazette Transcript is printed.

What to buy at the vegetable counter: spinach three lbs 50c Turnips 5c lb. Bunched beets and carrots 10c. Onions 5c lb. Leeks 10 bunch.

Few of the stores handle strawberries because of high prices due to scarcity of berries. Strawberries are wholesaling 85c per qt. basket.

Undercuts of beef 28c lb. make good oven roast, as well as a pot roast. The first four or five slices of face of the rump steak at 38c lb is a particularly good purchase. Pork is low, 19—20c lb. rib roast. Short legs of lamb are high 42c lb.

Fish is somewhat lower in price than last week, but still high. Haddock 10—12c lb. Haddock spawn 25 lb. Smoked fillets 25c lb. Cod steak 15c lb. Fresh halibut is popular western selling 35c lb; eastern 45

Market luxuries: California asparagus 65—75c bunch. Dandelion 30—35c lb. Peas 40—50c lb. String and wax beans 30—40c lb. New potatoes 15c lb. Texas bermuda onion 20c lb. Sweet potatoes two lbs 25 Endive 50c lb. Mushrooms 75c lb.

Market news: The peak of the California iceberg lettuce is past. Shipments of California lettuce declined and previous to the arrival of outdoor lettuce, the Boston trade relies upon native hothouse lettuce to a large extent. The second shipment of California lettuce was recently sent to China. American fruits are in demand in Holland. The increase in the fresh apple trade has been especially notable in that country.
